Rent Charges In Quantico Assailed as 'Disgrace'

Congressional Probe Of Housing Situation Held Warranted By Marine Corps Aide

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2.—The "appalling" housing situation at Quantico "warrants a congressional investigation," the staff civil engineer of the Marine Corps base there told the Virginia General Assembly today.

Comdr. James Davis, USN, testifying before a joint general laws committee studying a bill to abolish rent control in Virginia, said he was "shocked, appalled and sickened" by the "ruthlessness of property owners" who rented to Marine and Navy personnel near the base.

Warrants Hill Probe

"It is a fact, and not a theory, that the housing situation at Quantico warrants a congressional investigation," he declared during a heated public hearing. "The town of Quantico is a scab on the fair face of Virginia."

Davis said there are landlords in the area charging $50 a month rent for war surplus house trailers purchased for $350. He was asked by Delegate G. Edmund Massie, of Richmond, a committee member, if such rates were not in violation of the Federal rent control laws.

"There aren't enough people to enforce the law," Davis said.

Asks Controls Be Kept

He pleaded with the committee not to abolish the controls now exercised on a local basis, as proposed in a bill introduced by Delegate John B. Boatwright, of Buckingham.

Appearing with Davis in opposition to the bill was Col. James J. Keating, inspector and legal officer of Quantico Marine Base, who read a statement from Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., commandant of the Marine Corps schools at Quantico.

"At present, we have 1196 married military personnel and 890 civilian employes with families, who have to live off the post," the statement said.

Of the 1196, 449 live more than 30 miles away because they could find nothing nearer to Quantico to rent. And 817 are enlisted men.

Woman Presides At House Move As Cars Crash

Without intending to do so, Mrs. Lillian B. Hunter of 1901 Montana ave. ne., was hostess at a small and informal house-moving bee yesterday morning.

Police said an auto, driven by James F. Everett, 22, of 1823 Massachusetts ave. se., sideswiped another one driven by John J. Jackson, 20, of 1823 Vermont ave. nw., at Montana ave. and T st. ne.

Then, they said, Everett's car went over the curb and came to rest against the Hunter home, moving the dwelling a foot on its foundation.

Mrs. Hunter said dishes and pots fell from shelves, pictures came down from the walls, and the refrigerator motor popped out all its springs.

Joan Wants to Catch Theresa's Measles . . .

Apartment Zoning of 284 Acres Urged

By James B. Graham
Post Reporter

An increase of 284 acres in land zoned for apartments in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area was recommended yesterday.

However, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which made the recommendation in its zoning plan, cut by one-third the apartment zoning figure it originally suggested. The commission's study map of September, 1949, called for 421 additional acres zoned for apartment buildings in the area.

Blair Lee, 3d, vice chairman of the commission, said the new plan follows "with a few exceptions" recommendations of the internal county improvement committee of the Montgomery County Civic Federation.

Several recent applications for apartment projects in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase section have been opposed by civic bodies on the grounds that there is no need for extensive development there.

The commission will hold a public hearing on the plan March 18 at 8 p. m. at the Bethesda Elemen-

Melchior, in Huff Sings 'Swan Song' And Quits Met

New York, Feb. 2 (U.P.).—Lauritz Melchior, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, quit in a huff tonight because of his feud with its new director.

"Not only as Lohengrin, but as Lauritz Melchior I have sung my swan song at the Metropolitan Opera tonight," the hefty 59-year-old tenor said in a statement . . . "I will not be back."

Melchior announced Tuesday that if he "didn't miss the swan boat," tonight's performance of "Lohengrin" would be his last at the Met. He was peeved at Rudolf Bing, the Met's new manager, who had refused to tell Melchior whether he would be rehired for next season.

The Opera House was jammed tonight, but the Met said that as far as it was concerned this was "just another performance" for Melchior.

It admitted, however, the demand for tickets by fans who wanted to hear Melchior and Helen Traubel sing their last operatic songs together had been "terrific."

Ingrid Gives Birth to Son In Rome; Rossellini at Hospital

Rome, Feb. 2 (U.P.).—Glamorous Ingrid Bergman, Swedish movie actress who rose to stardom in Hollywood, gave birth to a baby boy at 7 o'clock tonight (1 p. m. EST) at a Rome clinic.

Roberto Rossellini, Italian movie director, was at the clinic. A Catholic priest, a close friend of his called to the clinic immediately after the birth, announced in his behalf:

"Miss Bergman was taken to the hospital this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

"The delivery was without difficulty, although the birth occurred three weeks earlier than had been expected.

"Miss Bergman is in fine health and the baby is also very well. It was a big baby—but Mr. Rossellini was so excited he forgot to say how much it weighed."

An unconfirmed report said, however, the baby weighed eight pounds and was to be named Roberto.

Miss Bergman filed suit for divorce last week at Juarez, Mexico, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Tex., from Dr. Peter Lindstrom, Hollywood brain surgeon

A Desperate Gamble

D. C. Baby Exposed to Measles; Hope for Kidney Malady Cure

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A Washington mother yesterday purposely exposed her baby girl to measles, in a desperate gamble to cure the child of a dread kidney ailment.

The baby, 2½-year-old Joan Anderson, cuddled up to measles-spotted Theresa Sprinkle, 6, for nearly an hour yesterday morning in the darkened bedroom of the Sprinkle apartment, at 503 2d st. ne.

Then, hopeful that Joan had caught the measles virus, Mrs. Erwin Anderson took her little girl home to Cathedral Arms Apartments to wait for Nature to render the verdict in about nine to 16 days.

The medical gamble was taken on the advice of the child's physician, Dr. Herbert D. Glick, Mrs. Anderson said. Joan, she explained, has suffered nephrosis,

Veto Forecast For Hatch Act Change Here

Two Congressmen yesterday predicted a Presidential veto for a Senate-approved plan that would let Federal workers engage in local party politics in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

The forecasts, by Representative Hugh B. Mitchell (D., Wash.) and Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), came on the eve of a joint Congressional conference on the bill, at 10:30 a. m. today.

Representative Mary T. Norton (D., N. J.), leader of the House conferees, said she had received many protests about the local politics feature of the bill, and "I'm

Veep and Vips Wow Them at Heart Show

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Official Washington last night shed its dignity to stage a rollicking amateur show at Constitution Hall in the interests of charity—the American Heart Association's 1950 campaign.

"The Veep" and Mrs. Alben Barkley, scores of members of Congress and their ladies, and other VIPs (very important persons) staged a show perhaps without precedent to dramatize the fight against heart disease—the greatest killer known to man.

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, quipping "all they've given me is a gavel," said he'd like to handle the gong, but once he had it neglected to strike it most of the time.

Occasionally a voice cracked, or an amateur musician hit a sour note, but the capacity audience of some 4000 persons loved every minute of the show and applauded incessantly.

The first 45 minutes of the show replaced the "Original Amateur Show," which donated its time over the American Broadcasting Co. coast-to-coast network.

A Navy trio started the program rolling with a rendition of "There's No Place Like Makalapa, it's the

Students Get Their Innings, Chide Parents, Ask Sex Class

Senior and junior high school students of Montgomery County spoke up last night in vigorous tones to their parents and other adults in the community.

They asked an intelligent sex education program in their schools; insisted that parents should not judge and penalize their own children because of untoward actions by other individual children in the community, and advised parents to get better acquainted with the boys their daughters "date" to avoid panic if a date runs later than expected.

The forthright talk occurred at a panel discussion at Leland Junior High School, Bethesda, one of a series being conducted by the Institute for Personal and Family Living. One representative of each of 10 junior and senior high schools in the county did the talking.

All the youthful speakers were in agreement that a sex education program should be conducted in both junior and senior high schools.

Miley Mathis, of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School suggested that parents and teachers "call a spade a spade."

"After all, it's just life," he said.

Ernestine Brown, of Richard Montgomery High, Rockville, said the entire subject should be treated as "something normal" so that children would not get "misconceptions" from outside sources.

Carmen Lovre, discussing boy-girl relations, criticized boys and said they do not develop as fast as girls do. She cited the fact that boys of the same ages as girls won't dance with the girls. Lynn Waters, of Montgomery Blair High, answered that much of this is caused by boys "showing off,"

Gay Harding of Damascus High advised high school girls to take their "dates" home to get acquainted with the girls' parents. Then, he said, in event of car trouble or other delay in getting home from a date on scheduled time, parents of the girls would not fear, because they would know the boys.

Miss Brown criticized parents for unduly restricting their children because of misbehavior of one or two individual children in the community. Dr. Fern Schneider, Montgomery County high school supervisor, acted as moderator.

Operators Walk Out of Coal Parley

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The biggest bloc of soft coal producers yesterday walked out on new peace talks with John L. Lewis and then accepted the President's proposal for a 70-day fact-finding truce.

The revived contract negotiations between the Northern-Western operators and the United Mine Workers collapsed less than 24 hours after they had begun.

The initial meeting Wednesday, lasting three and a half hours, was followed yesterday by a second session lasting but three quarters of an hour. George Love, spokesman for the operators, charged that further negotiations with the UMW would be fruitless because Lewis insisted on "controlling production" through the "able and willing" clause of the work contract.

This clause permits Lewis to call out the miners at will, or to work them three days a week, as he has since December 1 in an effort to win contract improvements from the operators.

Operators' Demands Listed

Love said the operators also asked that the miners' welfare fund benefits be limited to employes of contributing companies; that the operators could not accept Lewis' form of the open shop on the ground that it is illegal; that the operators insisted no settlement be made which would increase the cost of coal.

Lewis lashed out at the operators after they walked out of the meeting at the Statler Hotel. The producers, he said, "obviously are determined to carry on their policy of not making a new contract . . ." He charged that Love is the "spearhead and white hope of financial interests . . . organized to try to crush the UMW."

"Those interests," Lewis asserted, "are filled with hope that the Government will step in through the courts and the Taft-Hartley slave statute to do what the operators failed to do, namely, to reduce the miners to a condition of servility." This plot he laid to U. S. Steel and its "financial interests."

Will Reply to Truman

Lewis said he would reply to the President's request for a 70-day fact-finding truce before the Saturday afternoon deadline.

At his press conference yesterday, Mr. Truman said he still was prepared to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act—with its 80-day injunction-enforced cooling-off period—should he decide there was a national emergency because of the coal dispute. If the miners refuse his fact-finding suggestion, as Lewis has in the past hinted he would do, the President will have little alternative save application of the Taft-Hartley law.

Mr. Truman said he was generally referring to a five-day work week when he suggested resumption of "normal production" during the fact-finding period. The bulk of the 400,000 soft coal miners have been working three days a week on instructions of Lewis, although 100,000 have been staying away from the pits altogether in a "no contract, no work" protest.

Inspection Still Crux

Few Expect Quick H-Bomb Agreement

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Is there a chance for getting an international agreement outlawing the hydrogen bomb that would give real security and assurance against secret violations?

That question provokes several other questions:

Is it possible to get such an agreement for the plain old-fashioned atom bomb? If so, and even so, is it technically possible to devise a control scheme for the H-bomb? Are its scientific aspects such that it permits of a control plan that could give assurance against clandestine violations?

Or, on the other hand, is it easier technically to make a control plan for the H-bomb than for the A-bomb? That is, are its enormously larger destructive powers, as compared to the A-bomb, a factor that will help get agreement to outlaw it? Because it is so much more terrible, will nations be more eager and anxious to agree than they ever were in the case of the uranium-plutonium bombs?

These questions, though vital, are almost impossible to answer because the deepest secrecy prevails over all of the H-bomb's technical aspects.

There may be—it stands to reason there must be—some unique aspects to the process of making the H-bomb that render

Stalin Worse Than Hirohito, Says Keenan

By The Associated Press

Joseph B. Keenan, chief prosecutor at the Japanese war crimes trials, said last night there is "far more reason to try Stalin as a war criminal than Emperor Hirohito of Japan."

Keenan made the statement in commenting on Russia's demand that Hirohito be brought to trial as a war criminal on charges involving germ warfare.

Keenan, a Washington attorney, said an on-the-spot investigation by Americans and Chinese officials thoroughly exploded claims that the Japanese had dropped missiles containing cholera or bubonic plague germs from planes over China during the war.

As for Hirohito, Keenan declared that evidence at the Tokyo trials clearly showed these two things:

1. That the Japanese government was "in fact" ruled by its cabinet.

2. That the actual participation of Hirohito was "very like that of a constitutional monarch — his cabinet made the decisions and the Emperor accepted the advice of his ministers."

"But the Emperor constantly attempted to dissuade his ministers

World Landslides Toward War, View Of Vatican Paper

Vatican City, Feb. 2 (U.P.).—President Truman's decision to make the hydrogen bomb means the world has "landslided toward armed war," the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano said today.

The paper said the go-ahead signal by "one of the nations most devoted to peace" shows there is no hope for a peaceful settlement of the cold war.

"We are plunged into a vortex for which human provision is powerless and the mind wavers as when the consciousness has been clouded," it said. "We have reached the chaos of the inhuman."

Osservatore said that unknown arms and those already revealed can plunge the world into "an abyss forever."

Army Lieut. Glenn W. Davis, of football renown, escaped injury yesterday in a traffic mishap on Shirley hwy. that sent his out-of-control car spinning over a 45-foot embankment.

The accident occurred about 1 p. m. just south of the cloverleaf at Duke st. extended, Alexandria. Lieutenant Davis, Virginia State police said, crawled unhurt from his overturned auto at the bottom of the embankment and calmly phoned for a wrecking truck.

Police reported the 25-year-old officer was en route to Washington from Fort Monroe, Va., when his 1949 sedan went off the pavement. It plummeted down the steep hill, turned over at least one-and-one-half times, smashed into a tree and came to rest on its top.

Davis extricated himself and hailed a passing motorist. He told a Virginia State trooper the only injury he suffered was a bruise on his left ankle.

"And I got that when I got out of the car," the trooper quoted him.

West Considers Partial Blockade Of Soviet Zone

NYHT News Service

The United States, Britain and France are actively considering a partial blockade of the Soviet zone of Germany in retaliation for Russia's "little blockade" of Berlin.

Although State Department spokesman Michael J. McDermott would say only that countermeasures were being considered by the United States, it was learned last night that American officials in Germany are sounding out British and French authorities on restricting East-West German traffic.

The West may also resume a "partial airlift" to Berlin if Soviet interference with rail and truck traffic continues.

"We do not believe we can sit idly by . . . when Soviet authorities violate international agreements in this manner. We must actively consider whether countermeasures should not be taken. The nature of such countermeasures would of course depend on the specific circumstances prevailing at the time," McDermott said.

Atom Pact, Aid to World Proposed By McMahon

Arms Limit, Saving U. S. Billions, Would Finance Help for All Other Countries

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) yesterday called for a "moral crusade for peace" and proposed a concrete method to achieve it by outlawing the hydrogen bomb.

His plan would cost 50 billion dollars over five years. America would make it available to the United Nations to spend on three programs: President Truman's Point IV plan for developing backward areas, for developing peacetime atomic uses, and for general economic aid to all countries, including Russia.

The money would be offered in return for:

1. World acceptance of an effective program for international control of atomic energy.

2. World agreement, also enforced by inspection, for a two-thirds reduction, across the boards, of every nation's present expenditures on armaments. The money saved would have to be devoted to "constructive ends."

The 50 billion dollars by which the United States would finance the plan would be the savings, at the rate of 10 billion dollars a year, from a two-thirds cut in our present 15-billion-dollar military budget.

McMahon's plan was set forth in a Senate speech which provoked immediate and lively interest. Half a dozen Democratic Senators rose at once to congratulate him.

It is known that the idea is his

New Bomb, in Theory, Has No Size Limit

Senator McMahon's speech yesterday appeared to confirm certain previously reported, but heretofore nonofficial guesses about the nature of the hydrogen bomb:

1. "It will be cheaper to develop than its uranium forerunner." The cost of the A-bomb during the war was two billion dollars.

2. "Theoretically, it is without limit in destructive capacity." In other words, in theory it can be made as large as desired.

3. It would "destroy any military or other target, including the largest city on earth."

Tatom Approved For Navy Captain; Hit B-36 Claims

President Truman has approved promotion for another Navy officer who criticized defense policies at last fall's congressional hearings.

The officer is Comdr. Eugene Tatom, approved for advancement to captain. During the hearings, he contended the B-36 bomber and atom bomb were being overemphasized. One statement he made was that you could stand at one end of the Washington airport and not be hurt by an atom bomb exploded at the other end.

Tatom, a native of Pensacola, Fla., lives at 1817 S. George Mason dr., Arlington.

Surgeons Extract Air From Heart, 'Dead' Man Lives

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—The Medical College of South Carolina disclosed today that its surgeons had extracted air from a man's heart chamber and brought him back to life after he had apparently died on an operating table.

The patient, in his early 30s, had stopped breathing for a minute and there was no sign of a pulse beat. But one surgeon, whose stethoscope was over the man's heart, heard a gurgling noise.

A needle was inserted directly into the heart chamber and 45 cubic centimeters of air was extracted. The patient began to breathe again.

Truman Blames Spud Difficulty on 'Hill'

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Congress was blamed by President Truman yesterday for the impending destruction of about 50 million bushels of potatoes.

Specifically, Mr. Truman blamed the potato mess upon the Agriculture Act of 1949, often referred to as the Anderson farm bill for its author, former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. Mex.).

Shortly after Mr. Truman's remarks at his weekly news conference, his party's leader in the Senate, Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) told the Senate Agriculture Committee, he may move soon to amend that act.

Lucas said that he was considering tacking an amendment upon the Cotton Act recently passed by the House, that would remove potatoes from protection by mandatory price supports.

Hits Destruction Plans

Lucas added that the proposed destruction of 60 to 70 million dollars worth of potatoes—half of them in one county in Maine—was "giving the entire price support program a black eye."

He warned that there was danger that the public, aroused by the tremendous waste, would demand removal of all farm price supports.

At noon Senator John J. Williams (R., Del.) an outspoken foe of the farm price support system, offered a bill to do away with the present price support level for so-called basic crops of 90 percent of parity. These basic crops are cotton, corn, wheat, peanuts, tobacco, and rice. Under the Anderson Act they are to be supported at the high level for the remainder of this year. Williams would substitute a sliding scale of supports.

Williams' action was followed by a crash in grain prices in the Nation's grain exchanges. Wheat futures plunged down from 2⅜ to 4⅛ cents a bushel; rye went down 3¼ to 4⅛ cents; soybeans as much as 2¾ cents. Smaller losses were registered by corn, oats and lard.

20 Pounds Per Capita

Meantime at the Agriculture Department, plans went ahead for immediate "dumping" of millions of bushels of good spuds. One official pointed out that slated for destruction are enough potatoes to provide every man, woman and child in the entire United States with about 20 pounds—one third of a bushel.

(At retail prices current in Washington yesterday, this would mean destruction of about 60 cents worth of potatoes for every person in the country.)

Agriculture officials insist that the Senate Agriculture Committee gave its approval of the dumping program. The committee refused to advise Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan what its intent was in that regard when it insisted last fall to keep price supports mandatory on potatoes. Brannan had told it that without other directions from the committee he would order the potatoes destroyed.

Mr. Truman was asked about the potato surplus at his news conference by May Craig, correspondent for several Maine newspapers.

Suggests Asking Brewster

Mr. Truman told her she ought to know more about potatoes than anybody else. He suggested that she discuss it with Senator Brewster of Maine.

Lucas' remarks were made at a Senate committee meeting called to consider a bill to increase the acreage for cotton, and thus increase the cost of supporting cotton prices.

The bill, designed to remove "inequalities" in the cotton acreage allotments, would grant many States additional acreages. The amendment was opposed by Senator Anderson, who was the author of the original cotton acreage allotment law. That law was the cause of widespread complaints throughout the cotton belt.

The amendment also would increase acreages for peanuts. A similar amendments to increase the similar amendment to increase the House.

For Own Plan

Townsend Would Scrap Security Act

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, 83-year-old old-age planner, yesterday urged Congress to scrap the Social Security law in favor of his Townsend plan.

Townsend testified before the Senate Finance Committee on a House-approved bill to broaden and expand the Social Security System.

Supporting witnesses for Townsend were Senators Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) and Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), cosponsors of a bill shaped after the Townsend plan.

Voicing disgust at provisions of the House-passed bill, Townsend called it "ridiculous."

He asked the committee to support instead his program for monthly payments of about $150 to all unemployed over 60, the blind, the totally and permanently disabled, and widows with dependent children.

"If we are going to have a pension system," Townsend said, "let us have a good one. Our citizens are not satisfied with the ridiculous amounts paid under the Social Security Act."

Townsend's son, Robert, said the Socal Security System "doles out an average 'benefit' of $26 a month 85 cents a day, or 28 cents a meal, with nothing left over for rent or clothing."

Amendments Help Speed Housing Bill

A series of minor perfecting amendments to the Administration's new middle-income housing bill were adopted yesterday by the Senate Banking Subcommittee handling the bill.

Adoption of the amendments moved the measure one step nearer to floor action. There will be another meeting of the subcommittee Monday to act on the most controversial section of the bill—that dealing with cooperative housing.

Senator Ralph Flanders (R., Vt.) told reporters he planned to vote for the cooperative housing program if a couple of its provisions were changed.

"I have favored the cooperative principle for a long time," Flanders said. "I oppose special tax exemptions for them and this bill eliminates that."

Meanwhile before the House Banking Committee, former Representative Jerry Voorhis of California, speaking for the Cooperative League of the United States, said the league did not ask for tax exemptions for cooperatives. Not only did the league not ask for such exemptions, Voorhis said, but would strongly oppose such a suggestion if offered.

The program would set up a new National Mortgage Corporation for housing cooperatives with a one million dollar loan from the Treasury. It could then issue up to two billion dollars of Government-guaranteed debentures or obligations to private investors. These funds would be loaned to cooperatives or nonprofit corporations for housing projects under long-term low-interest provisions.

Final Meeting Held On Arlington Plan

A final conference was held yesterday by the Arlington County Board on its long-awaited master zoning plan and zoning ordinance in preparation close to two years.

The ordinance and land use map both should be ready for adoption by the board as its regular meeting February 25, Mrs. Florence Cannon said yesterday. She is a member of the board.

tary School. Copies of the plan may be obtained at the commission's Silver Spring offices.

The plan is designed to anticipate the area's need for apartment, commercial and industrial development for the next five years, Lee said.

"Orderly planning and construction will be aided if apartment rezoning proceeds at a moderate pace," he added.

After adoption of the plan it will be forwarded to the county council with the commission's recommendation that it be used as a guide rather than as a mass rezoning of property, Lee said.

He said the commission believed that rezoning for apartment use should be restricted to large areas comparable to a city block to prevent the spotting of the communities with "small, ugly and ill-planned" structures.

Major deletions of apartment areas from the old map, drawn last September before the resignation of Lee's father, Col. E. Brooke Lee, as vice chairman, include:

1. A strip of land on both sides of Wisconsin ave. between Little Falls Branch and Nottingham dr.

2. A large section on the west side of Wisconsin ave. between Cedar lane and Pook's Hill. The county council has pending before it an application by the White Fathers of Africa for reclassification of 17½ acres here for a three-million-dollar project.

3. The Wiegand tract east of Connecticut ave. and south of Rock Creek, abutting the residential community of North Chevy Chase.

4. Land south of the National Institutes of Health to the west of the proposed extension of Glenbrook pkwy.

An addition is a 64-acre tract northwest of Wisconsin ave. and Grosvenor lane.

J. Newton Brewer, agent for the heirs of the late Charles I. Corby, wealthy baker, recently withdrew a petition for apartment zoning here pending publication of the new plan.

The commission retained in its proposas for apartment use the 46-acre Casey tract between Connecticut ave. and the National Naval Medical Center. Miss Virginia K. Casey, daughter of wartime Presidential aide Eugene B. Casey has an application pending for rezoning of this property.

President Invites Gov. Duff To Join Democratic Party

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday "invited" Governor James H. Duff of Pennsylvania to join the Democratic Party.

The invitation was extended, amidst laughter, at a White House news conference. A reporter had just told Mr. Truman that Governor Duff wanted his own Republican party to be "broad," "hard-hitting," "progressive," and "not petty."

"I suggest that Governor Duff join the Democratic party," the President said, all smiles, adding that it was just the kind of party Duff had described.

Governor Duff, who has been feuding with the so-called Grundy faction in the Republican Party in Pennsylvania, was one of six Governors who recently drew up a statement of what the GOP ought to be like.

The other Governors were Fred G. Aandahl of North Dakota; Sherman Adams of New Hampshire; William S. Beardsley of Iowa; Val Peterson of Nebraska, and C. A. Robins of Idaho.

Carl W. McCardle, correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin, read the statement at the White House news conference to get Mr. Truman's reaction.

A smile appeared on Mr. Truman's face, and he was all set with the invitation to Governor Duff when the reading was finished.

Governor Duff is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Senate this year, hoping to capture the seat now held by Senator Francis Myers, the Democratic whip.

The question of another term for President Truman came up at yesterday's news conference during a discussion of the proposed constitutional amendment to reform the electoral college.

"Mr. President," a reporter asked, "do you think that the . . . amendment will help get you reelected in 1952?"

The Chief Executive, laughing, told the reporter he could be sure that the amendment would not be in the Constitution by 1952, even if Congress agrees by a two-thirds vote to submit it to the States.

Raymond (Pete) Brandt, correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, called attention to the word "restricted" in an executive order which the President issued on Wednesday. The order dealt with dissemination of military information, and was issued merely to make old rules conform with the new armed services setup.

Brandt complained to President Truman that the word "restricted" was applied in some cases even to newspaper clippings. Office boys, he said, insisted on stamping documents "confidential" and "restricted."

Mr. Truman, smiling sympathetically, said he never used the word himself.

Other topics at the news conference:

Battleship Missouri—Mr. Truman had no comment on its being freed from a shoal in Chesapeake Bay.

Alaska—He said that the defense of Alaska would be covered in the general defense program for the country.

Truman Favors New Election Amendment

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday he thinks the new method of electing Presidents, as approved by the Senate, is a forward step.

He said he was very much interested in the proposed Lodge-Gossett constitutional amendment and had made some suggestions on it himself, most of which were adopted. He added he believed it would be a step in the right direction if the House also approves the plan and the necessary 36 State Legislatures ratify the amendment to put it into the Constitution.

His comment was in contrast to a speech at inauguration time before a dinner of presidential electors. Then he said he was "in favor of letting the Constitutional provision, which provides for electors, continue as it has continued for the last 160 years, and the country will be all right."

Mr. Truman's remarks yesterday came as a check of the House indicated the proposal is likely to wait a month before reaching the House floor.

Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.), leading House sponsor, said he expects a House Rules Committee hearing on the amendment, already approved by the Judiciary Committee, within a week. He added he is certain, after checking the rules members, of a practically unanimous vote to put the proposal before the House itself.

Majority Leader McCormack and Democratic Whip Priest both said they figure it would come up for a vote in about a month. McCormack added a comment apparently indicative of the feelings of a large part of the House membership:

"I'm just beginning to look into it for the first time. I didn't even know it was out of committee."

At his press conference, President Truman was asked if he thought the amendment would help him get reelected in 1952. To this he replied, with a laugh, that even if it wins the necessary two-thirds House vote, it will not be law in 1952. He said the reporter could be sure of that.

This is so because only a handful of the State legislatures meet this year and 36 ratifications are necessary.

129 in House Sign Home Rule Petition

One hundred and twenty-nine House members have signed the District Home Rule petition, Representative Kennedy (D., Mass.) reported yesterday.

Then he added: "We're on our way. In the next few weeks I'm sure we can succeed."

Kennedy and Representative Granger (D., Utah) were among speakers at a home rule luncheon of the Central Suffrage Conference, held at the AVC Clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw.

The group planned new ways and means of getting the additional 89 signatures needed to force the Senate-approved Kefauver bill to the House floor over the objections of the hostile House District Committee majority.

Kennedy said he estimates there are about 170 New Deal and Fair Deal Democrats, all of whom should sign the petition. Added to that, he said, should be enough Republicans, especially the younger ones, to reach 218, a majority of the House membership. He said a "few" Southern Democrats also may sign.

Granger said it's "this time or it will be a long time in the future before there is another opportunity for home rule here."

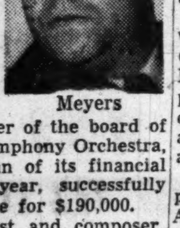
Meyers Gets Sesqui Music Director Post

Emerson Meyers was named music director of the Sesquicentennial at a meeting of the executive committee on Wednesday.



Meyers

Edward Boykin, director of the commission, in announcing the selection yesterday, described Meyers as "one of the city's finest musical representatives."

Meyers is a well-known Washington musician. A member of the board of the National Symphony Orchestra, he was chairman of its financial campaign last year, successfully leading the drive for $190,000.

He is a pianist and composer, whose music has been played by the NBC Symphony and the National Symphony. At present Meyers is head of the piano department of American University, and on the faculty of Catholic University. He will appear as soloist with the National Symphony on February 26.

As music director of the Sesquicentennial, Meyers will be in charge of all musical events produced during the entire term of the festival.

2 Key Figures In Bogus-Bill Ring Missing

New York, Feb. 2 (NYHT).—Federal authorities started a grand jury investigation and a Nationwide hunt for Alfred Turiano, building contractor and key figure in a 20-man counterfeiting ring, after they were informed today he has been missing since January 10 and might have "met with foul play."

F.B.I. agents were also seeking Jack Mellon, a friend, who disappeared at the same time.

Turiano, 45, was due to go on trial Monday with three others, including George Gillette, a brother-in-law of Joe Adonis, Brooklyn gangster. He was free in $60,000 bail, which will be forfeited at 10:30 a. m. Friday unless he turns up.

Turiano's wife, Louise, said she was sure he had not intended to disappear because he had to use a brace for his back and "the brace is still in his room."

"I feel someone must have done something to him," she said.

Sen. Johnson Pressing for 2d Airport

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) last night said he will "go full steam ahead" in seeking action on his bill to authorize another civilian airport in the Washington area.

He discarded the suggestion that the nearly completed Friendship Airport, near Baltimore, could adequately serve Washington as an alternate terminal during congested periods.

"The Nation's Capital," he said, "needs a second civilian airport of its own."

The chairman of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, which handles aviation matters, made these statements following a two-hour conference with Civilian Aeronautics Administrator Delos W. Rentzel and other officials on "local airport situation."

Johnson declined to comment on CAA's attitude towards his measure except to say he is "greatly encouraged" and will call committee hearings in the "near future."

National Airport, he emphasized, will never be abandoned if another civilian terminal is built here. National would service all freight planes, the "puddle jumpers" and other private craft, leaving the new airport exclusively for passenger air liners, he said.

Brig. Gen. Milton Arnold, vice president of Aviation Transport Association, also participated in the Capital Hill meeting yesterday.

NLRB Orders Vote At Five GM Plants To Stop Trouble

The first collective bargaining elections in the fight between rival unions of electrical workers were ordered yesterday by the National Labor Relations Board.

The elections will be held for 27,500 workers at five General Motors plants. They will be given a choice of the United Electrical Workers (UE), the CIO's new International Union of Electrical Workers, or no union at all. They are now represented by the UE.

The CIO's group was set up last fall after the UE was ousted from CIO on the grounds of left-wing activity. As a result, a big fight has developed over bargaining rights for workers in the electrical manufacturing, radio and television industries.

The elections are to be held in the next 30 days.

House Votes to Admit Additional Scientists

The House yesterday approved a proposal for admission of 3200 foreign specialists and scientists into the United States each year.

The measure was passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate.

It would permit the entry, with State and Justice Department clearance, of aliens with special technical, medical, professional or scientific skills.

The bill provides that in addition to those with professional and technical skills, preference be given to those whose services might be needed from the standpoint of national defense and security.

Judges Here Win Approval Of Senate Unit

Three nominees to the Federal bench here were approved yesterday by a Senate Judiciary Sub-Committss and their names forwarded to the full committees for action Monday.

They are David Bazelon, appointed to the United States Court of Appeals, and James R. Kirkland and Charles F. McLaughlin, named to District Court. All three are serving under recess appointments.

John L. Laskey, president of the District Bar Association, and Milton W. King, past president, testified in behalf of Kirkland. No one appeared against any of the appointees.

Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.), member of the full committee, entered a token "objection" to all 23 of the President's court appointments. Langer said he didn't object to any of the appointments particularly, but just wanted time to look into their qualifications.

Langer said he had withdrawn his "objection" to Bazelon but was still studying the nominations of Kirkland and McLaughlin.

Nomination of H. Nathan Swain of Indiana to the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit was also approved by the subcommittee.

4 Million Jobless Would Halt DPs In McCarran Plan

By the United Press

Chairman Pat McCarran of the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday introduced an amendment to stop entry of displaced persons into the United States whenever more than four million Americans are unemployed.

The Nevada Democrat's proposal also would grind the displaced persons program to a halt whenever more than two million married couples are forced to live "doubled-up" in a household.

McCarran, outspoken opponent of President Truman's drive to liberalize the Displaced Persons Act, called his proposal "a minimum safeguard to protect the people of the United States."

happiest spot in the world." Admiral DeWitt Ramsey (ret.) and Capt. John A. Waters were at the pianos. Capt. W. Gordon (Slim) Beecher played the guitar and sang.

A quartet of Southern Democrats sounded like a real barbershop quartet when they sang "When You Wore A Tulip" and other numbers. They included Toby Morris, Okla.; J. Frank Wilson, Tex.; Oren Harris, Ark., and J. Percy Priest, Tenn.

Representative Dewey Short hung his hands on his coat lapels to give an imitation of former Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and a trio composed of Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) and the wives of Senators Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) and George Malone (R., Nev.) sang "Too-ra-loo-ra."

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) wowed the audience when, leading a "Celebrity Symphony" he donned a coonskin cap. Washtubs and ukeleles were among the "symphony" instruments.

Vice President and Mrs. Barkley led a chorus of some 40 Senators and Representatives in singing "God Bless America."

Midway in the program a message from President Truman was read, urging the Nation "to learn the facts about heart disease" and give whole-hearted support" to the fight against it.

A 75-minute program followed the broadcast and featured such acts as a display of Parisian hats by Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, a piano solo by Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the Mint; a hula by Beverly Farrington, daughter of the Hawaiian Delegate to Congress, accompanied by Capt. John Leon Collins, USN, on the ukelele, and a square dance by seven Texas couples, including five Representatives and their wives.

The Air Force Band and other military musical units and color guard brought the program to a crashing close.

Fairfax Gets 5 New Judges

Five judges—of a total of seven given various duties — were assigned yesterday by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals to relieve Fairfax County Circuit Court's congested docket.

Each of the five will hear cases in the court at stated times. Meantime, the court's regular judge, Paul E. Brown, will carry out his judicial duties in Alexandria and Prince William County Circuit Courts, where he also sits.

Named to help in Fairfax were Judges R. T. Wilson, of the Petersburg Hustings Court; Eliott Marshall, of the Seventeenth Circuit; J. Jordan Temple, Third Circuit; Burnett Miller, jr., Ninth Circuit; and Earl Abbott, Nineteenth Circuit.

Judge Brown said yesterday that the need for assistance to clear his docket is indicative of Fairfax County's growth.

He noted, as an instance, that the Circuit Court clerk collected $122,000 in fees in 1944. Last year, he said, the figure came to $347,000. Deeds filed in 1944 totaled 5474. In 1949, slightly more than 14,000 were recorded.

For the 60-day term which began January 16, some 80 cases are to be heard in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Navy Blames Sunken Ship for 12-Foot Gash Discovered in Hull of Refloated Mighty Mo

Portsmouth, Va., Feb. 2 (AP).—A king-size can opener in the form of a sunken ship sliced a 12-foot gash in the battleship Missouri's bottom when she ran aground, naval experts believe.

Atlantic Fleet spokesmen reported today the gash was the only damage the big Mo suffered that will require repair. They said her engines are undamaged and she will be ready for sea within five to seven days.

The gash was discovered when the ship's hull was inspected in drydock at the Norfolk naval shipyard. The Missouri was towed to the yard after she was refloated yesterday.

Fleet spokesmen said the ship's bottom was opened by a sharp steel plate, part of which still was stuck in the opening. The two-foot-wide gash is amidship. It is in the middle of an 88-foot long scratch which tapers off in depth as it extends fore and aft.

Salvage experts say the shipwreck of which the plate is believed to be a part, may have been a factor in the failure of early attempts to haul the battlewagon off the shoal.

Proposals that the Big Mo be replaced by one or two aircraft carriers have been made by Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, and Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, retired commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet.

Court of Inquiry To Be Open to Public

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 2 (AP).—Sessions of the naval court of inquiry named to investigate the grounding of the battleship Missouri will be open to the public and the press, Atlantic Fleet headquarters announced today.

Spokesmen said the sessions will start at 1 p. m. Friday. The proceedings will be held at the Norfolk naval base.

Capt. William D. Brown, commanding officer of the Missouri, who is described by fleet spokesmen as "an interested party," in the proceedings, will be represented by Capt. C. C. Wood, commanding officer of the cruiser Albany.

Man Held in Threat To Expose Nude Picture

Akron, O., Feb. 1 (AP).—A 40-year-old Cleveland man was accused today of collecting money from a prominent couple here by threatening to display nude pictures of their daughter.

Police said Morris J. Rosenberg had obtained $400 from the couple and came here today to collect $1500.

Police said Rosenberg threatened to send pictures to friends of the girl as Christmas cards unless they met his demands for money.

Jaycees Name 'Boss of Year'

J. Godfrey Butler, director of personnel for Capital Transit Co., yesterday was named "boss of the year" by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Butler

"He makes it possible for me to be both effective and happy in my work," said the employe who nominated Butler. "He is generous with credit and praise, and so gentle and constructive with necessary criticism that it is both painless and helpful."

Also: "He is interested in my ideas and give them his full consideration. He gives me every conceivable help and incentive to do the best job of which I am capable and to get the most out of it for myself."

Butler received the award at a luncheon in the Burlington Hotel.

U. S. Will Maintain Strong Pacific Fleet

Tokyo, Feb. 2 (AP). — American naval forces in the western Pacific will be kept at maximum strength due to Russia's expanding submarine program, the Chief of Naval Operations declared today.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman estimated the Russians have 270 to 280 submarines, one fourth in the Pacific. He said the Navy will keep some cruisers and at least two aircraft carriers in the Pacific, with some small additions possible.

The Navy now has in the western Pacific the newly arrived carrier Boxer, a heavy cruiser and six destroyers in the Seventh Task Fleet, plus another heavy cruiser and four destroyers in General MacArthur's occupation command.

(The Navy meanwhile is strengthening Pacific Fleet forces based on the U. S. West Coast. Today it announced that the 11,000-ton escort carrier Sicily would be transferred from the Atlantic to San Diego, Calif., in mid-April. Last Tuesday it announced plans to add two cruisers and six destroyers.)

The American Joint Chiefs of Staff are on a Far Eastern tour. Besides Sherman, they are Gens. Omar N. Bradley, Hoyt Vandenberg and J. Lawton Collins. Bradley and Vandenberg said they knew of no plans to strengthen land and air forces in the western Pacific.

ing peace," Johnson told applauding listeners. "There is only one nation in the world that would start a war. We seek to have a military establishment sufficient to deter that aggressor and to lick hell out of her if she doesn't stay deterred," he asserted.

"Joe Stalin will know that if he starts something at 4 a. m. the fighting power of the United States will be on the job at 5 a. m.," Johnson promised.

Describing a movement to pull servicemen away from desk jobs and assign them as combat troops, Johnson said that despite an anticipated reduction of 100,000 men in the services by 1951 "there will be more men in combat units ready to fight than before the reduction . . ."

Hammering at "wastage of money in defense" as "approaching treason" Johnson said it would be futile to build the "finest military machine in the world" if America's economy were to be wrecked in the process.

Along this line he called for the elimination of such coastal establishments as Sandy Hook, N. J., the upkeep of which he said, ran into the billions, and which he asserted "have nothing to do with security or adequate defense."

Declaring that the "big shooting is over" in the row over unification, Johnson declared there "is no division in the top level of the military establishment."

"In the field," he said, "the sun shines on unification and the Army, Navy, and Air Force are ready to go as a team . . ."

He asserted "there was no unification at Pearl Harbor or Pearl Harbor couldn't have been."

Pointing out that in the last two wars, America had allies to hold the enemy while this nation gathered its strength, Johnson said he "was not sure peace would last a few hours" if Russia thought us unready for war.

Baby Returns $1000 'Trinket'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

ALICE BENSON, 2, of Astoria, L. I., holds the 'trinket" given to her Monday by an unidentified man when she fidgeted during a Long Island train trip with her mother, Mrs. John Benson. The trinket turned out to be a $1000 jeweled ear clip when the mother turned it over to New York police for examination. It was returned to Mrs. Carlos de Cardenas of Venezuela who lost it January 14 from precipitate action toward war," Keenan said.

Keenan Says Stalin Worse

Keenan said the chief Soviet prosecutor at the Tokyo trials, Col. Gen. M. Golunsky, signed an agreement with the prosecutors of 10 other nations that Hirohito should not be tried as a war criminal.

"All the prosecutors signed and voted on who should be tried," Keenan said. "Golunsky signed. There was no dissension."

'Documentary Evidence'

Keenan said, Soviet Premier Stalin's "guilt" as a war criminal traced back to documentary evidence, produced at the Tokyo trials, of a 1940 conspiracy among Hitler, Mussolini and Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka "aimed at dividing up the world."

"Hitler invited Stalin to join. Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov then went to Berlin and agreed 'in principle' to join," Keenan continued.

"The only question was what Russia's share of the loot would be. Stalin's terms included the Baltic states, part of Poland, Bulgaria, the largest part of Romania and a fair part of Czechoslovakia and control of the Dardanelles.

"These terms were unacceptable to Hitler, and that's the only reason Stalin wouldn't go along."

Truman Names Paul Styles NLRB Member

A one-time printer's devil an AFL official was named by President Truman yesterday to fill a vacancy on the five-member National Labor Relations Board.

Paul L. Styles, NLRB regional director at Atlanta, who had strong labor endorsement, was chosen by the White House to succeed J. Copeland Gray, whose term expired December 16, and who was regarded as anti-labor by the unions.

The 42-year-old Styles is an Alabaman, with a long career as a Government labor official. He was an NLRB field examiner in the South for six years; vice chairman of the regional War Labor Board at Atlanta from 1943 to 1945; and since has been NLRB regional director.

Ford Puts 15,000 On Six-Day Week To Speed Output

Detroit, Feb. 2 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co., aiming at a production record, put 15,000 of its hourly-rated workers on a six-day week today.

All are employed at the company's huge Rouge plant. Workers affected will have a 30 percent increase in their pay as a result of the move, officials said.

Ford production schedules call for near-capacity operations throughout May, to carry out an earlier announcement by President Henry Ford II that his firm wanted to reach its greatest production in history during the first half of this year.

Two records were set in January. The monthly total of cars and trucks was a precedent-setting 148,393, and on the last day of the month 7220 vehicles were turned out for a new mark.

Keep All Lines Busy, Ching Orders Telephone Negotiators

Chief Federal Conciliator Cyrus S. Ching yesterday urged Bell System subsidiaries and CIO Communications Workers' divisions to "step up the tempo" of their contract negotiations in an effort to avert a Nation-wide strike scheduled for next Wednesday.

Such a strike, Ching said, "would gravely impair or, perhaps, result in a complete stoppage of telephone service."

Ching called on his field mediators to report to him twice daily and to give him a special situation report next Monday.

Joseph Beirne, union president, immediately said his representatives are ready to negotiate "night and day" to settle the contract dispute. At the same time, the union will go ahead with its plan to strike 100,000 phone workers, and keep 150,000 others out of Bell plants by setting up picket lines.

C. H. Johnson, vice president of Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., yesterday charged CIO President Philip Murray and CWA President Beirne with making "irresponsible and baseless statements in a scheme to confuse telephone employes and the public, and arouse support for a cooked-up strike."

The phone company official accused both union leaders of "inaccurate and distorted" statements on company labor relations.

13 Legislators Back U. S. in Perjury Case

By Marshall Andrews

Post Reporter

Testimony of two witnesses yesterday rounded out the Government's contention that a quorum of the House Labor Committee was present when Harold Christoffel swore he was not a Communist.

Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) and former Representative Edward O. McCowen (R., Ohio) were the last of 13 members and former members of the House to testify in District Court in the last three days that they heard the labor leader's denials.

Christoffel is charged with perjury as a result of his testimony, a previous conviction having been set aside by the Supreme Court on the ground that the Government had not shown a quorum of the committee was present. Without a majority of its members, the Supreme Court held, the committee did not constitute a "competent tribunal" under the Constitution.

Hoffman, Rogge Tangle

Hoffman, characteristically firm in his statements, tangled frequently with Defense Counsel O. John Rogge.

Once Hoffman reacted violently to Rogge's suggestion that the Allis-Chalmers Co. where Christoffel had been president of Local 248 United Auto Workers-CIO, had furnished him with "a lot of material." Hoffman shouted:

"I resent that. I'm 74 years old and I can frame my own questions."

At another point Chief Prosecutor John S. Pratt leaped to his feet to object when Rogge asked Hoffman if it was true that he could remember "just what you want to remember." Judge F. Dickinson Letts sustained the objection.

The trial was adjourned in mid-afternoon after waiting since 2 p. m. for the appearance of Glenn Clarke, secretary of the Milwaukee County CIO Council, to appear as a witness. Clarke, flying to Washington, was delayed by weather conditions and Judge Letts adjourned the trial until Monday at 9:45 a. m.

At the close of the morning session yesterday Duane Greathouse of Chicago, regional director of the UAW and administrator of Local 248 while Christoffel was president, identified certain records Pratt placed in evidence. Other records of the local were identified by Fred McStroul, a Milwaukee grocer, who was recording secretary of the local from 1936 to 1947.

2d Bridges Lawyer Cited For Contempt

San Francisco, Feb. 2 (AP).—Federal Judge George B. Harris today cited Defense Attorney James MacInnis for contempt in the Harry Bridges perjury trial. Sentence was deferred until after the trial.

Both defense attorneys now have been cited for contempt. Judge Harris cited Attorney Vincent Hallihan early in the trial and sentenced him to six months in prison, to be served after the trial.

Harris cited MacInnis on the basis of an angry outburst in court yesterday:

"You ought to assign this as misconduct against yourself. I have never heard anything like that. Your honor, you ought to be ashamed of yourself."

The outburst followed this question the judge asked a Catholic priest, the Rev. Paul W. Meinecke: "Have you recently been subjected to medical treatment?"

The priest was a character witness for Bridges.

Before citing MacInnis, Judge Harris had ruled that the 1945 United States Supreme Court decision against deporting Bridges might not be entered in evidence. The defense has made repeated attempts to get the decision in.

Judge Harris also denied Prosecutor F. Joseph Donohue's motion to strike the character testimony of Father Paul. Donohue argued that the priest was expressing his personal opinion of Bridges rather than supporting the longshore leader's general reputation.

The priest, from Eureka, Nev., was recalled today. He praised Bridges for "good works" as a trade union leader. He testified Bridges was "infected with a virus" which the priest called "the bug of trade unionism."

He said, "Of course I do not approve of all Bridges' policies—I do not like strikes because they hurt the common welfare, but sometimes working men cannot get justice any other way."

Stanley Bailey, former San Francisco newspaperman who now is editor and publisher of a Portola (Plumas County) newspaper, followed Father Paul to the witness stand.

Bailey testified he was well acquainted with both Bridges and Henry Schmidt, one of the union officers on trial. He said he had known them for 15 years and in his opinion their reputations were good.

Judge Shouts at Attorney For Gubitchev at Spy Trial

New York, Feb. 2 (U.P.).—Judge Sylvester Ryan shouted at the suave defense attorney for Valentin Gubitchev today and ordered him to be quiet.

The usually calm judge, who frequently has scolded the attorney for Judith Coplon, Gubitchev's codefendant in the espionage conspiracy trial, reprimanded Abraham L. Pomerantz three times today for quibbling with Government attorneys.

Ryan shouted at him after Pomerantz had protested Prosecutor John J. Kelley's charge that he was reading previous testimony out of context.

"Stop it," the judge said.

Pomerantz, his face flushed, repeated in a low voice that he wanted Kelley to read the whole document into the record. The judge's face grew red, too. He sat upright abruptly, leaned across the bench and said severely:

"I am not accustomed to statements like that from counsel in court."

When Pomerantz attempted to pursue the subject, Ryan fairly shouted, "Next question!"

When he recessed court for lunch, the judge summoned both prosecution and defense attorneys and their clients into his chambers for a five-minute conference. It was not revealed what they discussed.

At the opening of the afternoon session Pomerantz moved twice for a mistrial. Both motions were denied.

Pomerantz said Ryan had characterized the testimony of FBI Agent Roger Robinson as truthful. Robinson had testified how he trailed Miss Coplon on the night of February 18, 1949. Pomerantz said his testimony was "highly inflammatory and prejudicial to the defense."

Far Eastern Meeting Boycotted by Russia

Russia yesterday boycotted a meeting of the Far Eastern Commission, the 13-nation group that sets policy for the occupation of Japan.

The action carried out a threat made two weeks ago. The Soviets gave notice then they would not attend further meetings unless the Chinese Nationalist members of the commission were denied seats.

Russia is backing the Communist regime in China.

When the commission convened today, the Russian members were absent.

Alexandria Utility Tax Bill Is Voted

By a Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2.—The Virginia Senate today passed the Clarke bill to allow Alexandria City Council to levy a tax on public utilities bills.

Immediately after a 34-1 favorable vote, the Senate asked "early consideration" of the measure by the House.

Only Senator Earl Fitzpatrick, of Roanoke, voted against the bill, introduced by Senator Andrew W. Clarke, of Alexandria.

Fitzpatrick said he questioned the right of the General Assembly to grant a city authority to levy such a tax. The legality of Roanoke city taxes on hotel rooms, cigarettes and floral designs is being tested in the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

The Clarke bill would give Alexandria City Council the power "to impose, levy and collect a tax on the amount paid for use within the city of water, electricity, gas, telephones and any other public utility service." A 5 percent tax is contemplated by the city.

The Senate also passed, without opposition, the Clarke bill to raise the salary of members of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors from $1200 to $2400 a year.

Advanced to position for passage Friday by the House were two measures of interest to nearby Washington.

One is a bill offered by Delegates J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm of Arlington to permit the county to install and operate parking meters on State highways.

Rivka Broida Gives Recital At Embassy

By Paul Hume

Rivka Gwily-Broido played a piano recital last night in the Embassy of Israel.

The gifted young pianist completed her study of the instrument some years ago in Vienna. From there the exigencies of war moved her to Israel and then to the United States. These disrupting factors left no time for piano practice.

Therefore it was a return to concert playing that occupied the audience last evening. Rivka Broido has sound, inner musical talent. Her natural instincts guide her to the right solution of many problems confronting pianists.

Her tone is multicolored, her conception of music a mature and sound one. She never forces the piano and her technical gifts are solid. Not the least of these are the well proportioned scales she commands so easily.

Her demanding program included a C Minor prelude and fugue of Bach and a Mozart Fantasy in the same key. The Bach suffered from initial nervousness but the Mozart came off cleanly with fine style.

Schubert's A Minor sonata, Opus 143, has a great rushing finale but its slow movement is too extended for the fine melody with which it opens. In this, as in Ravel's Sonatine, the artist overworked her pedal to the general obscuring of both line and fundamental rhythm.

Her Chopin group included the B Flat Polonaise, the waltz in A Minor, and one of the F Minor etudes. Each of these was understated but that is a lesser fault in Chopin playing. The waltz, however, is so profound an utterance that it needed more space.

Two melodies from Israel history closed the concert. With time for study and practice, Mrs. Broido can become what she has obviously been, a satisfying artist and musician.

$5000 Judgment Entered in Favor Of Burned Boy

A consent judgment for $5000 was entered yesterday in District Court in favor of a 9-year-old boy for burns he suffered in 1947 and which kept him in a hospital for a year.

He is James P. Adkins, of 4609 3rd pl. sw. The defendant was Starbright Cleaners, Inc., 1018 9th st. nw.

According to court papers, James was playing with matches in an alley in the back of the cleaners when 'highly inflammable" refuse ignited. When the boy attempted to stamp out the flames, he was badly burned about the legs and back.

Gaming Policy Study Asked In Maryland

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2—A new kind of gambling investigation has been asked by two Maryland legislators.

They want Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., to appoint a commission to study the State's policy as to legislation "involving any element gambling." They hope by such a study to bring about uniformity in types of gambling permitted in Maryland, and perhaps increase the State's revenues at the same time.

Sponsors of the measure, introduced in the House of Delegates as a joint resolution today, are two Baltimore delegates. J. Raymond Buffington, jr., and Chester W. Tawney. Both are considered anti-administration Democrats. They said it would be introduced in the Senate later.

Buffington explained the resolution is "definitely not anti-gambling. If we are going to have slot machines one place, we might as well have them in all the counties."

Quantico Rent Charges Hit

for State-wide abolition of rent controls.

A public official, a rent control board chairman, and two housewives pleaded the case of Arlington, Fairfax and Alexandria for retention of controls until abolished on the local level.

One witness claimed there is no housing shortage in Greater Washington and no need for controls in Virginia.

But "local option" advocates faced strong opposition from other areas of the State at a public hearing before a joint committee on general laws, attended by about 300 persons and lasting three hours.

The heated debate saw a score of witnesses appear on both sides, with the weight in numbers apparently favoring State-wide abolition of controls.

The only opponent of rent control in the Virginia area near Washington was Rufus S. Lusk, who said he had been a real estate analyst for 25 years in Greater Washington.

"The amount of housing in northern Virginia has exceeded the population by almost 25 percent," Lusk said, "July, we will have enough housing for 1,500,000 persons in Greater Washington, with only 1,400,000 persons living there."

Removal of rent controls will "bring back competition between landlord and landlord to get tenants," he added. "Now there isn't a semblance of any kind of housing shortage."

Daniel A. Dugan, chairman of the Arlington County Board said, he represented 125,000 people of whom 60,000 rent their homes.

He asked the committee not to enact the bill proposed by Delegate John B. Boatwright, of Buckingham, which would sweep all remnants of controls in Virginia off the books.

"Rents in Arlington would skyrocket if decontrolled now," Dugan declared. "Many sharpsters in the county would double their rents particularly those birds from out of the State who own rental property in the county."

Conrad Reid, chairman of the Arlington-Alexandria Rent Control Advisory Board, presented a resolution adopted by his board January 31 asking that the Boatwright bill be rejected.

An example of "what happens when some units in Arlington are permitted to go off rent control" was seen in 1948, he said. Certain units were then exempt from controls, and apartments "went from $47.50 a month to $85 a month between Sunday and Monday," he declared.

Mrs. Donald R. Murtha, representing the Fairlington Citizens Association, said "there are lots of houses we could get if we wanted to pay $125."

Race Relations Steadily Improve, Baldwin Finds

America's attitude on race relations is steadily improving, Roger N. Baldwin, chairman of the International League for the Rights of Man, declared last night.

He pointed to the broad distribution of three recent films, "Lost Boundaries," "Home of the Brave," and "Pinky," all on the racial theme, as evidence of this, and added that court decisions have contributed as well.

Baldwin, longtime head of the American Civil Liberties Union, told a meeting of the D. C. Chapter of the American Association of Social Workers, that it is necessary to support progressive forces as a way of bulwarking against Communism. The program was held in the Federal Security Building, 100 attending.

16 Nearby County Bills Planned

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2.—At least 16 local measures affecting Prince Georges or Montgomery County will be brought before this "short" session of the Maryland General Assembly.

Whether the bills will be considered or blocked by the rules committees of both houses is as yet an open question.

The 1950 session of the Legislature has been restricted to consideration of the fiscal affairs of the State, emergency matters or matters affecting the general public welfare.

One of the Prince Georges bills would return authority for making all sewer and water connections in the county to the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. Some of the work is now done by private contract.

The Montgomery County delegation seeks an amendment to the State constitution on condemnation proceedings. It would permit either the State or any county to start construction work on a project as soon as it has paid money into court for property to be condemned. Purpose of the amendment is to avoid long delays while litigation is in process over condemnation proceedings.

Here are the other bills sponsored by the two delegations:

PRINCE GEORGES

To permit a referendum in Riverdale on the question of increasing the town fire tax from 5 to 10 cents per $100 assessed value.

To permit a referendum in Bowie to levy a 10-cent fire tax in the First Precinct of the 14th Election District.

To permit an increase in the tax rate of the town of Edmonston from a 50 cents per $100 value maximum to a 90 cents per $100 maximum.

To permit a referendum on changes in the Bowie town charter.

To increase the Bowie tax rate from a 30-cent to 60-cent maximum.

To permit Hyattsville to undertake street, sewer and storm sewer construction when 51 percent of owners of abutting property consent.

To give the Mayor and Council of Hyattsville authority to acquire property for off-street parking by purchase, lease or condemnation.

MONTGOMERY

To provide a second Montgomery County Circuit Court jury panel and to increase the names on each list from 200 to 300.

To increase the Montgomery County effective January 1, and furnish him an automobile.

To amend the law relating to chartered counties to give county councils additional powers to submit bond issues to residents for referenda.

To bring children suffering from cerebral palsy within the laws relating to education of handicapped children.

To provide that the Mayor of Kensington shall be paid $125 a year and members of the Kensington Council $5 for each meeting they attend. At present town officials get no pay.

To make it unlawful to discharge firearms within one-quarter of a mile of the limits of any incorporated place or within shooting distance of any inhabited building in the State.

Legislature Rocked by Rules Fight

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2 (AP).—Tension tightened in Maryland's Legislature today and caused one leader to say he thought some people are trying to wreck it.

With the session only two days old, the issue out in front was just what kind of laws can be passed in the 30-day meeting of 1950.

Administration leaders in the House staved off an attempt to deprive the rules committee of the right to "screen" all new bills. But anti-administration Democrats, supported by several Republicans, laid plans to try again Friday.

An administration spokesman in the House made this remark to newsmen:

"An attempt is being made by a group here to wreck this session of the Legislature."

"Like Powder Keg"

One of the veteran House Republicans, Delegate Whitworth (R., Allegany), commented:

"This house is like a powder keg that may explode any minute."

As the pull-and-tug continued, veteran observers pointed out that this is the first time a regular legislative session has been held in an election year.

Meanwhile, Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R., Allegany) laid some parliamentary groundwork for attacks on any barrier the Senate rules committee may erect against nonemergency measures.

With other committee members, Senate President Byrnes (D., Balto. Fifth) and Majority Leader Sothoron (D., Prince Georges), he voted to release a bill to revise the pay of members of the State board of pharmacy.

Asks For Explanation

No sooner had it been reported to the Senate floor and referred to the finance committee than Kimble asked Byrnes to explain why it should be considered at this 30-day session.

A constitutional amendment calling short sessions in even-numbered year limits action to fiscal measures, acute emergencies and matters of "general public welfare."

Byrnes said the pharmacy bill fell under the "general welfare provision."

Apparently seeking a precedent to support any future bills of his own, Kimble opposed Byrnes and Sothoron in committee when they voted to hold back five measures, including three to authorize Baltimore municipal bond issues totaling 56 million dollars.

Adopted, 57-56

The House rule giving the already powerful rules committee the right to take a look at all bills introduced yesterday by a 57-56 vote.

It was termed the "crux of the whole 1950 session" by Majority Leader Pumphrey (D., Prince Georges). Pumphrey contended that it is necessary to have some sort of a "clearing house" to screen legislation during the short session.

Senator Phoebus (R., Somerset) introduced a bill which would freeze all public utility rate increases for a year, unless an emergency developed. He also proposed a veterans' bonus bill. But he sidestepped the question of how to pay for it.

Post Named Defendant in $150,000 Suit

The Washington Post has been named defendant in a libel suit filed by A. Gwynn Bowie, State's attorney for Prince Georges County.

Contending he was libeled in a story carried April 23, 1949, by The Washington Post, Bowie asks $150,000 damages and costs.

The suit was filed Tuesday in Prince Georges County Circuit Court at Upper Marlborough.

Constitution Day Asked

Representative Talle (R., Iowa) yesterday introduced a bill to make September 17 in each year a legal holiday to be known as Constitution Day.

Police Private Gets TV Set On Retirement

Police Pvt. Bruce Black, 55, who has handled from one million to 1½ million dollars in property annually in the office of the chief property clerk was presented a television set yesterday by associates on his retirement.

Pvt. Black

A member of the force since October 8, 1919, he has served for the past 12 years in the property clerk's office. Inspector Robert Pearce, who heads that office, said Black has done oustanding work in a very responsible job.

In addition to handling the valuables, he has conducted sales for the department. He formerly served in various precinct stations and also briefly as a motorcycle officer.

Private Black lives with his wife at 303 Shepherd st. nw. He said he has no particular plans for his retirement except to "take it easy" and enjoy his TV set.

Ohio River Over Its Banks At Cincinnati

By The Associated Press

The fast-rising Ohio River spilled over its banks at Cincinnati yesterday. Flood threats grew more acute in Kentucky and West Virginia.

In the latter State, four persons drowned in flood waters.

Bitter cold clung to the northern plains and northwest States, but winter pulled its punches in most other sections of the country.

Some business houses closed in Ripley, Ohio, because of high water, but observers looked for no serious damage. Evacuations were stepped up in southeastern Kentucky, where the Cumberland River is on the rise. Rising temperatures melted away much of the ice sheath covering northern Texas. The temperature plumeted to 40 below zero in Seneca, Oreg.

Everybody Gets in the Act On Groundhog Day

Depending on what part of town he was in, Mr. Groundhog probably saw his shadow yesterday. In the northern section of the city it was sunny in the afternoon. The Weather Bureau registered only two scant breaks in the overcast, about 3:30 and 4 p. m.

But whether or not he was frightened back into his hole for six weeks of cold weather, everyone else got into the act.

News photographers went to the Zoo and popped flashbulbs at a woodchuck, alias groundhog—inside a building.

Wire service reporters wrote learned pieces about Candlemas Day, which is also groundhog day, tracing it back before the Christian era.

A couple of Pennsylvania representatives got up on the House floor and argued whose district has the original and authoritative groundhog. An Arkansas representative then put in his quarter's worth about how an Arkansas houn' dawg is a better weather predicter than any groundhog.

The Weather Bureau was neutral. It said the forecast for today is rain, ending early in the morning, followed by windy weather. Low early today is expected to be 38, with high in the middle 40's.

Columbia Knights Hosts To Philadelphia Group

Following a long standing custom, Columbia Commandery No. 2, Knights Templar, will be hosts to officers past and present of Mary Commandery No. 36 of Philadelphia at a dinner at 6 p. m. today in the Ambassador Hotel.

After the dinner Columbia Commandery will hold its regular meeting at 7:30 p. m. at 801 13th st. nw.

Mrs. Price Heads Youth Advisory Council

Mrs. Margaret Price, of Ann Arbor, Mich., yesterday was elected chairman of the Advisory Council on State and Local Action, newly formed group to work with the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Seventy-six delegates from 41 State and territorial planning committees concluded their two-day meeting here by organizing the advisory council.

The council is expected to stir grassroots interest in the conference, leaders said.

The conference was formed "to consider how we can develop in children the mental, emotional and spiritual qualities essential to individual happiness and to responsible citizenship, and what physical, economic and social conditions are deemed necessary to this development."

Four vice-chairmen of the advisory council were also elected yesterday. They are: Rev. Walter K. Kerr, of Kerrville, Tex.; Burton W. Taylor, of Brunswick, Me.; Mrs. Helen C. Cathcart, of the Virgin Islands, and Michael Schapiro of Portland, Ore.

HEIDI

better than ever

— appreciates the popular reception that you and other Washingtonians have given to its—

If you're looking for a dessert for dinner, supper, teatime or any other festive occasion — try this —

CHEESE CAKE

MADE ONLY FROM THE CHOICEST INGREDIENTS

100% Kraft's Philadelphia CREAM CHEESE

100% Sealtest HEAVY CREAM

There's cheese cake—and there's CHEESE CAKE! And HEIDI insists that only the finest ingredients shall go into "her" cheese cake. Instead of cottage cheese, HEIDI uses 100% Kraft's Philadelphia Cream Cheese—that accounts for its rich, smooth flavor. Instead of coffee or table cream, HEIDI uses 100% Chestnut Farms' Sealtest Heavy Cream—as fresh as tomorrow's dawn and as satisfying as a holiday dinner. Of course, like all HEIDI products, it's exclusively at GIANT!

GIANT TopNotch—ONLY the Top Quality Grades!

"None but the best" is a must in GIANT'S meat buying policy. Our meat sources are carefully selected. Our beef comes only from Western, corn-fed steers—young ones—to assure both its tenderness and its flavor. And, prepared by GIANT'S "Trim-Rite" method, most of the gristle and inedible portions are removed before the meat is weighed—thus assuring you of maximum meat value as well as appetizing taste.

U. S. Agency Cites Dangers In Drugs, Food

The Food and Drug Administration expressed alarm yesterday over an increase in the number of dangerous drugs it has found on the market.

It also noted a rise in the careless use of the deadly rat poison 1080.

However, the agency pointed out that "to the credit of the American food, drug and cosmetic industries as a whole," better supplies of these products are available than ever before.

In his annual report, Commissioner Paul B. Dunbar listed these as some of the difficulties he has run into in the past fiscal year:

1. The increase in coffee prices led to attempts to salvage coffee "to the last bean." The administration seized five large lots of sweepings, some of them containing "half their weight in unspeakable filth."

2. DDT is still found in dairy barns. The agency reaffirmed its position of last fall that there will be "no tolerance for DDT in milk, because it is a poison that is not required in good dairy farm practice."

Falls Church Teachers' Pay Raise Studied

The Falls Church School Board yesterday had under advisement a plan to up its teacher salary scale from a current $1900 to $3500 range to a new $2200 to $4200 scale.

The proposal was turned over to the school board by its salary committee at a meeting Wednesday night in the school board offices, 1057 West Broad st., Falls Church.

The proposed 14-year salary scale establishes a $2200 to $3800 range for teachers with two years normal school training; a $2400 to $4000 range for college graduates; and a $2600 to 4200 range for those with an M.A. degree. Under the plan the board would reserve the right to pay higher salaries than the scale upon the superintendent's recommendation.

The plan would add from $10,000 to $12,000 to the next school board budget if instituted all in one year, the board was told by John R. Miles, of its salary committee.

Miles said that the plan, if adopted, will probably go into effect next fall, in whole or in part.

Former Workers Get Retroactive Pay From CTC

Employes who left the Capital Transit Co. between July 1 and December 18 yesterday began collecting retroactive pay increases awarded on the latter date.

About $20,000 will be distributed among the 455 former employees, the company said.

At first the company refused to pay to the former employees the 10-cent hourly wage increase granted by an arbitration board retroactive to July 1.

But acquiescence followed a conference between W. F. Simms, president of the transit employes union local and J. A. B. Broadwater, company vice president and a member of the Florida group which recently brought control.

Waynick Not to Run For Senate This Year

By The Associated Press

Ambassador Capus Waynick said yesterday he may run for Governor of North Carolina in 1952 but won't run for the U. S. Senate this year.

The former North Carolina State Democratic chairman who now is U. S. Ambassador to Nicaragua made his announcement at a news conference.

Waynick said he will fly to Raleigh to talk with Governor Kerr Scott before returning to Nicaragua in a few days.

Gland Growth In Test Tube A Possibility

Can human glands or their tissues be grown in laboratories for later transplanting into the body?

Dr. Rolla E. Dyer, director of the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., told Congressmen that such a medical miracle is not so fantastic as it may sound.

He made the statement at a closed hearing before a House Appropriations Subcommittee on January 23. Transcript of the hearing was released for publication today.

Raising the possibility of laboratory growth and transplanting of glandular tissue to humans, Dr. Dyer answered his own question with the comment: "It may sound fantastic but I do not believe it is . . . I am speculating a little there."

Director of the research arm of United States Public Health Service, Dr. Dyer told the Congressmen that research in growing living tissue may prove its worth in cancer and diabetes studies and treatments. Already, he pointed out, cancer cells have been developed from normal cells in the laboratory experiments of Dr. Wilton Earle of the National Cancer Institute.

Dr. Earle has succeeded, the institute director said, in growing gland tissue "in quantity," after 10 years' work.

"In a diabetic, is it possible to look forward, or should we not look forward, to the possibility of being able to grow a pancreas gland and transplant it to some place in a human being?" Dr. Dyer said. "I do not know." Improper functioning of the pancreas produces diabetes.

Church Groups Praised for Aid to DPs

Church groups were praised last night for their assistance in carrying out the program of resettling more than 200,000 displaced persons in the United States.

Speaking at the annual roll call dinner of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society of the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, Ugo Carusi, chairman of the United States Displaced Persons Commission, said religious groups have "really done an outstanding job."

Even with the best possible law, resettlement of displaced persons would be a difficult job, he said, because it involves 200,000 individuals, with different backgrounds.

Some of the difficulties which have resulted from the program are due to the inability of DP's to "measure down" to the jobs they receive after their arrival in the United States, Carusi said.

In other cases, he continued, the situation changes between the time when the application for a DP is made and the time when the family arrives in the country.

Displaced persons, he said, do not need to be "coddled" or to receive special attention, but they do need understanding and "as much as human hands can give it, a sort of earthly salvation."

Suction Socket Limb Backed For Veterans

A suction socket artificial limb, free of the burdensome trappings of other false legs, has finally been approved by Veterans' Administration.

The clinically tested devices, VA officials announced yesterday, are being made available to eligible veterans with above-knee leg amputations considered "medically feasible" for fitting. They may be obtained through application at the VA.

The above-knee artificial leg differs from the conventional prosthesis in that it has no pelvic hinge or suspension harness. It is held to the stump by moderate suction created in the closed socket each time the leg is lifted from ground in walking.

VD Increase Reported Here During 1949

New cases of venereal disease reached an all-time high here last year, the Health Department announced yesterday.

At the same time, the department disclosed that penicillin injections would be given to all applicants at the main VD detection center, routinely and before diagnosis of infection.

Figures released by Dr. Taggart showed that during 1949 there were 19,418 new cases of venereal disease recorded in the District, an increase of 4.2 percent over 1948's record of 18,641. Gonorrhea, which generally succumbs to one injection of penicillin, led all the others, with 15,912 new cases recorded last year, to 15,177 in 1948.

Can't Recall Killing Father, Woman Says

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 2 (AP).—Carol Ann Paight tearfully testified today that she couldn't remember killing her incurably ill father.

The 21-year-old blonde, defending herself against a second-degree murder charge with a plea of temporary insanity, testified that she recalled hearing a physician tell her "dad is riddled with cancer."

"That's all I can remember," she said in a low voice.

With her lawyer, David Goldstein, spacing his questions to give her a chance to control herself, Carol Ann told an all-parent jury in the mercy murder trial that she loved her father, Police Sergt. Carl Paight.

"Do you remember shooting your father?" asked Goldstein, his voice carrying every corner of the hushed, crowded courtroom.

"No," Carol Ann whispered.

It was not until the next day, she said, that her memory began to return. She was able to recognize, she said, two policemen who had been posted as guards in her hospital room.

Hardly had she been sworn in when her calm deserted her completely.

Superior Court Judge John A. Cornell quickly suggested a recess.

"You saw Aunt Alice in a coffin withered away to almost nothing?" asked Goldstein.

Carol Ann nodded her head.

"Did you have a fear of cancer?"

"Yes, sir," she replied.

Previous witnesses had testified that fear of cancer had gripped her since childhood.

Two Discount Confession of Ex-GI Suicide

New Windsor, Md., Feb. 2 (AP). The former sergeant that Andrew Blasko's dying confession was supposed to "clear" said today "I don't know what the poor kid was talking about."

Blasko, a legless veteran, dictated his "confession" to a news photographer yesterday as he lay pinned beneath the wreckage of his car. Having had his say, Blasko, 25, shot himself to death.

Charles C. Lemmon, who runs a tavern here, said he must be the one who Blasko's eerie "confession" was to "clear."

The Norfolk, Va., former serviceman, who lost both legs in Germany, "confessed" he had spread reports about "Sergt Lemmons" flogging German prisoners, stealing a jeep load of cognac, running out on his platoon. These things, Blasko told Danville Bee Photographer John Tate, were not true.

Lemmon said apart from the fact that they weren't true, he had never heard of Blasko saying them. Though a "good boy" while serving with him, he must "have become a psycho," Lemmon declared.

Another member of Blasko's platoon, former Sergt. Carl R. Rackley, night auditor of Atlanta's Piedmont Hotel, said at Atlanta that there wasn't any basis for the "confession": "Never did I hear Blasko tell anything on Lemmon—he loved the guy."

Lemmon said he had seen Blasko last in December, 1944.

The amputee killed himself after his car was smashed near Danville, Va.

Woman, Spouse Put Intruder in the Dust

A 31-year-old housewife yesterday fought and helped capture a housebreaking suspect she feared would harm her two small children.

The valiant woman who said she feared questioning reporters more than her assailant is Mrs. Frances Stevens of 1428 Trinidad ave. ne.

The Washington Post

MRS. WILLIAM STEVENS
. . . Five feet 9; 147 pounds

The intruder, John E. Wilson, 27, of 1660 Gales st. ne., was held under $3000 bond for grand jury action after he waived preliminary hearing in Municipal Court.

The children, 3-year-old Jerry and 19-month-old Ronald were sleeping in the downstairs bedroom with her, she said, when she awakened to find a tall man near her.

Thought It Was Sleepwalker

She said that at first she thought it was someone in the house sleepwalking but then she saw what she took to be a knife in the intrduer's hand.

She quoted Wilson as saying:

"Be quiet. How much money do you have in the house? Don't go get your husband. You don't want to see the little boys hurt."

Mrs. Stevens said she saw that Wilson's weapon was "only" a screwdriver, and she grabbed, kicked, scratched and screamed.

Her husband, William, in an upstairs bedrooms, started down the stairs.

"Then," he said, I saw that man about to hit my wife with the screwdriver which I thought was a knife. I dove down the steps and we all went sprawling."

While the three were tussling in the street, reinforcements came. It was Stevens mother, 51-year-old Mrs. Leila Stevens, who lives next door.

When police arrived, Mrs. Leila Stevens had a headlock. William had one arm, the one with the screwdriver. Mrs. Frances Stevens had the other arm.

Votes That Count

Senate passage of the Lodge-Gossett resolution for a constitutional amendment to overhaul the presidential electoral system is a tremendous boost for the influence of the individual voter. The present system—in which dummy electors are not really responsible to the voters and all a State's votes are thrown to the presidential candidate polling a plurality of even one popular vote—has long been a dangerous anachronism.

Under the amendment approved by the Senate, States would retain their electoral votes (apportioned according to representation in Congress), but these votes would be divided on the basis of the popular vote in each State. A not incidental advantage of the change is the provision that if no candidate received 40 percent of the total electoral vote, a joint session of the House and Senate would choose between the two top contenders. Strict majority vote would prevail in the joint session. This safeguard would do away with the present rule that tie elections are decided by the House alone with each State delegation having 1 vote—a device that has been responsible for some frightful miscarriages in the past.

Like all good compromises, the amendment is one whereby each side stands to gain something. At the political level, the almost unanimous Democratic support undoubtedly reflects a feeling that the South would obtain increased influence in the Democratic Party. Traditionally, the solid South has been discounted as in the bag. If electoral votes now are to be cast according to the proportion of popular votes instead of units, Southern Democrats will have a lever with which to command party attention. This same factor means that the Republicans, who have written off the South as hopeless, now have a great deal to win—for Southern Republican votes which previously have meant nothing might be just enough to tip the balance in a close election.

In marginal States which are usually closely contested both parties have an interest in an equitable division of electoral votes. It is true that some of the large pivotal States, such as New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and California, would lose some of their disproportionate influence. Even here, however, the amendment would tend to strengthen the two-party system by lessening the necessity for deals with splinter parties. It is to the credit of both Senators from New York and from California that they recognized principle in voting for the amendment.

The real genius of the amendment is that it would make more areas of the country important. By this fact alone it would change the whole nature of presidential campaigning. Candidates from other than pivotal States would have a better chance of obtaining the nomination. More than this, the individual voter everywhere would know that his vote counted. This would be as important a change as has come about in the political system in many a decade.

To Senator Lodge belongs the accolade for persistence in pushing the resolution to a favorable vote. We hope Representative Gossett will enjoy similar success in the House. If the House leadership will bring to bear on the Rules Committee the same determination shown in the Senate, the chances are bright for House approval. Then this victory for sound and fair procedure can be dispatched for ratification by State Legislatures, which in all probability will follow the statesmanship of their representatives in Congress.

Closed Door

Senator McCarran has added, let us presume in the interest of national security, an interesting new gimmick to the Displaced Persons Act. The amendments reported after so much delay by the Senate Judiciary Committee supplement the safeguards of the existing law against admission of undesirable persons by providing that "no visas shall be issued under the provisions of this act, as amended, to any person who is or has been a member of the Communist Party or a Marxist, or of any organization which has been designated by the Attorney General of the United States as a Communist organization . . ."

What interests us most in this catalogue is the prohibition against any person who is or has been a Marxist. This means, of course, any person who is or has been a supporter of the present government of England. It means the entire body of Social Democrats who provided the most effective resistance to Hitler before the war and are now the most vigorous opponents of communism in many European countries. It means persons like Leon Blum and George Bernard Shaw and Pietro Nenni. In short, it probably means anyone to the left of Friedrich von Hayek or Ludwig von Mises. If Senator McCarran had only thought to bar, in addition, any person who is or has been a Keynesian, he could have double-locked the door against anyone critical in any degree of the economic status quo ante bellum.

The ban on Marxists poses an obvious administrative impossibility. The term is too vague to convey any meaning, and individual political sympathies are too inscrutable to be determined by any consular examination. We hope the Senate will strike out this stipulation, however, not merely because it is absurd but even more because it is extremely dangerous. The punishment of unorthodox opinion is usually begun in relation to some helpless group such as aliens seeking admission to the United States. But once accepted, it is liable to be applied at home, say, to persons seeking employment in the Government. Marxists (or non-Marxists) who want to overthrow the Government of the United States by force can properly be excluded from this country, as they are under existing law. Marxists who believe in a peaceful change of the economic system can be excluded only at peril of imposing a sterile conformity.

Mobilizing The Nation's Wisdom

Exception has been taken to the abrupt manner of President Truman's H-bomb announcement. It is felt that the decision called for fireside procedure. Perhaps. Clearly the ramifications of the historic decision need to be known in a society of sovereign people. But there is another way of spreading enlightenment. That way is the mobilization of the Nation's wisdom for the purpose of exploring and then explaining the implications of the H-bomb decision. Names will occur to everybody. America, happily, has a gallery of public men in whom it has confidence. What is needed is half a dozen men of the reputation of, to think of names at random, Stimson, Conant, Vandenberg, Eisenhower, Vannevar Bush, Sproul, Barnard, Will Clayton, Ethridge, Reuther, Kline, Slichter, Oppenheimer. The device is not unknown—it is a Kitchen Cabinet, but one that must be writ as large as these urgent and momentous times demand.

A latter-day development is the wide gulf that is growing between the Government and people of the United States. The gulf has been remarkably in evidence in the case of the H-bomb talk prior to the President's announcement. There was the embarrassed interview that David Lilienthal gave before quitting office as AEC chief. How much should the people know? When our governors begin to ask this question, they bend over backward and say nothing. Or they do what Mr. Lilienthal did—content themselves with what Walt Whitman called "hints and indirections." Most of Lilienthal's hearers, who had to transcribe what he said to their readers, frankly did not know what he was talking about. All they could do was to make a stab for the key to the Lilienthal shorthand.

This double-talk on the H-bomb has long been noted in Europe. On January 13 it was reported in the London Times that there had been free talk about the H-bomb in Europe since the issue in Vienna of Hans Thirring's pamphlet in the series of Phoenix Buecherei in 1946. "Yet the belief persists [in America]," said the newspaper, "that the secret of the plutonium bomb has been exchanged for the secret of the hydrogen bomb." Things would be easier, proceeded the commentator, "if there were less secrecy about a nonexistent secret."

Voices in influential quarters have not been lacking in protest against senseless and provocative secrecy. Take, for instance, Senator McMahon, chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee in Congress. From time to time last year he publicly deplored the apartness of Government and people on atomic matters. His attitude was that the separation was becoming too profound. The example he gave was the loss to the people of any facts by which they could keep a check on their own defense establishment. In the old days they knew the divisions they had, the number of battleships, and the rest of it. Having this information, they were in a position to form an intelligent judgment of their own security. In this atomic age, however, the number of atom bombs is withheld, with the result that neither the public nor their representatives in Congress have the foggiest idea of the state of the national defense. Senator McMahon wondered whether this was wise. We think it is unwise, but, be this as it may, the point is that the public is completely in the dark about the national security.

It is our conviction that the people don't want to know everything. They appreciate the need for military secrecy. They don't want to know, in the cry of the newsboy, "all about it." They simply want to be told, it seems to us, where do they go from here. They can't be expected to be kept on an "Aunty knows best" basis. But they will take a lot on faith so long as they feel that the pregnant decisions of the H-bomb age are being made with the aid of persons in whom they have faith. There is the analogy of the A-bomb. Vannevar Bush explains in his fine book Modern Arms and Free Men the act of faith with which Congress authorized the manufacture of the A-bomb. Why did Congress throw billions into the race for the atomic bomb? He answers:

> Because there were leaders of Congress who had the confidence of their fellows and because those leaders trusted the elder statesman who was then Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson . . . did they understand the whole subject of atomic energy? Not by a jugful.

Note the stress that Dr. Bush puts on Mr. Stimson as an elder statesman rather than as War Secretary.

All the great leaders in American history have gotten their strength from trust in the people. This was the theory underlying the periodic chore of reporting on the state of the Nation. Abraham Lincoln was first and foremost an educator, if not a preacher. Theodore Roosevelt said you never went wrong when you relied upon the common sense of the people. Elihu Root spelled this out. The danger of war in a democracy, he said, lay in mistaken beliefs. Far from thinking of this as a handicap in the conduct of foreign affairs, he said, here was an opportunity, for while "there is no human way to prevent a King from having a bad heart, there is a human way to prevent a people from having an erroneous opinion." He went on:

> That way is to furnish the whole people, as a part of their ordinary education, with correct information about their relations to other peoples, about the limitations upon their own rights, about their duties to respect the rights of others about what has happened and is happening in international affairs, and about the effects upon national life of the things that are done or refused as between nations; so that the people themselves will have the means to test misinformation and appeals to prejudice and passion based upon error.

Never was this counsel more pertinent. There is a vacuum between Government and people. The Russians are all ready to fill the vacuum with propaganda aimed at confusing the American people, at spreading fear and distrust, at setting Americans against Americans. Solidarity on fundamentals is the only answer to this subtle technique. But unity is not promoted by a Government which shows doubt over its own decisions, which cannot explain them in the context of Whither America, which betrays a lack of faith in the people's intelligence. On the contrary, the national resolve to combine a firm front and a free society is eroded, and if this goes far the military machine will then be found to have been built on sand.

Here, then, is the reason why at this time a committee of our leading men should be set up. The people will be satisfied not to know if they know that these men know. These men should be made privy to the secrets that properly should be withheld from the people. They need to be acquainted with them for the task with which they ought to be endowed. Then there would be remitted to them such suggestive plans as Senator McMahon made yesterday in the Senate for analysis and comment and recommendation. Then they could afford counsel. Then they could give a Report to the American People on the true implications of the H-bomb decision.

It is a plunge on which this Nation is now embarked. But the plunge cannot be made without the open eyes of the people and their support. Without both, the plunge might be the plunge of the Gadarene Swine.

Theocratic State

It is quite true that we picked up the Indian designation of the government of Pakistan as theocratic by way of contrasting it with the secular government which is the established aim of India. A communication on this page disputes the ascription. In so doing a narrow definition of theocracy is relied on: rule of god. But the word is properly used in a more general sense as a state run on religious principles. Funk & Wagnalls says it means "a government among men recognizing the immediate sovereignty of God and its revelations as its civil law." Oxford has a close approximation: "A form of government in which God or a deity is recognized as the king or immediate ruler, and his laws are taken as the statute book of the kingdom." One among many illustrations is the Puritan Commonwealth of New England.

Pakistan is still without a constitution, but there can be no doubt about intentions, if declarations have any meaning. For instance, the Prime Minister, Liaquat Ali Kahn, sometime ago told the Muslim League, "We, that is to say, the Muslim League, are pledged to make Pakistan a Muslim state and run it on Islamic principles." Pakistan is regarded as "a homeland where Muslims could live in their own way." The Prime Minister rang the changes on this theme, calling Pakistan a "laboratory where we can practice the Islamic principles," and thus "demonstrate to the world that what Islam had taught 13 centuries ago was needed as much now as it was then."

The Premier's theme is borne out in conversations with Pakistanis. It is not uncommon to hear that "Pakistan is Allah, Mohammed, and the Koran," and not the least to feel that this animates the Pakistanis are the Hindus left in Pakistan. They know it will be better for them if they become Muslims. Islamistan is projected as part of the program—the reason that Turkey, with its studied disinterest in things smacking of Pan Islamism, is cold to overtures from Karachi which base their appeals on this aim.

WINTER ALMANAC

We miss the flame, we miss the soothing green
Of summer when the year runs to a close
Through ice-bound channels where taut birches lean
In white confusion by the drifted snows.
Forget those shining hills we walked among,
The blue grape, sweetest of the fruit we ate,
The dove-cote amorous with constant song
Lest winter skies seem doubly desolate.

Assuage the heart with omens of a spring
Already born of darkness, rain and sleet,
Already waiting for the lark to sing,
Already budding under the white feet
Of frost and if the heart must own this hour
From it shall rise a pure, a dazzling flower.

"Chrysler Pensions"

Your editorial of January 29 on "Chrysler Pensions" is appreciated because it will help to clear away confusion and misunderstanding created by the false propaganda the Chrysler Corp. has published in page ads throughout the Nation.

May I correct your statement that the union objects "to a five-year limitation on the pension contract and to provisions for reopening the contract prior to its termination."

We have stated our willingness to accept a five-year contract for a sound pension plan. Possibly you have in mind our refusal to freeze present working contract for five years with reopening limited to wages only. Day-to-day working conditions in the Chrysler plants require revision of many provisions in the present contract which expires by its terms on August 1, 1950.

Chrysler management's offer consisted merely of a 3-cent-an-hour "pay as you go" pension proposal. It was unsound for the reasons you well state. Even if its offer amounted to 10 cents, we would still insist upon the funding which you and others who have examined the matter properly describe as essential to any sound plan.

It is obvious that the Chrysler management did not really believe that such a 3-cent-an-hour "pay as you go" offer would persuade the Chrysler workers to forego rectification of the many abuses practiced under the present contract. The conclusion is inescapable that Chrysler management, for reasons best known to itself, did not want a settlement on the equities and the facts. They admitted in negotiations the corporation's abundant ability to pay the 10 cents an hour increase necessary to provide reliable pension and medical care programs.

Boston Exclusion

Boston, home of the Tea Party, Massacre, and other milestones in the democratic tradition, has distinguished itself again.

In Honolulu, or perhaps Santa Barbara, American soil which knew the Jap onslaught, one might expect bitter resentment and misgivings about dimming past enmities and building from the ruins of the debacle a new Pacific alignment.

But in Boston, selected by General MacArthur as a fitting example of democracy for a group of visitors from the Japanese National Diet, 11 to 8 it was decreed to deny admittance to former enemies (including a Harvard man).

With such implicit lack of faith, hope, or a sense of equality it is difficult to envisage practicable world comity, to see how just peace treaties can be concluded, or when if ever Babel can be resolved into One World. Evidently Boston's city fathers would enlist the predatory hydrogen atom as an ally, rather than pledge their faith in the air vapors of healthy democratic debate. P. L. S.

Practical Brotherhood

During the month of February much will be said about brotherhood. For 14 years the National Conference of Christians and Jews has been sponsoring programs on the intellectual level against prejudice and bigotry. There is no doubt that the conference has helped the understanding of thousands as to the cause, effect and outcomes of racial or religious hatreds.

But after 14 years isn't it time to proceed beyond the discussion and workshop stages into the field of practical demonstrations of brotherhood?

I suggest realistic approaches to brotherhood by individuals and groups using Brotherhood Week as the beginning of a campaign of projects to eliminate segregation such as the following:

1. Discuss with the boys clubs integration of Negro citizens and youth in the policy-making boards and participating programs.
2. Help our transit companies to solve some of their difficulties by hiring colored men as operators of buses and streetcars.
3. Persuade the medical professional societies to live up to their supposed scientific training by accepting colored doctors into their organization as professional brothers.
4. Help the D. C. Recreation Department to further implement its liberal racial policies.

Jammed Phones

I would like to ask one question of Joseph A. Beirne, a member of that distinguished and privileged class, the privileged American labor leader: What protection have I, and millions of other people who have possible emergencies necessitating use of the telephone, of receiving help if phones are purposefully jammed? How can phones break down and still be answered? K. R. BROWN.

Transit Economics

Just how "M. E. H.'s" letter published January 26 in reply to mine of January 17 added up Ford, A. & P., duPont, a subsidy, and 7½ percent dividends and still got public transit ownership is a bit puzzling, but no more so than the discovery that I had applied for charity. I merely ask if Capital Transit is not jeopardizing its franchise with a trend that accommodates fewer passengers at higher rates in a growing community. The proposal by Representative Klein indicates as much. CTC's take-it-or-leave-it attitude is not conducive to public support.

CTC provides two kinds of service—first class, and something else. Terminal-to-terminal riders travel farther, faster, and more comfortably at the same rates than people who travel only parts of routes. The intermediate rider gets only the leftovers. tI is not unusual to find them waiting 20-30 minutes to squeeze on vehicles that were loaded downtown. I suggest that fares commensurate with service rendered are a possible solution.

Distance and speed are usually important factors in determining transportation costs. But here, a five-block ride down F st. costs as much as a 10-mile trip across town. The "short-riders" pay enough; by comparison, "express-riders" get a bargain.

Eliminating the weekly pass would undoubtedly slow down schedules and reduce transit miles per manhour. Both are undesirable and there is no assurance that gross receipts will be affected favorably. I seldom exceed 14 rides per week but the convenience of the pass is worth an extra fare to me. My case may not be typical, but I would use fewer fares on a token-basis. J. T. REYNOLDS.

Theocracy In Pakistan

Your admirable January 27 editorial, "India: Republic," shows on the whole a discerning grasp of the situation in that part of the world. It however, contains one statement which calls for comment. You have said: "Pakistan is Muslim, or theocratic; India is secular." It would almost seem that according to you "Muslim" and "theocratic" are interchangeable terms. I hope that is not your meaning.

As the term "theocracy" has been used loosely by Indian propaganda with reference to Pakistan—mainly as a term of abuse—it would be useful to scrutinize briefly its meaning. In a literal sense, "theocracy" means the rule of God. No harm in that. Political scientists and historians, however, use it as a technical term to designate the rule of the church or an organized ordained priesthood, which performs the functions of government in the name of God. The best example was the papal state before the unification of Italy. The Vatican is a living example. In this technical sense, theocracy cannot be applied to any government by laymen. And Pakistan is governed only by laymen. What is more, in this sense no Muslim country can be a "theocracy," for the simple reason that Islam does not possess a priesthood.

Next, I invite you to examine the government system in Pakistan as at present constituted. Pakistan's constitution is still in the process of framing. For the present it is being governed under the Government of India Act of 1935, as amended by the Independence Act of 1947, just as India was being governed till the other day when she proclaimed herself a republic. I wonder if you can give the instance of a single law that makes any distinction between citizen and citizen on the basis of religion? To give you an interesting recent example, the government of the Punjab introduced prohibition against Muslims only. On a test case being brought before the High Court, it ruled the ordinance as ultra vires, inasmuch as it distinguished one body of citizens from another on the basis of religion.

There remains the question: Why did Muslims insist on establishing a separate state of their own? The answer lies in the intolerance and narrowmindedness of Hindus, whose 3 to 1 majority in an undivided India reduced Muslims to a position of utter helplessness and brought them face to face with the prospect of a complete annihilation of their culture, language and other heritage which they consider their proud possessions. Of course Pakistan has a majority of Muslims; similarly India has a majority of Hindus.

A provision has been incorporated in the Indian constitution tabooing beef. The fact is that the cow is sacred to Hindus and worshiped by them. But the reason stated in the constitution is that the cow is a "useful animal," presumably to preserve India's secularity. It might be of interest to your readers to know how the tabooing of beef affects Muslims. They have been deprived of an important article of their diet and thousands upon thousands of Muslim families have been deprived of their livelihood for which they depended on the butcher's trade.

Recognition Of China

By Marquis Childs

Parallel in Russia

POLICY-MAKERS here will not even attempt to guess when the waiting period on Communist China is to end. The great land mass of China is now entirely controlled by a Communist government and Communist armies. The dust has long since settled.

Yet the outline of a positive policy that will encompass these enormous realities is not in sight. One reason is the deliberately provocative acts of the Communist regime in China, abetted and inspired apparently by Moscow.

The Kremlin does not want United States recognition of China, which would be the first step in a new policy. Neither does an important and highly articulate section of American public opinion.

An unhappy fact in the whole China business is the threat of a prolonged and divisive debate within this country. It is already developing into the kind of emotional dispute that has to do not so much with the realities in Asia as with attitudes and opinions here at home. This can mean interminable stalemate and, in the end, a net loss to America.

There is a parallel in recent history that should serve as an object lesson. From 1920 to 1933 the debate went on over whether the United States should recognize the Soviet Union. It gathered increasing acrimony and bitterness as the partisans on both sides grew more impassioned.

ONE OF the ardent advocates of recognition was William C. Bullitt, whom President Roosevelt sent to Moscow as the first Ambassador to Red Russia. The secret reports that Bullitt sent back to the State Department when he first went to Russia have just been made available. They throw a significant light on the attitude that Bullitt took with him on his mission.

The highest officials in the Soviet Union set out to woo him with their flattery. At that time Russia wanted to make large purchases in this country in order to push plans for speedy industrialization. His dispatches show that Bullitt, as a longtime advocate of Russian recognition, was a willing recipient of this flattery. Of his reception he noted:

"Kalinin (president of the Soviet All-Union Central Executive Committee) was very agreeable to me personally, saying that Lenin had talked to him about me on several occasions, and that he felt as if he were welcoming someone he had known for a long time."

At a dinner in the Kremlin, Bullitt had a long talk with Stalin, who told him that although Roosevelt was the "leader of a capitalist nation," he was "one of the most popular men in the Soviet Union." As Bullitt was leaving, Stalin told him he would see him any time of the day or night and finally asked him if there was anything he personally could do to help the new American Ambassador.

IN THE Roosevelt files at Hyde Park, soon to be opened to researchers, are letters Bullitt wrote personally to the late President. These letters are said to go all-out for the Soviet Union, reflecting the flattering attention devoted by Stalin and other members of the Politburo to Bullitt.

It was understandable that Bullitt should react in this way. He had worked since World War I to bring about recognition of the Soviet Union. It was also understandable when he became disillusioned and reacted with the same emotionalism against Russia and everything Russian.

When the question of recognition gets tangled up in domestic politics, it is almost bound to take on emotional overtones. The real interests of this country are obscured by pros and cons that have little or nothing to do with America's gain or loss. Earlier recognition of the Soviet Union might have been achieved with less emotionalism if it had been understood that "recognition" is not a moral blessing bestowed on another country but the acknowledgment of a set of facts. We may like or dislike those facts, but there they are.

In his report on his three years as Ambassador to Moscow, Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith does not allow his own feelings to run away with him. Through his useful and important book runs a hardheaded realism that puts the interests of this country first and foremost.

We need more of that kind of realism. The Communists in China may make it impossible to accord recognition to their regime by repeated acts of deliberate defiance. But apart from such development, a prolonged debate over China that ignores the realities will, in my opinion, do great harm.

Children Burned

What a wonderful civilization we have when hundreds of children a year, under 5 years of age, are burned to death in this country. Why has there never been any Nation-wide agitation on this horror—a thousand times worse than infantile paralysis. Why no "documentary films" to show the dangers to those who don't realize it? Why no penalties under the law for persons who carelessly expose children to this fate? IVA J. GEARY.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Truman And The Bomb

ONE GREAT question has seemingly been answered by President Truman's announcement that he has ordered the manufacture of the hydrogen bomb. The trouble is that the President's laconic statement suggests at least three other major questions. The first question, moreover, is whether the President really means what he has been taken to mean.

He has, so he said, "directed the Atomic Energy Commission to continue its work on . . . the so-called hydrogen or super-bomb." As was reported in this space months ago, the Atomic Energy Commission has long been carrying on theoretical studies of the problems of hydrogen bomb manufacture. The debate within the Government has not been about whether this effort should continue. It has been about whether this effort should now be greatly intensified, in order to build a hydrogen bomb without further delay.

The cost of an intensified effort to build this terrible weapon has been very variously estimated. The opponents have put the cost at from two billion dollars to four billion dollars. The advocates have replied that the hydrogen bomb could be built for no more than 200 million dollars. No one until now has suggested that the AEC could pass from the phase of theoretical study into the phase of active hydrogen bomb-making without any additional outlay whatever. Yet it has been indicated that the President will not follow up his Tuesday statement with any request for a special appropriation.

DOES THIS mean that the hydrogen bomb really can be built without spending another dollar of Government funds? Or does it mean that the resources of the Atomic Energy Commission are now to be diverted from the manufacture of uranium-plutonium bombs (which also have immense military value) to the manufacture of hydrogen bombs? Or, finally, does it mean that the President has settled the dispute among his advisers by telling the Atomic Energy Commission to carry on as before?

If the President has not told the AEC to intensify its effort to build a hydrogen bomb, the advocates of building the bomb at once would seem to have been defeated at the White House. Yet this is the literal interpretation of the President's statement.

The second, and equally grave, question is whether, if built, the hydrogen bomb will have any military value to this country. The President is known to have on his desk a report from a number of the great scientists of the general advisory committeen of the Atomic Energy Commission. These men, who are not to be lightly disregarded, recommended against the hydrogen bomb project. It is also known that one of the major questions they raised related to our capability to deliver hydrogen bombs, or atomic bombs for that matter, to their destined targets. Specifically, it was claimed that the strengthening of Russia's air defenses would defeat our strategic air arm, as now constituted.

It is expected to take at least two years to build a hydrogen bomb. The strengthening of Russia's air defense will be completed within two years. If it is true that our strategic air arm will thus be prevented from delivering the newly made bombs, these weapons will serve only to give us a dangerous delusion of strength.

YET NO provision for radical strengthening and improvement of the strategic air arm is included in the defense budget. It may be said that it is the intention to deliver the hydrogen bomb in long-range guided missiles, such as can now be built in theory. Yet the defense budget also contains only routine appropriations for guided missile research and development. Infinitely larger outlays will certainly be needed for early production of usable long-range guided missiles.

Finally, the third question, and the most important question, concerns the meaning of the hydrogen bombs to every one of us. The accepted Government estimate is that if we can make a hydrogen bomb in two years, the Soviet Union can make such a bomb in four years. Dr. Harold Urey, no mean authority, has seen fit to repeat a report that the radioactive clouds from a few of these bombs could conceivably destroy all life on this continent.

Another competent authority has told these reporters that guided missiles bearing hydrogen bombs could quite easily be lobbed into all our great ports from submarines lying 200 miles offshore. A well-concerted surprise attack by several submarines would not only destroy all life and all the works of man in New York and San Francisco, Boston and Los Angeles; the radioactive by-products would be such, it was said, as to render the harbor areas dangerous to human life for thousands of years thereafter.

THIS ALONE would mean defeat in war. The Soviet rearmament effort is concentrated, among other things, on building improved guided missiles and the novel German-model long-range, radarproof submarines. The Navy today has virtually no capability to combat these submarines. Yet the defense budget does not provide funds to give the Navy this vital capability, important also for so many other reasons, for many years to come.

Dr. Urey and the other authority quoted may both be wrong, since they have not had the same opportunities to know the facts as the Government official advisers. Even so, however, the same specter leers out at every turn in any inquiry into the hydrogen-bomb problem. The whole strategic situation is radically changing. It is not clear that we are adjusting our effort to these changes. It is also probable that when potential enemies possess these bombs, the danger to us will far outweigh gain from possessing the bombs ourselves.

The specter cannot be exorcised by avoiding the manufacture of hydrogen bombs while others build them. It can only be exorcised by a plain statement of all the facts from the President. On the basis of such a statement, this Nation can then decide, as a free and informed people, what our course shall be. What the President has said is not one third, or one tenth, of what it is his bounden duty to say.

degenerative disorder of the kidneys, since last September.

"Dr. Glick told me he was doing all he could for Joan, but that it might help if she caught the measles," Mrs. Anderson said.

The pediatrician confirmed the mother's statement. Medical authorities, he explained, have known for some time now that virus diseases such as measles sometimes have beneficial effects against the kidney ailment, even to the point of reversing the degeneration and curing the child.

In nephrosis, the kidney tubules fail to function normally. The body loses blood nutrients, with subsequent dangers of anemia, peritonitis, pneumonia and other infections.

Except for paleness, Joan looked healthy yesterday as she snuggled up to Theresa. The older girl, in contrast, shunned light and was watery-eyed and weak with the measles which first broke out Tuesday morning.

Yesterday's medical experiment was made public when Mrs. Anderson appealed to Milton Q. Ford, disk jockey for Radio Station WWDC, here, to find some parents with fresh measles in the house who would consent. Ford broadcast the appeal, and the station was "flooded" with replies, he said.

The offer of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Sprinkle was accepted, and the "exposure appointment" made for 11 a. m. yesterday. The Sprinkles were strangers to the Andersons until yesterday.

In Joan's case, however, her physician will administer anti-measles serum within a week to modify the virus attack, he said.

Mrs. Anderson said that Joan appears to have no specific pains, but has been generally weakened by the condition. She was hospitalized for several weeks last fall at Children's Hospital, where she was strengthened with blood plasma infusions.

Physicians admit they have little positive to offer in the treatment of nephrosis except for replacement of lost blood albumin, or treatments against intercurrent infections as they arise. Nephrosis, itself, is not a common malady in children.

The President's Calling List

10:30 a. m.—Press-radio conference.

11 a. m.—Senators Pepper and Holland and others of Florida.

11:15 a. m.—Representative Irving (D., Mo.).

own and was not put forward by the Administration.

McMahon acknowledged that in certain places his proposals might be called "impractical or theoretical." But he flung out this challenge:

"Before they are condemned, however, I would ask that whoever condemns them produce a better proposal."

Comments by Truman

Two hours before McMahon spoke, President Truman gave no indication to his weekly news conference that he had any such bold ideas in mind.

He said he would not use the hydrogen bomb issue as the basis of any new steps in the United Nations for international atomic control.

The Government has repeatedly made its position clear on the matter in the U. N., he explained. He implied that it still stands firmly behind its proposals for rigid inspections and tight controls.

He saw no need, he said, to give a formal notification to the U. N. of his Tuesday order to procede with the building of the H-bomb.

Secrecy Brings Complaint

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) had proposed on Wednesday that the President let the world know it is ready to stop work on H-bombs if all such weapons can be outlawed. From his answers yesterday, apparently Mr. Truman does not plan any special appeal to the U. N. on this point.

He also indicated that strict secrecy will continue to surround the issue.

One reporter complained of the situation in which the press could find its information only by gossip and hearsay. Another reporter pointed out that for public discussion of the issue, more facts about it were needed.

Mr. Truman replied that they could not look forward to further information on the subject, and that he would say no more than his Tuesday statement.

McMahon's proposals came at the end of a speech analyzing the implications of the H-bomb and looking at the alternative to international control.

For the Unites States to have renounced making the H-bomb would have been "folly," he said, for it would have meant, when Russia achieves that weapon, "unconditional surrender in advance by the United States to the alien forces of evil."

Expects Russia to Get It

And Russia will get the H-bomb if we can get it, McMahon went on.

"Let me warn, with all the solemnity at my command, that building hydrogen bombs does not promise positive security for the United States; it only promises the negative result of averting, for a few months or years, well-nigh certain catastrophe.

"Do not for a moment overlook the obvious—that Soviet Russia broke our atomic bomb monopoly sooner than we had expected, and she would break any hydrogen bomb monopoly that we enjoyed with equal or greater speed."

If there is not atomic arms control, the chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy warned, the only alternative is resignation to "a generation of waging the cold war."

History indicates that the only result of the armaments race involved in such a course is war, and in this case hydrogen bomb war.

Even if peace were maintained, he said, it would be at the price of destruction of American freedom and liberties. "To stay alive we will find ourselves more and more compelled to imitate the totalitarian rival."

Therefore, McMahon said, the only policy we can choose "consists in moving heaven and earth to stop the atomic armanents race."

The decision to build the H-bomb must be accompanied, he said, "by the immediate initiation of a moral crusade for peace having far greater potential effect than any physical weapon."

Real "Voice of America"

The American objective for peace must be made known to the Russian people and also those on the "near side" of the Iron Curtain. Therefore, he said, he proposed a far more vigorous information program to concert into a real "Voice of America" what he considered was now only the "Whisper of America."

McMahon also challenged the Russians to permit a U. N. meeting in Moscow, so that "our own sincerity would be more likely to enter the mental horizon of the average Russian."

His proposed world-wide economic and atomic aid program, in return for reduction of armaments and atomic weapons control, would "vividly bring home to all the world's population . . . the profundity of our desire for peace," he said.

"It would accomplish this result even if it accomplished nothing else.

"If the proposal were actually accepted, we would have concluded the cheapest monetary bargain in our history; we would have probably saved mankind from destruction by fire, and we would have paved the way toward a new era of unimagined abundance for all men, based upon atomic energy constructively harnessed."

its control problems different from those of the A-bomb, maybe easier, maybe harder.

Any speculation runs the risk of being 100 per cent wrong. So the questions might have to be left unanswered. But there are some elements that let one go ahead and speculate anyway.

One is a statement by Atomic Energy Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal last week. In answer to a press conference question, he said that nothing "came to mind" on first looking at the problem to suggest that there were any technical reasons to prevent framing a control plan for the H-bomb.

The second factor is that it takes uranium to make the H-bomb, as explained in the first article of this series. It takes an A-bomb as a trigger or detonator to make an H-bomb work. And uranium is the sine qua non for an A-bomb, whether of uranium itself, or of plutonium or thorium.

Finally, it is known that the explosive of the bomb is tritium, an isotope, or variant, of ordinary hydrogen. Tritium is apparently compounded, in quantity, in a process and by a device similar to those of the regular atomic reactor, or pile.

U. N. Majority Atomic Plan

This suggests, then, that if we could obtain agreement on an A-bomb control plan, or one aimed at handling uranium and atomic reactors, we would have, or be well on the way to, a scheme that would prevent the manufacture and use of a hydrogen bomb.

So we go back to consider the U. N. majority atomic plan, derived from the Acheson-Lilienthal-Baruch proposals.

That plan is absolutely dependent for success on an elaborate inspection system. Very probably it also depends on international ownership and operation of large atomic installations.

Russia has shown itself adamantly opposed to international operation. Its indications on how much inspection it would permit have so far been vague and anything but hopeful.

Threat to Police State

The blunt and disheartening fact is that most people—all the way from our best State Department experts with much experience in Russia down to John Citizen with much experience in common sense—are convinced that the police state system of Russia cannot accept and cannot survive under what seems to be the minimum amount of inspection from the outside.

Russia seems not to be able to afford having outsiders look in at it, or having Russians look outside or come into contact with outsiders.

After the September 23 announcement that Russia had succeeded in exploding an atomic bomb, there came a rash of new proposals for international control plans.

Almost all had one point in common. They suggested arrangements under which the amount of inspection necessary within each country would be considerably reduced. The hope was that such inspection would be so much less onerous that Russia could accept it.

A Country Could Cheat

But another point common to all these plans was that with this lesser degree of inspection, there was less security against violation. In other words, they conceded that one country, wilfully and skillfully cheating, could conduct clandestine operations to make one or two A-bombs a year.

The argument was that, bad as one A-bomb might be, it wouldn't be the end of the world. Furthermore, no nation would be likely to use A-bombs in a war if it had only one or two or half a dozen. Better, then, to risk letting a nation get that many bombs than to risk the consequences of an uncontrolled A-bomb armaments race.

But this weakness becomes, it would seem, quite fatal when the problem is H-bombs as well as A-bombs. One H-bomb, which can be made as big as you please, is clearly one too many, and one that cannot be tolerated. With the H-bomb, any control plan and inspection scheme must surely be air-tight, absolute and foolproof.

Few Here See Early Chance

There are few responsible officials in Washington who think that with the present low state of United States-Russian relations, there is any chance of obtaining an atomic control agreement that would provide any security at all by plugging along on the line so far followed in U. N. negotiations.

Is there another line to plug? Is there anything else that can be done to change those United States-Soviet relations?

Confronted with the monstrous weapon of the H-bomb, is there any bold, transcendant, dramatic and compelling move that might be made?

Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) proposed one yesterday. Sober observers were not willing to give off-hand judgments on its practibility. But they concurred that it is the kind of vivid, forceful and nonconventional approach that the situation demands. Their general view was that anything less revolutionary would have not useful or effective impact.

If McMahon's proposal is not the right one, the persons who have studied the problem agree that any substiute for it must be equally daring and imaginative.

(Tomorrow: Conclusion)

Tibet Broadcasts Vow To Fight for Freedom

New Delhi, India, Feb. 2 (AP).—The mountain land of Tibet, which Red China threatens to "liberate," has vowed she will fight for her freedom.

From Lhasa have come faint broadcasts insisting Tibet is not part of China and declaring the people "demand their right as Tibetans to absolute independence."

Referring to reports Chinese Communist troops have already reached its borders, the Lhasa radio asserted Tibetans "are firmly resolved to protect his holiness (the Dalai Lama), their religion, their country and their lives.

Churchill Cites FDR Aid 'Vow' Before War

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—Winston Churchill says Franklin D. Roosevelt promised, 11 months before Pearl Harbor, to help Britain win the war "at all costs and by all means."

In the latest installment of his war memoirs, Churchill quotes Harry Hopkins as telling him on January 11, 1941:

"The President is determined that we shall win the war together . . . He has sent me here to tell you that at all costs and by all means he will carry you through, no matter what happens to him."

Volume III, "The Grand Alliance," of Churchill's personal history of the war is appearing in Life Magazine and the New York Times.

Churchill praises Hopkins as "a true leader of men" who played a sometimes decisive role in the war and was for several years "the main prop and animator of Roosevelt himself."

Churchill registers disapproval of the life sentence imposed on Rudolf Hess as a war criminal. Hess, he says, atoned for his guilt by "his completely fantastic deed of lunatic benevolence" in flying to Scotland, and besides:

"He was a medical and not a criminal case, and should be so regarded."

Churchill reveals that Stalin regarded Hess' flight as a part of an Anglo-German plot to invade Russia, and that Stalin—later meeting Churchill in Moscow—refused to believe Churchill's denial.

U. N. Police Plan Studied By Hill Unit

A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee began a series of public hearings yesterday on assorted resolutions to reform the United Nations and otherwise to strengthen peace.

Yesterday's hearing was devoted to a plan for bringing a United Nations police force into action by a two thirds vote of the Assembly, and without revising the Charter.

The plan's sponsors are Senator Elbert Thomas, (D., Utah), chairman of the subcommittee, and Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.). It has the support of eminent private authorities including Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of the Foreign Affairs quarterly, author of the proposal that led to creation of the so-called "Little Assembly."

The Thomas-Douglas resolution atempts to get around the Soviet veto in the Security Council. Until now the Council has been unable to set up an international police force, as provided in the Charter.

Douglas told the subcommittee that such a force, properly used, could prevent a billion people in the Far East from falling into Communist control. He said the greatest danger facing the non-Communist world is "an almost certain Russian or Communist imperialist drive southward into the teeming countries of southeast Asia."

Bevin to See Schuman on Indo-China

London, Feb. 2 (AP).—Concern over Russian recognition of Indo-China revolutionaries will bring the British and French Foreign Ministers together Friday at a conference in Paris.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, en route home from Ceylon, will stop in Paris to confer with Robert Schuman. Informed officials said Bevin will get a complete fill-in on the Franco-Soviet row over Russian recognition of the rebel Viet Nam guerilla movement led by Moscow-trained Ho Chi-minh.

The French support the Saigon government of former Emperor Bao Dai, which has been granted some self-rule. Britain intends to recognize Bao Dai's regime on a de facto basis within a week. The United States also is expected to recognize Bao Dai.

France renewed today her protest to Russia against Soviet recognition of Ho Chi-minh. A French note to Russia stating that this Soviet recognition might "gravely impair" Franco-Russian relations drew diplomatic rebuffs.

The Soviet Ambassador, Alexander Bogomolov, first sent the French note back to the Foreign Office in its original envelope and said Russia "could not consider receiving such a note." Next he refused to come to the Foreign Office because he was "too tired," a French spokesman said.

Finally, Bogomolov showed up this morning. He stayed six minutes. Sources close to the Foreign Office said he got a "terrific dressing down" from Acting Foreign Minister Pierre Schneiter.

Czechoslovakia followed the lead of Russia and Communist China and recognized Ho Chi-minh today. It is presumed other Russian satellites will fall in line.

China Insists Reds Invaded Indo-China

Taipei, Formosa, Feb. 2 (AP).—A formal charge that Chinese Communist troops have entered Indo-China was made today by the Chinese Nationist Defense Ministry.

The Nationists' Central News Agency has reported this twice, and the French have denied it both times.

The ministry said the intruders belonged to the Red 45th Army, part of General Lin Piao's forces. It said they had reached the vicinities of Caobang and Langson, 15 and nine miles inside Indo China.

The ministry said Lin Piao had massed his 38th Army on the border to help the guerilla forces of Ho Chi-minh. The Central News Agency said "Thousands of Chinese Red already had been incorporated into Ho's forces. ?

Quake Deaths Only 20

Tehran, Iran, Feb. 1 (AP).—The Iranian government said today the death toll in last week's earthquake at Bushire was 20 dead and 2 injured. Last week's estimates ran as high as 1500 dead and thousands hurt.

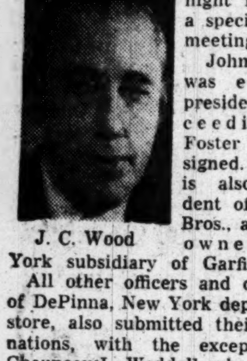
Garfinckel's Reorganizes De Pinna Co.

By S. Oliver Goodman

Reorganization of A. DePinna Co., whose stock control recently was bought by Julius Garfinckel & Co. of Washington, was announced last night following a special board meeting.



J. C. Wood

John C. Wood was elected president, succeeding Roy Foster who resigned. Wood is also president of Brooks Bros., a wholly-owned New York subsidiary of Garfinckel's.

All other officers and directors of DePinna, New York department store, also submitted their resignations, with the exception of Chauncey L. Weddell, who was reelected to the board.

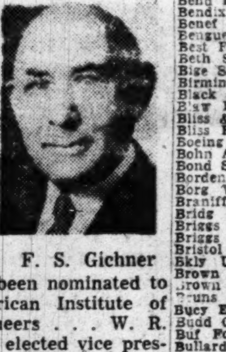
These new directors were elected: Richard P. Dunn, Washington investment banker; Miss Elizabeth Fairall, a Garfinckel vice president; James M. Johnston, Washington investment banker; William E. Schmid, Garfinckel president; Wilson H. Tucker, a Garfinckel director, and John C. Wood.

In addition to President Wood, these new DePinna officers were elected: Miss Fairall, vice president, and T. A. Eliason, treasurer. Eliason is also treasurer-comptroller of Brooks Bros. Tucker was made secretary.

Garfinckel's announced last Friday that it had acquired controlling interest in DePinna. The latter, established in 1885, occupies a building at 642-50 Fifth ave. and operates three branch stores. DePinna's last report showed annual sales of $5,450,000 and assets of nearly two million dollars.

STILL RISING: Talk of the financial district yesterday was this week's spurt of Potomac Electric Power Co. common stock to a new all-time high. It closed yesterday at 16¼ on the New York Stock Exchange, up ¾ from Saturday's close. Possibility of a dividend increase to $1 a share is believed causing the heavy demand.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: For the fifty-second year, Fred S. Gichner has been reelected president of the ironworks bearing his name, one of Washington's largest private industries . . . John A. Neale has been appointed chief engineer of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, succeeding the late Calvin G. Lauber . . . Titus G. Le Clair of Chicago has been nominated to head the American Institute of Electrical Engineers . . . W. R. Elliott has been elected vice president in charge of employe and public relations for Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. . . . Sherwin A. Hill is the new president of the National-American Wholesale Grocers Association.



F. S. Gichner

CAPITAL HIKE: Coastal Finance Corp. of Silver Spring, Md., has notified the Securities and Exchange Commission of plans to increase capital to $378,750. President Frank B. Bush said an additional 13,420 shares of Class A common and 12,960 shares of 6 percent cummulative preferred will be issued. The small-loan firm, which operates an office in Takoma Park, opened for business April 1, 1949.

ODD LOTS: Because of the Chrysler strike, auto output this week will fall to 121,658 units against 133,063 in previous week. . . . General Motors' auto output in January totaled 275,852 units, against 149,027 in same 1949 month. . . . James Bruce, former Ambassador to Argentina, has returned to National Dairy Products Corp as a director. . . . National Steel netted $39,311,269 or $16.02 a share for 1949, against $40,121,506 or $16.35 a share in previous year.

HONOR: Clarence I. Poore, Washington, yesterday celebrated his thirtieth anniversary with the Ford Motor Co. He was presented with a gold service pin at a ceremony attended by members of the Ford Division and Lincoln-Mercury Division staffs here. Poore, who lives at 5321 Seventh st. nw., is resident controller.

REDEMPTIONS: Two of the Nation's largest industrial concerns announced early redemption of large blocks of securities. General Electric Co. said it would repay $92,500,000 of its 20-year notes on April 3. The 2.55 percent notes, due 1966, are part of an original loan of 150 million dollars made in 1946 for expansion purposes. Johns-Manville Corp. will call for redemption the outstanding 65,500 shares of its 3½ percent preferred stock. The shares will be redeemed on and after March 6 at a price of $102 plus accrued dividends of 34 cents a share.

EARNINGS: Bristol-Myers Co. reported net income of $2,714,611 or $1.70 a common share for 1949, compared with $4,324,677 or $2.94 a share for 1948. Other earnings reports:

Heavy Buying Sweeps List To New Peak

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—Wall Street's bull market, with a fresh surge of power, climbed into new high ground today.

In fast trade, leading stocks advanced fractions to 2 points or more. Gains of above a point spattered the price list.

The rise was the sharpest in four weeks and carried the general price level, as measured by the Associated Press 60-stock average, to a peak since 1946.

WHAT STOCKS DID:	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	655	401
Declines	220	482
Unchanged	266	264
Total issues	1141	1147

The volume of business stepped up to 2,040,000 shares, largest in a couple of weeks and one of the largest in the past year or so. This compared with 1,810,000 yesterday.

The market got off to a poor start. In early trading the general tendency was downward although losses were small. The turn came around mid-morning when demand for automobile and radio-television issues suddenly perked up. From then on to the final bell the direction was upward as buying gradually spilled over into other groups.

Final prices were tops for the session.

The AP 60-stock average advanced .7 of one point to 74, tops since August 26, 1946. The rise was the best since January 4 this year, with more than half a billion dollars added to the market value of all stocks listed on the exchange.

The industrial group made the strongest showing, followed by rails and utilities in that order.

General Motors led the automobile field with a rise at 1½ at 75. Chrysler was a close second with a gain of 1⅛ at 65⅝, while Studebaker fetched up in third place with an advance of ¾ at 27⅞.

U. S. Steel, which shot ahead this week on news of a boosted dividend and the highest earnings in 20 years, made fresh progress with a gain of ⅝ at 30. Big Steel was the second most active stock.

Radio Corp., most active issue, advanced ⅝ to 14⅝. Emerson Radio jumped 2½ to 26¼ while up a point or more were Admiral 24 and Magnavox 16⅝.

Taylor to Head Metropolitan Life

New York, Feb. 2 (U.P.)—The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. announced today that Charles G. Taylor, jr., 66, will become its president next New Year's day.

Taylor, now executive vice president, will succeed Leroy A. Lincoln, 69, who will become chairman of the board. The present board chairman, Frederick H. Ecker, 82, will become honorary chairman.

Frederick W. Ecker, 53, son of the present board chairman and now financial vice president, will be made executive vice president and his present post will be abolished, the company said.

Chicago Grain Broker Gets Year for Fraud

Chicago, Feb. 2 (AP).—Charles B. Grady, 43, Chicago grain broker, today was sentenced to one year in prison and fined $5000 for defrauding investors.

Grady, a former member of the Chicago Board of Trade was convicted on January 26 of violating the Commodities Exchange Act. He had operated in recent years on the Chicago open board of trade, a small exchange.

Dividend Increased

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—National Dairy Products Corp. today declared a dividend of 60 cents a share on the common stock, payable March 10 to stock of record February 17. In 1949 the company paid 45 cents each in March and June and 50 cents each in September and December together with an extra of 30 cents in December.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 2 (AP).—A couple of punches from Washington helped to give the grain market a groggy appearance today. All cereals fell sharply in a general liquidating move.

In addition to the Washington items, consisting of threats of lower support prices and decreased exports, the market took a steady jabbing from more routine matters. These included disappointment over slow exports, larger receipts of cash grain and the feeling more free wheat will be around now that the loan privilege has expired.

Wheat ended 2⅜ to 4⅛ lower; corn was 1 to 1⅜ lower; oats were ⅜ to 1¼ lower; rye was 3¼ to 4⅛ lower; soybeans were ¼ to 2¾ lower and lard was 3 to 5 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Ex-Dietitian Kills Self in Arlington

The body of a 51-year-old former chief dietitian at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore was found yesterday in a wooded section 400 yards behind the Little Tea House, 1301 Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington.

Miss Rowe

The dietitian, Miss Phyllis Dawson Rowe, of 1311 Arlington Ridge rd., had been missing since Monday. She died of an overdose of sleeping pills, Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington coroner, announced following an autopsy. He issued a certificate of suicide.

Miss Rowe, who had been in charge of the hospital's dietetics department from 1922 until January 21, 1949, had been in ill health, friends said.

The body was discovered at 9:40 a. m. by Charles Pugh, a member of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad only nine minutes after the squad of 15 men began searching the 50-acre wooded tract.

Arlington Detective John Saunders said the body was fully clothed lying with the head on a pocketbook. Three empty sleeping pill bottles were in the pocketbook, he added.

Don Dunnington, rescue squad chief, said his organization was called into the search by Miss Rowe's physician, Dr. Thomas McPherson Brown, 814 26th pl., South Arlington, professor of Medicine at George Washington University.

Arlington Police Chief H. L. Woodyard said harbor police were notified and asked to search the Potomac "Monday or Tuesday" after he received word Monday afternoon that the woman was missing from the house where she roomed.

Miss Rowe, a native of Boston, was graduated in 1919 from LaSalle Seminary in Auburndale, Mass. She entered Johns Hopkins University in 1920 for a course in dietetics and assumed charge of the hospital's dietetics department in 1922. She helped plan the rations for the Byrd Antarctic Expedition of 1928.

She was a charter member of the Maryland Dietetics Association and was a past president of that organization. In addition, she was a charter member and a former vice president of the American Dietetics Association and a member of the joint board of that association and the American Hospital Association.

Miss Rowe was a former member of the Hamilton Street Club, Baltimore social group, and of the Johns Hopkins Club. She leaves a brother, Barrie Rowe, of Pearl River, N. Y., and an aunt, Mrs. J. Wallace Fleet, of Brooklyn.

The body was removed to Gawlers' funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Funeral services will be held there today at 3 p. m.

Veto Forecast For Politics Bill

not going to be rushed into my decision."

Most of the criticisms came from Arlington County, she said. They reflected, it seemed to her, the feeling by non-partisan groups that the Senate plan is designed to weaken their role in local affairs, and strengthen the Democratic machine.

Representative Burr P. Harrison (D., Va.), another member of the conference group, voiced strong support for the Senate-approved plan. He said it would end a system that now discriminates against the regular parties in nearby local politics.

Federal workers near Washington can, under the Hatch Act, participate in local politics only on a "non-partisan" or "independent" basis.

In Montgomery and Fairfax counties, local political party leaders favor the change. Mrs. James V. Bennett, head of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters, yesterday said she personally opposed the Senate plan—the league favors nonpartisan local elections.

In Alexandria, where a majority of voters last November said they want nonpartisan local elections, Mrs. W. F. Pfeiffer, head of the League of Women Voters, admitted some confusion about the amendment. She said she believed it was not particularly relavent to the Alexandria situation.

Mrs. Florence Cannon, nonpartisan member of the Arlington County Board, said the Senate-approved plan was "simply a sign of fear on the part of the Democratic organization of Virginia." She said she was against it, and felt it would "nullify the gains that true democracy has made" in the country.

In contrast, T. Oscar Smith, chairman of the Arlington Civic Federation, generally nonpartisan, said he did not see the Senate plan as a threat to the nonpartisan movement — "the nonpartisan movement is going ahead whether this goes through or not." He said, however, the "machine" would try to use the plan to destroy the nonpartisan movement.

Representative Mitchell indicated opponents are especially riled because they haven't been given a formal hearing. Only the sponsors were heard by the Senate group that prepared the bill.

Representative Mitchell made public a letter to Mrs. Norton, saying he believed, as the original sponsor of the House bill, the Senate addition on local politics should be handled in separate legislation.

He gave her a lengthy memorandum outlining what he said Federal worker organizations feel to be serious defects of the Senate plan. As now written, said Mitchell, the plan's flaws are "so numerous as, in my opinion, to

In Fairfax

Officials Seek To Clean up Sewer Snag

Fairfax County officials today are seeking a meeting Monday with Alexandria and Falls Church city heads in an effort to keep the county's three-million-dollar sewer improvement program alive.

The county board of supervisors brought the program to a halt Wednesday. They had intended to open bids then on the three-million-dollar sanitary sewer issue.

The reason for the sudden reversal was that the board discovered that Falls Church still has an annexation ordinance in effect. Consequently, Falls Church could file suit whenever it chose for a given amount of county land.

When the board's bond attorneys, Mitchell and Pershing, of New York City, learned of the ordinance, they advised the county heads not to open bids. They said they no longer could certify to bond bidders that there was no litigation pending that would affect the bonds.

James J. Corbalis, county sanitary engineer, said the bonds were to have been sold under the assumption that possibility of immediate litigation had ended. Falls Church, on September 20, withdrew its petition asking for appointment of an annexation court.

Alexandria fits into the picture because it has announced its intention to try for annexation of 7½-square-miles of Fairfax land. Its ordinance, however, has not been passed by City Council.

Gift to County Of Greenbelt Acres Urged

The Prince Georges County Civic Federation voted last night to request the Public Housing Administration to give about 2000 undeveloped acres at Greenbelt to the county for park purposes.

The resolution was passed at a meeting at the County Service Building, at Hyattsville.

The Government-owned town of Greenbelt, which occupies only about 200 acres of undeveloped area, is scheduled for sale to private owners. The federation asked an outright gift of the undeveloped woodland to the county.

The federation also voted to renew a request made nearly a year ago to the county commissioners for a survey of the entire county government.

Under the plan Dr. Joseph M. Ray, head of the department of government and politics at the University of Maryland would make the survey. Mrs. Irma Bogdanoff, president of the County League of Women Voters, charged the request has met with "stony silence" from the commissioners.

The federation passed a resolution asking the commissioners to adhere strictly to the county zoning plan and recommendations of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission in future rezoning actions "except under extraordinary circumstances," and rebuked the commissioners for departing from the plan and recommendations in the past.

Florida Girl Reported 'Doing Fairly Well'

Margaret Ann Jackson, 10-year-old St. Petersburg, Fla., girl who underwent an operation at Sibley Hospital for a brain tumor, yesterday was reported as "doing fairly good," by her physician here, Dr. Robert Hottel.

The girl was flown to Washington Sunday for diagnosis and brain surgery in an Air Force "mercy mission" when bad weather grounded commercial airliners.

The tumor was identified as cancerous and only a part of it could be removed in Monday's operation.

To Women With Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Labor Market 'Tough,' Batt Tells Students

The largest college graduating classes in the Nation's history—the direct result of the G. I. Bill—will enter the country's labor market this year, William L. Batt, jr., special assistant to the Secretary of Labor, said last night.

This group far exceeds the previous all-time high of 200,000 in 1940, he said.

Speaking to students at Catholic University, Batt said the collegians would be part of a 1,800,000 total seeking jobs and warned that even though they would be the "best equipped" segment, it is a "tougher market" than it has been in recent years.

He gave the students these tips:

1. The expanding fields are the television industry, construction—especially residential, and public services such as teaching, nursing, medicine, dentistry and social work.

The contracting fields are engineering, chemistry, journalism, personnel, law and pharmacy, where there are more applicants than jobs.

2. The growing job markets are in the southeast and southwest parts of the country and the opposite is true in New England.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

THE Shoreham Blue Room's floor show is now complete after a mishap which forced a special Brazilian act to land their plane Monday in Florida. The two performers, Vic and Adio, do acrobatic comedy work. They were playing in Cuba last week and intended to fly directly to Washington for the Monday night opening.

Betty Barnes, a tiny girl who has done almost 70 appearances with Vaughn Monroe, opened the show. Just 20 years old, she has a powerful voice for her small size.

Harbers and Dale are the feature dance team this week. They have been at the Blue Room before and were asked back as soon as they were free. Surprising applause, for Washington audiences, brings them back after each act. They do have some new twists to the ballroom routine. Each ending is in a picture-postcard-like pose. And Harbers can really dance, instead of being the usual background for the feminine half of the act.

THE Sheraton Hotel cocktail lounge has changed entertainment after 10 months of Rodney Davis' organ and piano. This week Jose Poniera brought in his trio for an indefinite stay.

Jose Poniera is without doubt the stylist of the trio. The drummer and guitarist provide background. But Poniera seems indefatigable. He is constantly playing piano solos—anything from heavy, rhumba-like numbers to a concert version of a semiclassic.

Poniera's training has largely been in his own country, Bolivia and Switzerland, where his father was stationed in the diplomatic corps. There he studied at Zurich Conservatory. After performing in Buenos Aires, he began night club and radio work in this country.

Cards Protest Pirates' Signing of $100,000 Rookie

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BEFORE THROWING his first pitch in organized baseball, 18-year-old Paul Pettit has already achieved a measure of fame as the central figure in L'Affaire Pettit, which has edged Commissioner A. B. Chandler onto at least a tepid spot.

POVICH

Pettit is the California schoolboy who was given $100,000 to sign a contract by the Pittsburgh Pirates two days after his graduation, and now it's a case for Chandler. As expected, there was a squawk and the protestant is Fred Saigh, owner of the Cardinals, who calls the whole business "an outrageous evasion" of the bonus rules.

If it wasn't an outrageous evasion, at least it was a pretty slick maneuver that led to the acquisition of Pettit by the Pirates. They did business with Frederick Stephani, a Hollywood producer, who moved in while the boy was still a student, and tied him up to a personal contract while the ball clubs were restrained by Chandler's rules from making any offers to Pettit.

Chandler's rules could make the ball clubs in his domain shy off from making any proposals to Pettit before his graduation, but he had no control over any individual promoter and thus there may have been no violation at all.

FRED HAMEY, general manager of the Pirates, points out that they observed all the rules—they didn't contact the boy before his graduation, nor did they talk with Stephani until after it. They submitted a written bid that topped the offers of the other clubs and kept their noses clean otherwise.

What Pettit's agent did was to expose a loophole in the rules, and open up what could amount to a new promotional profession—signing up promising schoolboy athletes while major league clubs are restrained, and then peddling their contracts to the highest bidder. It could defeat Chandler's purpose in trying to keep contract scouts out of the schoolrooms.

It poses a new kind of problem for Chandler. He might order the clubs not to do business with schoolboys under contract with promoters, but that might be held to be a boycott and an invasion of civil rights, which could stir up a lot of pother in the courts. And Chandler, like the club owners, is leary of any court business.

THE EVIDENCE is, though, that Chandler wasn't exactly caught napping. It is revealed now that he did have one of his trouble shooters, Dick Butler, on the trail of the Pettit case for two weeks, probing the circumstances. Every baseball scout in the West knew about Pettit and his sensational pitching record as a schoolboy, and Butler was keeping a close check on the negotiations.

I know this Butler, and he is a shrewd investigator, Chandler's favorite bird dog, who occupies much the same role that Leslie O'Connor did in the regime of the late Commissioner K. M. Landis. Butler came out of the Air Force with a heap of decorations, and moved into the commissioner's office by special invitation.

In his preliminary report, Butler has said that he has perceived no violation of Chandler's rules in anything the Pirates did, and if his full report bears that out, Chandler's hands are tied and the Pittsburgh Club is in the clear. But obviously Chandler will not like it, and the mails are certain to be filled with new directives to the clubs telling 'em he wants new powers.

ANOTHER matter in addition to the Pettit case is now occupying Chandler. He has been compelled to take notice of Branch Rickey's squawks that certain big league clubs, the Cubs and Yankees, are circumventing the rule that players should not go into spring training before March 1.

The Yankees have 40 of their minor leagues in a school at Phoenix, taking instruction from Manager Casey Stengel and a staff of assistants. Among those assistants are Yogi Berra, a couple of other Yankee regulars and Jack Jensen, rookie outfield from the Coast League whom the Yankees bought. Jensen is in need of instruction himself, is the general belief. While ostensibly tutoring others, he is rounding into shape physically before the curtain lifts on the March 1 start of spring training. And it is inconceivable that Stengel isn't dropping a word of instruction here and there to Jensen.

Out on Catalina Island, the Cubs have "invited" their ball players to two weeks of vacation, mountain climbing, hiking, etc., at the team's expense. Rickey says that's beating the gun, whether they call it "vacation" or work. Chandler's lap is getting full.

At College Park Tomorrow

Two Footballers on Army Ring Team Facing Maryland

Army's boxing team appears well armed to exploit Maryland's weakness in the top weight divisions in tomorrow night's match at College Park.

Co-Captains Pete Monfore and Bill Kellum are the respective representatives for the Cadets in the light-heavyweight and heavy classes.

Monfore, 175-pound tackle on the football team, is defending Eastern Intercollegiate champ. He went to the NCAA finals where he lost a close decision to Miami's Carl Bernardo, All-Southern champ.

Monfore will be favored over Maryland's Bob Smith who lost his first start to Citadel's Bill Ohlandt.

Kellum, rugged 190-pound football end, will be another tough opponent if the Terps need the vital point at the end the way they needed it in the 4-4 tie with Citadel.

A terrific puncher, Kellum is a formidable foe for Georgie (Baby Face) Fuller, soph making his collegiate debut for the Terps. Fuller, Washington lad who's been fighting around these parts since he was a 12-year-old 65-pounder, hardly has a soft spot.

Stan Scott has the best rep for Army in the lighter classes. Scott reached the Eastern finals last year as a 125-pounder. He's put on five pounds and that means he will take on Maryland's classy Andy Quattrochi.

Army comes here with a 2-1 record. One-sided triumphs were score against Western Maryland, 7½-½, and American U., 8-0, but Syracuse pounded out a 5½-½ decision.

Despite the Army score, which included one forfeit in the 125-pound class, A. U. Coach Jim Petro says he wasn't too impressed by the Cadet boxers.

Petro points out that Ken Herring, 155-pounder, won by only three points over his Jim Schinzer and 165-pound Joe Harding also took a narrow decision over American's Don Cheesman.

Petro says Maryland should beat the Cadets.

Thompson Quits Redskin Post

John L. Thompson, business manager for the Washington Redskins since 1947, is resigning effective March 1.

Thompson will be succeeded by Russell Swann, passenger representative for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Thompson, 37, joined the Redskin band in 1937 and moved into the business office in 1942. He's leaving to take over a gas station in Alexandria.

At Sheboygan

74 Personals Called As Caps Lose, 68 to 65

Special to The Washington Post

Sheboygan, Wisc., Feb. 2.—Sheboygan shattered the Washington Caps' quest for a highly successful road trip by turning back the visitors, 68-65, in an NBA brawl here tonight.

Instead of scoring their fourth win in five starts away, the Caps limped back to Washington with a 3-2 mark. They meet New York there Saturday night.

Limped is used advisably. A total of 74 personals were called, 41 on the Caps. When Sheboygan upset the Caps in Washington, 88-82, 51 personals were called for an all-time Uline Arena record.

Tonight Feerick, Jack Nichols, Chick Halbert and Bones McKinney were ejected.

Washington was sparked to a 13-5 lead by Coach Bob Feerick who tallied 11 of the points. The Caps led in the second period by 29-19 but Sheboygan put on an 11-point spree to take over and walked off with a 34-32 edge at intermission.

Bob Cook, high with 15 points; Bob Brannum, with 13, and Jack Burmaster with 10 saw to it that the home team stayed in front.

Only at the end did the Caps threaten. They cut the Sheboygan lead to 67-65 but Chick Reiser missed a layup and Sheboygan added a foul toss for its final margin.

Scoreboard Blacks Out, But Not GW

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

George Washington found out the right score just in time and whipped Virginia Military Institute, 83-72, last night in a Southern Conference game at Eastern High.

The electric scoreboard went on the blink with G. W. in front by 25 points early in the second half, and V. M. I. crept up on the Colonial second and third stringers.

With five minutes left, G. W. Coach Bill Reinhart casually asked the scorekeeper for the count. When he learned that the Keydets had cut the G. W. lead to only 73-65, he quickly threw his first string back into the game.

The Colonial regulars easily ran up a 31-9 lead on the Keydets in the first 10 minutes, and then took a rest until the last five minutes. Bud Goglin, G. W.'s sophomore center, led the Colonials with 20 points. Fred Anson had 19 for V. M. I.

Ray Fox, Two Other D.C. Boys Register at GW

Ray Fox, most sought after player of the Interhigh League last year, has registered at George Washington University.

Maryland and Virginia, among a half-dozen schools, were anxious to have the McKinley Tech tailback, who led the area in scoring.

The 6-foot 1-inch, 175-pound speedster, scored 22 touchdowns and passed for 7 more. In the championship game against Wilson, Fox ran for two touchdowns and passed for a third, but Tech lost, 21-20.

Fox follows in the footsteps of several other Tech football stars, who went on to G.W. Among them are Andy Davis, star Colonial tailback for the past two years. Clarence Drayer, 200-pound G.W. tackle, and Tailback Jack Baumgartner, star of the G.W. freshman team last season.

Two other high school stars also registered at G.W. yesterday. They are Guard Billy James and Tackle Bill Neal, spearheads of the Anacostia High line, rated the best of the District schools. James weighs 180 pounds, and Neal 205.

Bunky Frazier Gains Finals

Boxer Bunky Frazier outpointed Slugger Milton Ferguson in their senior semifinals 126-pound bout of the District of Columbia A.A.U. tournament last night before 2805 fans at Uline Arena.

Frazier, wearing Merrick Club's colors, will meet Joe Gardella of Olympic for the championship February 9 at Uline.

Hoyas-NYU 'Homecoming'

A lot of acquaintances will be renewed Saturday night when Georgetown and New York University clash in the first game of a double-header at the National Guard Armory. In the second game, George Washington faces North Carolina.

New York U.'s home-grown squad will be meeting eight Hoyas whom they used to play against in their high school days.

Hoyas' Frank Alagia and Dan Supkis hail from Long Island Capt. Dick Falvey, John Mazziotta and Don O'Leary from the Bronx, Italo Ablondi and Steve Rogers from Manhattan, and John Brown from Staten Island.

Both Carolina and G.W. boast 7-3 records; and the winner Saturday is virtually assured of a spot in the Southern Conference tournament.

NYU Envisions Big-Time Football, Signs Devore

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—Hugh Devore was appointed head coach of New York University today and Violet followers envisioned a return to big-time football.

Only yesterday, Devore, a graduate of Notre Dame, resigned as mentor of St. Bonaventure College, Olean, N. Y., after a 4-year tenure where his teams won 25 games, lost nine and tied one.

The announcement of Devore's signing was made by Professor John F. Sullivan, chairman of the NYU board of athletic control.

"The signing of Devore represents one of the important points in the board's general plan to improve football conditions at NYU," Professor Sullivan said.

This immediately led to speculation that NYU would make some attempt to field a powerful team in the future. Devore, a native of Newark, N. J., succeeds Edward (Hook) Mylin, who resigned last year because of what he considered unfavorable conditions.

Students Called for Action

Following Mylin's resignation, the NYU letter club, the student newspapers and several alumni groups bitterly criticized the university for refusing to make an effort to place powerful teams on the field.

Devore was rightend and co-captain of the Notre Dame eleven in 1933, his senior year. He coached the Irish frosh in 1935, then went back to his alma mater in 1943 and took over the duties of head coach in 1945. Under him, Notre Dame won seven, lost two and tied one.

Between his Notre Dame jobs, Devore held posts at Fordham, Providence, and Holy Cross in addition to St. Bonaventure.

Riley, McWane Win in 4-Ball

Hollywood, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP).—Defending Champion Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Tex., and Bee McWane, Birmingham, Ala., were hard pressed to survive the first round of the fifth annual Women's International Four Ball golf tournament today

Held to a one-up lead on the front nine, which they toured with a best ball of 36, men's par, they had to turn on the heat on the back nine to defeat Carol Diringer, Tiffin, Ohio, and Mary Agnes Wall, Menominee, Mich., 2 and 1.

The Bauer sisters, Marlene and Alice of Midland, Tex., drew the largest gallery at the start. The Bauers toured the front nine in par 36 to gain a 3-up lead and defeated Judy Baker, Lima, Ohio, and Bonny Randolph, Columbus, Ohio, 5 and 4.

2 Unknowns Tie in Tucson Golf With 64s

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP).—Two unknowns shot the best competitive golf of their lives today to take a one-stroke lead in the $10,000 Tucson Open.

Wally Ulrich, Minneapolis, and Manuel de la Torre, Chicago, have never won a major tournament but they led the game's biggest names with 6-under par 64's tonight.

A scant stroke behind the newcomers to the tournament trial are Toney Penna, Cincinnati, Ohio, and George Buck, Westport, Conn.

Grouped behind this pair are seven others with 4-under par 66's. Including is the cofavorite Jimmy Demaret of Ojal, Calif.

Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the other favorite, got off to a shaky start. The veteran steadied and finished one under par with 69.

Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., was tied with Jim Ferrier of San Francisco at 69.

Paul O'Leary, Bismarck, N. Dak., was tabbed as a dangerous threat. He had to content himself with a par 70 after being in frequent trouble.

Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, led the amateurs with a par 70.

Saigh Calls Evasion of School Rule Outrageous

St. Louis, Feb. 2 (AP).—Fred M. Saigh, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today he would protest to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler the signing of Paul Pettit, 18-year-old high school boy, by the Pittsburgh Pirates for a reported $100,000 bonus.

Saigh in a statement described the action of the Pittsburgh club as an "outrageous evasion" of the baseball bonus and high school rule.

Pettit a few weeks ago supposedly signed a contract to go into the movies, and it was through Frederick Stephani of Hollywood who held the boy's signature on a film agreement, that Roy Haney, general manager of the Pirates, acquired his baseball signature.

In a statement to the press, Saigh outlined his letter of protest to Chandler as follows:

"I believe the Pettit case should be protested by the club owners to the commissioner. I, for one, shall do so. I believe it is a violation of both the bonus rule and the high school rule, principally the high school rule.

"If the commissioner should allow this transaction to stand, it would enable me to have any one of six or seven of my building managers sign high school boys to a contract for work other than in baseball and would then permit me on behalf of the St. Louis Cardinals to purchase that contract from one of my corporations.

"The transaction is an outrageous evasion."

Signed After Graduation

Pittsburg didn't sign Pettit until after the young southpaw graduated from high school. However, the boy previously signed a personal service contract with Hollywood movie producer Stephani. The Pirates made their deal with Stephani.

When Stephani signed Pettit, he still was in high school. No baseball club is permitted to approach a boy still in school. Of course, it can not stop a movie producer, agent of any other nonbaseball man from carrying on his own business.

In Versailles, Ky., Commissioner Chandler said he expected to receive a report from Dick Butler, his special agent, in New York this weekend.

"I had Butler in California for two weeks, investigating the boy's contract with the movie man," said Chandler, "I am sure he knows all the facts about this case. If he was quoted in California as saying the contract apparently violated no rule in baseball, I am sure that is the case."

Advised later of Saigh's protests, Hamey chuckled: "What's he hollering about? St. Louis didn't even bid for Pettit."

Hamey cleared up another point about Pettit's unusual deal. He said as far as he knew, the youth "got every cent" of the extra $15,000,000 spent in buying up the paper from Stephani. "I know he did—it's in the contract," Hamey declared.

He added he had no further comment to make, that "everything will come out in New York this weekend.

Too Many Teams

Rochester, Philly Coaches Call NBA 'Unwieldly, Unattractive'

By Ralph Bernstein

Philadelphia, Feb. 2 (AP).—How solid is the National Basketball Association?

Not very—say Lester Harrison, Rochester Royals coach and Ed Gottlieb of the Philadelphia Warriors.

The coaches agree that the NBA's present setup is unwieldy and unattractive to the pro-court fans.

They told the Philadelphia basketball writers' weekly meeting that too many teams in the league are not geographically or financially able to support major league basketball.

Here's a proposal Harrison says he will make at the league's annual meeting:

"To break the circuit down into a major league and a triple A group similar to baseball.

"For example, we could have Philadelphia, New York, Washington, Chicago, Minneapolis, Rochester, Boston, St. Louis, Syracause, Baltimore, and possibly a few others like Indianapolis and Fort Wayne, in one group.

"Then in the other, which I would call a high class minor league, there would be Waterloo, Tri Citys, Sheboygan, Anderson, Denver and perhaps a few others interested in basketball."

Gottlieb more or less concurred with Harrison's views, although the Warrior coach—a member of the NBA executive board—did not give a blanket indorsement. He agreed there were too many teams

Kiner Signs $130,000 2-Year Contract

Pirates' Slugger Gets $25,000 Raise

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

THERE WAS PLENTY of fast-moving traffic on the baseball front yesterday.

Several players rushed in their signed contracts for 1950 while others beat a hasty retreat from "schools" as an aftermath of Commissioner Chandler's no-practice-until-March-1 edict.

Most important development (to both player and team) of the day happened in Los Angeles. There, amid lush surroundings with photographers' bulbs producing almost as much light as kleig lights, Ralph Kiner signed a two-year contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Kiner and Pirate General Manager Roy Hamey announced, according to the Associated Press, that the big, blond home-run hitter had agreed to play for $65,000 a season. This represents about a $25,000 increase over his 1949 contract. He hit 54 home runs, paddled in 127 runs and compiled a .310 average for the sixth place Bucs.

IT WAS A straight salary contract, Kiner and Hamey said, with no bonus clauses attached. "That's the way Ralph wanted it," Hamey said. Kiner has been spending the winter in California playing golf (in the low 70's) and dating comely cinema star Elizabeth Taylor (in her late 'teens).

Hamey said it's the highest price ever paid a Pirate, topping the $60,000 given First Baseman Hank Greenberg when he came to Pittsburgh from Detroit.

Out in Phoenix, Ariz., where the world champion New York Yankees have been holding a school for minor leaguers, nine of the player-instructors were sent home. Not because the club wanted them to go, but because Commissioner Chandler said stiff fines would be imposed on major leaguers who start training before March 1.

HEADED EAST, west, north, and south after helping Manager Casey Stengel "screen" the Yanks' hopefuls were Pitchers Duane Pillette, Don Johnson, Dick Carr and Hugh Radcliff; infielders Fenton Mole and Billy Martin and Outfielders Cliff Mapes, Mark Bauer and Jackie Jensen.

Catcher Yogi Berra left for St. Louis a day before—to be home in time for the christening of his son, Larry, jr.

In announcing the departure of the players, the Yankees said: "The players leaving camp is by no means an admission of a rule violation . . . we thought it best to handle the situation that way until further clarification of the rule was handed down . . ."

The Giants sent Outfielders Thomson and Whitey Lockman home from their Sanford, Fla., training camp for minor leaguers. The Giants didn't bother to explain why the two were sent away from the camp.

The following players and coaches signed up for 1950, none receiving anywhere near as much as Kiner:

Majors in Retreat From 'Schools'

DETROIT—Pitcher Paul Trout, Catcher Harvey Riebe, Outfielder Johnny Creel and Infielder Al Federoff.

NEW YORK YANKEES—Outfielder Cliff Mapes and Pitcher Duane Pillette.

CLEVELAND—Coach Mel Harder.

NEW YORK GIANTS—Outfielder Whitey Lockman and Pitcher Andy Hansen.

The Chicago White Sox broke into the news by buying Firstbaseman Herman Reich from the Cubs and Catcher Phil Masi from the Pirates. Reich, who was with the Nats for about two weeks last year, came to the Hose for the $10,000 waiver price, Masi "a bit more," club officials said.

At Uline Tonight

Montgomery Is 7-5 Over Aldo Minelli

Bob Montgomery, a former world's lightweight champion, is a 7-5 favorite tonight in his boxing comeback against Aldo Minelli in the scheduled 10-round main event of the Liberty Athletic Club's show at Uline Arena.

Minelli entertains high hopes of upsetting the ring rusty ex-champion, and employs the same style as that used by his younger brother, Livio Minelli, who defeated Montgomery in one of his last starts prior to going into retirement in 1947.

Pete Moran, matchmaker for the Philadelphia Arena, also will be on hand to scout Montgomery. Moran hopes to sign the former champion for a bout with either Beau Jack or Ray Robinson in the event he defeats Minelli and West.

A scheduled eight round semifinal finds Herbie "Biff" Jones, local lightweight, bidding for his ninth straight victory and fourteenth in his last 15 starts against Bob Timpson of Youngstown, Ohio. Herbie has scored eight knockouts, won five decisions and dropped one his last 14 times out.

A special five-round middleweight number pits Gene Harley against Walter Roane while James J. Kimball, Naval Air Station heavyweight, duels Kid Saucer in a four.

GW High Risks 25-Game Home Streak

Champion Lynchburg Is Opponent

George Washington High of Alexandria risks its 25-game home winning streak tonight at 8 o'clock against E. C. Glass of Lynchburg, State basketball champion of Virginia.

Just last Saturday, Glass trimmed G. W., 46-26, at Lynchburg after the Alexandrians had assumed an 18-17 half-time lead.

Last year, when Glass won the title game, 42-34, at Norfolk, it was handing G. W. its only loss in 26 games. Glass ran its winning streak up to 40 straight this year before it lost to Roanoke.

Glass is banking on Otto Franklin and Johnny Palmer, both All-State last year, to give it win No. 10 in 11 games. G.W. has a 7-5 record. Six of its seven victories were gained on its home court.

Starting for the home team will be Don Hanback, Smiley Moore, Erwin Jones, Bob Kessler and John Olson.

Thirteen school games are on the bill altogether. Sharing prominence with the Alexandria game are Gonzaga at Central, 3:30 p. m., and St. John's vs. Montgomery Blair at Takoma Junior High, at 8:15 p. m.

Mike Nolan Gets 24 as Gonzaga Raps Tech, 49-43

Gonzaga's Eagles, led by Mike Nolan, erased a 27-21 halftime deficit and registered their ninth triumph, defeating McKinley Tech yesterday at Tech, 49-43.

Nolan scored 24 points to help offset the 27 Tony Sgrò tallied for Tech. Gonzaga went into the lead to stay midway in the fourth quarter when Ralph Bram put in a field goal to make it 43-42, Gonzaga.

If Transfer Is Approved

Cardozo to Inherit D. C.'s Top Athletic Plant From Central

Among the many things at stake in the debate over whether Central should be transferred to Cardozo is the finest high school athletic plant in the city.

Central's concrete stadium, seating 7500, is second in capacity only to Griffith Stadium. Its football field is rimmed by a quarter mile track, which is the best in the area.

The Central building contains two good-sized gymnasiums, one for girls and one for boys, and a swimming pool. There are also four clay tennis courts on the school grounds.

If Central goes over to Cardozo, the four Negro highs will have two stadiums, and the remaining nine white highs will have six stadiums.

Cardozo has played all its home football games at Dunbar's Brooks Stadium, the only present stadium available for the Negro schools.

Its trackmen have worked out in the corridors of the first floor, and have managed to place prominently in such national meets as the Penn and Bridgeton Relays.

The only gymnasium available to Cardozo's basketball team is a converted janitor's equipment room in the basement.

Central's girls' gym, where the Viking basketball team plays its home games, can seat 500 in its balcony. The boys' gym, with a regulation basketball court, seats 100 around its perimeter.

The only other indoor pool in the city schools in located at Dunbar.

In the blueprint stage are new stadiums for Coolidge in the white schools, and for Spingarn and Armstrong in the Negro schools.

If Central is eliminated as a white school, its sports uniforms and gear will probably be divided among the other white schools in proportion to the number of former Central students enrolled..

According to Dr. E. B. Henderson, head of health and physical education in the Negro schools, transfer of Central to Cardozo would "almost put athletic facilities in my division on a par with the white schools."

The Board of Education's buildings, grounds and equipment committee has recommended that Central be turned over to Cardozo in September. The board will act on the recommendation at its next meeting February 15.

Landon Booters Win

Landon's soccer team chalked up its eighth consecutive victory and fourth in the Interstate Athletic Conference, 1-0, over Sidwell Friends yesterday at Landon. John Stoner scored the game's only goal.

GW 'Fall Guy' So W & M Can Play Virginia

George Washington University "very reluctantly" cancelled its November 11 football game with William and Mary so the Indians could renew relations with Virginia.

Max Farrington, athletic director at G.W., made that statement yesterday. He added that G.W. will seek to schedule a road game for that date with a Southern Conference, Eastern Intercollegiate or Big Six team.

Last week, according to Farrington, W. and M. officials asked that the 1950 date with G. W. be changed to either September 16 or November 25. G. W. vetoed both because the first date occurs before classes start, and the second falls after the traditional finale against Georgetown.

W. and M. then asked to be excused from the G. W. game.

"We don't like being the fall guy," said Farrington yesterday, "but we can understand the pressure behind the Virginia-W. and M. game."

He said G. W. has a contract to play W. and M. in football in 1951, but he isn't sure that it will be carried out. "Each of us has offered three possible playing dates, but none of them correspond," he said. "We're thinking of playing it in 1952 as our opening game in Alexandria."

Large Field Plays Today In Badminton

Due to a flood of late entries, the National Capital badminton championship tournament will be held three days instead of two. Play will begin tonight at 8 o'clock and continue through Saturday and Sunday at the Kensington, Md., Armory.

Entries have poured in from North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York and Connecticut. The Badminton Club of District of Columbia is sponsoring the tournament.

The women's singles field will be topped by Dr. Marie Ussing of Copenhagen, Denmark, now playing in Washington. She will be seeded No. 1. Patsy Stephens of Baltimore, who is fifth in national ratings, will be seeded No. 2.

The large men singles field will be led by Carl Loveday of Montclair, N. J., and Clint Stephens, Baltimore, seeded 1 and 2. Both were members of the United States Thomas Cup team in last year's international matches in England.

Schedule follows:

Green Meadows Tops District Heights

Jack Herrity and Arthur Curtis scored 10 poins each to pace Green Meadows' seniors to a 35-21 victory over District Heights in a Prince Georges County Boys' Club League game last night at Mount Rainier High School gym.

In a junior league game, Green Meadows downed District Heights, 40-13.

Baby Is Born To Ingrid

whom she married in Sweden at the outset of her career. Her lawyer said the divorce decree could be expected between February 10 and 20.

Lindstrom had visited Miss Bergman here late last April to "clarify the situation" after reports of her romance with Rossellini. It was thought, for a brief time, they might be reconciled.

But soon it was made known she intended to divorce Lindstrom and marry Rossellini, with whom she was making the film "Stromboli" on the Italian island of that name.

Some weeks ago the rumor started Miss Bergman was going to have a baby.

Only this week, when a report was published in New York that she had been rushed to a hospital in prospect of a birth she said: "That's crazy."

Miss Bergman, always shy, had been living in seclusion for months. But this afternoon Rossellini took her to the clinic and remained there while the baby was born.

"Then he called me and rushed over to tell me about it," the Catholic priest who announced the birth said.

"The name of the hospital will not be disclosed by us because we do not intend to permit Miss Bergman to be bothered by newspapermen and photographers until she has recovered fully.

"Her health is very good, but she has been under a great strain lately and we do not intend to submit her to any additional nervous excitement."

The baby born tonight is Miss Bergman's second. Her 11-year-old daughter Pia is in Hollywood with Lindstrom.

Rossellini's friend said Rossellini was "very happy" about the birth of the boy. No name had been picked for the baby, he added, and continued:

"Both Rossellini and Miss Bergman have agreed it will be baptized and brought up in the Catholic faith.

"Miss Bergman and Rossellini have been bothered so much by the press and so many falsehoods have been published that great precautions have been taken to assure that Miss Bergman will have privacy as long as possible.

"Things happened rather suddenly this afternoon. But we were prepared and Miss Bergman was taken to the hospital without anyone knowing of it."

In Hollywood, Dr. Lindstrom was in surgery at a hospital when news arrived the actress had given birth to a son in Rome. He could not be reached immediately for comment.

A spokesman said he was "sure news of the birth will have no effect on plans to release 'Stromboli' February 15 . . ." That is the date on which Miss Bergman may become free to marry Rossellini as a result of a divorce action she filed against Lindstrom in Mexico.

Dr. Lindstrom's spokesman also said he had "no comment" and doubted whether there would be any comment later. He said he "could not say" whether the birth would affect Lindstrom's own plans for a California divorce.

Bill to Extend Use of Housing Units Approved

A Senate Banking subcommittee yesterday approved legislation extending use of 894 veterans temporary housing units here until December 31, 1952.

Under existing law, the converted wooden barracks must be torn down before July 25. The extension provision will be offered as an amendment to the Administration's so-called middle income housing bill, now before the Senate.

Location of the units affected are: Overlook and Chesapeake sts. sw. (368 units); Portland st. se., between S. Capital and 2nd sts. se. (80 units); 31st and F sts. se. (71 units); Quarles st. ne., rear of Lily Ponds Homes (88 units), and 15th st. and Alabama ave. se. (287 units).

Bill Would Provide Aid For Needy U. S. Aides

Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) yesterday introduced a bill to authorize the U. S. Public Health Service to provide free medical care for needy Federal employes with at least 10 years' Government service.

The measure was referred to the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

Entries Arrive For Chinchilla Show Here

Some 300 chinchillas from all over the country are expected in town today for the National Chinchilla Show at the Shoreham Hotel.

Their quarters (cages) were being set up yesterday at the hotel. The three-day affair sponsored by the National Chinchilla Breeders Association of America is the first live-chinchilla show ever held east of Denver, Colo., S. W. Pangborn, of Mohican Hills, Md., show chairman, said.

Today there'll be entry of animals, registration of guests. Tonight an informal dinner is set, with educational talks by experts in research, ranching practices and fur quality.

Judging of the chinchillas will start Saturday morning. The public is invited from 10 a. m. to 5:30 p. m On Saturday night a banquet is scheduled.

"Berlin Command," by Gen. Frank Howley starts Sunday in The Washington Post. This is the first of a series of 12 articles dealing with the question—Can we get along with Russia?

Hill Unit Orders Probe Of Red Moves at Army Center in St. Louis

INQUIRY: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday ordered a full-dress inquiry into charges of Communist infiltration at the Army's Finance Center in St. Louis. This is the background on it:

A woman employe there made Communist charges against several of her coworkers. She was harassed, reportedly, both by employes and some officials and she was eventually fired as a troublemaker.

One way or the other, an investigation was made of the Communist charges and 10 employes at the center were dropped on loyalty charges, perhaps the largest number of such cases in any one single Federal office..

Representative Karst (D., Mo.) brought the matter to the attention of Chairman Murray who, in turn, sent committee staff members George Moore and Fred Belen to the agency to investigate. Since then, the Civil Service Commission and the General Accounting Office as well as the Army itself have launched inquiries.

At yesterday's committee meeting, Murray listed several serious charges against the agency, among them being Communist infiltration, falsification of personnel records, general laxity of administration, violations of Civil Service rules, and intimidating witnesses at loyalty hearings. A subcommittee made up of Karst, McCarthy (D., Minn.) and Rees (R., Kans.) was appointed by Murray to follow up the inquiries.

At VA's regional office here Rome D. Leandri has been appointed assistant chief of the vocational rehabilitation and education division, and Bartley A. Costello is the new chief of the training facilities section . . . At the office of education, William R. Wood of Evanston, Ill., has been appointed specialist for junior colleges . . . At Agriculture, Dr. Clarence H. Hoffman has been made an assistant to plan and direct research in the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine . . . At Civil Service, the second part of the junior management assistant exam is ready to be given. More than 1000 applicants here failed the written test given in December.

WAGE BOARDS: Congress has been asked to make binding on all agencies the wage recommendations of the Interdepartmental Lithographic Wage Board. And it's about time.

An estimated 5000 substitute printing employes were placed under a wage board procedure a year ago. Their jobs formerly had been under the Classification Act. An interdepartmental wage board was set up and it recommended a new system of wage rates to be effective as of July 1, 1949.

Some agencies put the new wage system into effect at that time. Others have ignored it. As a result, E. Edward Upton, the employe spokesman, has told members of Congress that there is neither equality of compensation for comparable work, nor coordination of rates and grades in Government.

G-GIRL DORMS: An order closing the remaining Arlington Farms and Langston Government girl dormitories as of June 30 is expected this weekend. A recommendation for the shut-down was made yesterday to Housing and Home Finance Administrator Foley. There have been relatively few protests to the proposed closing order.

The number of girls at Arlington Farms has slumped from 36'0 as of last April to 1763. At Langston, only one 450-capacity Negro girl dormitory remains open and it has only 147 tenants. The dormitories are reported to be operating at a big loss to Uncle Sam despite the substantial rent boost of several months ago.

A check has been made of personnel officials and they have no hope of hiring enough new girls within the next few months to fill the dorms. The Army is slated to take over the dormitories at the Farms and to convert them into apartments for married enlisted men.

Area Heads Back Bill To Bolster Park Board

House Subcommittee Hears Approval Given by Virginia, Maryland Planners

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Citizen and planning officials of Washington, nearby Maryland and Virginia yesterday gave unanimous general backing to a bill to strengthen the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

They spoke at the last of a two-day hearing before a House District Subcommittee, considering a measure almost identical to one already passed by the Senate.

Subcommittee Chairman Thomas G. Abernathy (D., Miss.) said he hopes to report the bill next week for full committee action, but will wait to hear from Representative Howard Smith (D., Va.) who wants to confer further with Arlington County officials.

Increased Membership

The bill extends NCPPC advisory control over Federal and District projects into the adjacent counties, but would increase the commission membership to include one representative each from Maryland and Virginia.

Horace W. Peaslee, speaking for the American Institute of Architects, provided a novel twist when he testified there are presently too many architect members on the commission.

Of the four presidential appointees, he said, three are architects, and one is an engineer.

He suggested only one member should be an architect, and offered an amendment to insure a "cross-section of the planning professions."

More Evenly Balanced

The problems of city planning are not primarily architectural, he said. "Regional as well as city planning is involved, and the planning of the National Capital and its environs calls for a more evenly balanced commission," he added.

Peaslee said the bill's provisions relating to supervision of Federal and District projects beyond the District line are of "vital concern to the citizens of those States for their protection, not for the aggrandizement of the commission's powers."

To further dispel some expressed fear that NCPPC is seeking to interfere with nearby county development plans, Peaslee added:

"During the quarter-century of its work, it (NCPPC) has spent far more time trying to overtake such conflicts than it would have taken to prevent them. Nothing is involved but a brief interval to find out what's brewing, with the final decision always in the hands of the agency most concerned."

Support From Four Groups

Miss Harlean James brought support of the measure from four planning groups: the Committee of 100 on the Federal City of the American Planning and Civic Association, the American Society of Landscape Architects, and the American Institute of Planners.

She also read into the record a resolution adopted by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, indorsing the bill in principle and urging its early enactment.

Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell, chairman of the Inter-Federation Council, gave enthusiastic backing to the measure "to make possible coordination of planning in all areas." The council is composed of citizen association delegates from all nearby counties.

Dentists Study Fluorination To Aid Teeth

A recommendation that drinking water in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties be treated with sodium fluoride to help preserve teeth will be made shortly.

This announcement was made yesterday by Dr. Irwin Freitag, chairman of a Southern Maryland Dental Society committee to study fluorination as a means of preserving teeth.

The recommendation will go to the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, Doctor Freitag said.

The society's suggestion calls for one part of sodium fluoride to each million parts of water.

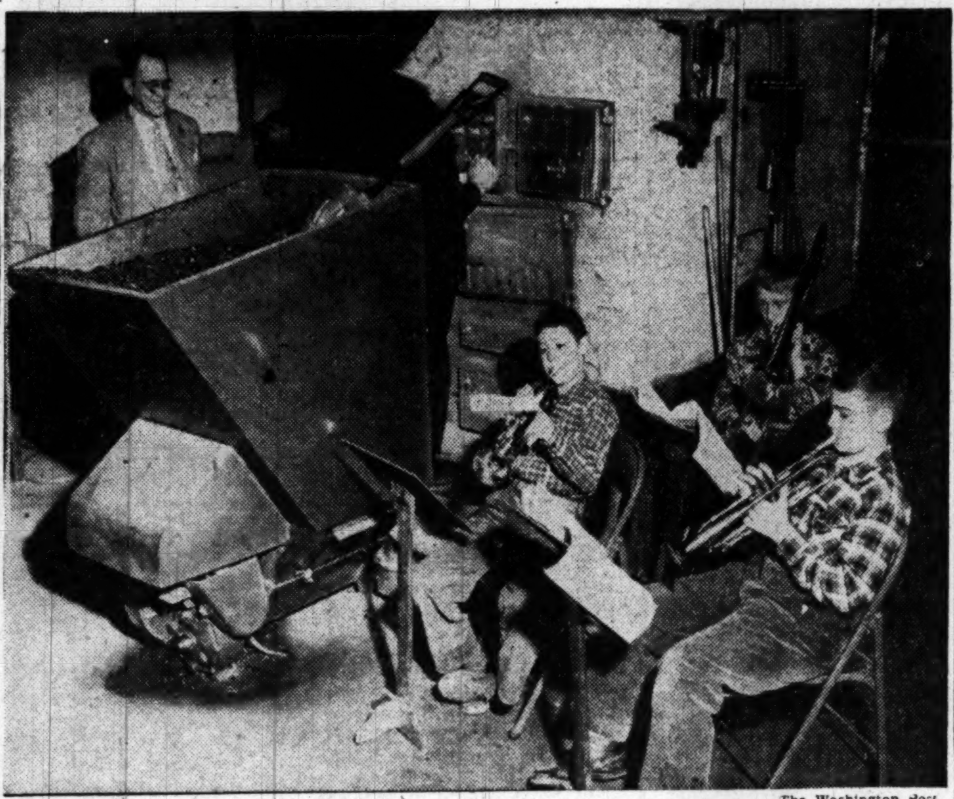
Fairfax Leaders Taken on Tour of Schools To See for Themselves Need for Bonds



The Washington Post

'BOILER ROOM BLUES'—Conditions are so poor at the Bailey's Cross Roads Elementary School that the band has to use the boiler room for rehearsals. Principal John Weben observes as Custodian John Wahl, jr., tends the furnace while the band plays on

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Every school day, an average of eight new students enter the Fairfax County schools.

In a week, the county school system adds enough children to fill a classroom. But the fast growing county lacks sufficient facilities to house the children it already has enrolled.

The makeshifts and expedients to which the county has resorted to provide a school roof over every child's head were shown yesterday to a group of Fairfax business and civic leaders.

They visited six schools in a trip conducted by School Superintendent W. T. Woodson and Mrs. Hugh McDiarmid, president of the Fairfax County Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Shown Conditions

Purpose of the tour was to let the county leaders see school conditions and then determine for themselves whether the county should vote for a proposed $10,500,000 school bond issue. Money from the loan would supplement the $1,500,000 which the county hopes to receive in state aid.

The school visitors yesterday saw children attending classes in quonset huts, basement rooms, auditoriums, and a tar-paper covered frame structure. Coal-fed pot-bellied stoves provided heat in most of these emergency facilities.

They also saw children eating cold lunches at their desks because of a lack of cafeteria or food service equipment. They walked in oozing mud in the areas set aside for children to play.

See Modern School

On the tour was an example of the type of building the school board will construct if the bond issue goes through.

It was a modern cinder block and glass building at Hollin Hall. The four classrooms are the first unit of a proposed 10-room building with cafeteria, auditorium and library.

The school board estimates that funds from the bond issue supplemented with State aid will provide adequate school housing to take care of present needs and those anticipated to 1951.

Yesterday's tour took the visitors to the Anandale Elementary School where they found classes meeting in the auditorium on the stage and in a mud-surrounded quonset hut.

Band Uses Furnace Room

At Bailey's Cross Roads School the band was practicing in the furnace room. The old structure has a single open wooden stairway leading to the second floor where four classes meet.

The Negro Gum Springs School lacks indoor water and toilet facilities. Each room of the frame building has its own coal burning stove.

Six separate structures are in use at the Groveton Elementary School. They are the main Groveton nine-room building, three quonset huts, a four-room tar paper structure and the two room, once abandoned old Groveton School. Students must leave the annex structures and cross the yard to the main school for water and toilet facilities.

Coast Guard Officer Found Shot to Death

A Coast Guard officer died yesterday of a bullet wound in his forehead at the Coast Guard radio station on Telegraph rd., south of Alexandria.

Mr. Allen

He was Chief Pay Clerk Jack Allen, 46, of 1453 N. Longfellow st., Arlington. His .45 caliber automatic was found beside his body.

A Coast Guard spokesman said he was found at 9:30 a. m. by Storekeeper 2/C Raymond Hamlin in a room of the radio laboratory building. Hamlin, in the next room, investigated when he heard a noise, it was reported.

The spokesman said the body was slumped over, with a bullet wound in the forehead. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Fort Belvoir Hospital.

An official board of inquiry has been convened to investigate the death.

A native of Memphis, Tenn., he served in the Army from 1925 to 1928 and then enlisted in the Coast Guard. He served aboard a number of cutters and at various shore installations over the country.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy R. Allen, and a son, John.

Jewish War Veterans Honor Heroic Chaplains

Services marking the heroic sacrifice of four Army chaplains who went down with the S. S. Dorchester in World War II will be held by the D. C. Jewish War Veterans tonight at 8 oclock at the Adas Israel Congregation, 6th and I sts. nw.

Murray V. Polin, chief of the Coast and Geodetic Survey International Technical Division and a relative of one of the chaplains, will be the principal speaker. Three armed forces chaplains also will be present.

Commissioners Refuse Review Of ABC Ruling on Club Permit

A request that the District Commissioners review the decision denying a liquor license to the nonsegregated Dixie Supper Club was turned down yesterday on the ground that they are powerless to act.

Raymond Godbersen, attorney for the club, said he will ask for a rehearing before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, and, if that fails, go to court.

The matter never actually reached the Commissioners. The letter of refusal was sent by their secretary, Geoffrey M. Thornett, on the advice of the Corporation Counsel.

Godbersen had appealed from a tie vote Tuesday in the ABC Board, which meant the application for a new license was rejected. The tie resulted when one member disqualified himself. The request for a review and final decision was based on the fact that Congress has delegated to the Commissioners authority "to control and regulate the sale of alcoholic beverages in the District."

He pointed out that the club, located in the Cavalier Apartments building, 3538 14th st. nw., had been issued licenses twice previously before it was opened to both Negroes and white persons last month. It is owned by Bob White's, Inc.

Arkansas Avenue Citizens Discuss Half-Filled Schools

The problem of filling up half-empty schools in the Arkansas Avenue area was discussed last night by the Arkansas Avenue Community Citizens Association.

While Albert E. Steinem, member of the Board of Education listened in, five association members voiced their views in a panel discussion at the Burdick Vocational School.

Advertising the area's excellent school facilities to draw more residents was suggested as one possibility by L. Seth Schnitman.

Schnitman also suggested that more of the community might be rezoned for apartment dwellings to bring in a higher potential school population.

Schnitman offered figures to show that only Powell elementary school had a near capacity enrollment.

Of the other schools in the community, West Elementary, Mcfarland Junior High and Roosevelt High were about half full. Schnitman said there were recent indications that the elementary school enrollment will rise.

Clifford H. Newell, association president, said it was unfortunate that MacFarland is only half used but, he said, "we want the school here and we'll fight to keep it here."

If it isn't feasible to keep MacFarland as a junior high school, Newell said it might be possible to convert the school to a teachers college or junior college.

Another panel member, John Cabot White, said "the lack of a junior college is the one missing link in our educational system here."

White described Central High School as a "very available site" for a junior college. The board of education is considering the transfer of Central to Negro students to relieve overcrowded Cardozo High School.

Mrs. Desmond Murphy described the teacher shortage here and suggested the possibility of using Roosevelt high school facilities to train teachers.

The more than 100 persons present voted unanimously to recommend the abolition of the personal property tax on household goods. They also voted to recommend a five-day work for Metropolitan policemen, who now work six days.

Connecticut Ave. Citizens Ask Library Building

A demand for a full. two-story building for the proposed Cleveland Park Library, as members said the Commissioners have previously promised, was demanded last night by the Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association.

The action was taken in a resolution voted at a meeting at the Parish House of All Souls' Episcopal Church, Woodley pl. and Cathedral ave. nw. The Commissioners now propose, members said, to build a one-story library structure.

The group also passed a resolution demanding sale of all public land at auction, after public notice, instead of by private sale. Frederick Bradley discussed the proposed new Washington Medical Center on the Naval Observatory grounds.

Fight Is Joined For Traffic Light

The Glencarlyn Citizens Association has joined the drive for a traffic light at Park rd. and Lee blvd., Arlington, where 12-year-old Fred Lehman was killed last Friday.

Association President Glen Squires said his group will join the Arlington Forest Citizens Association in circulating petitions demanding that the State install a traffic light there.

The Lehman boy's father, Howard W. Lehman last spring wrote the State Highway Department about the traffic light, asking, "Are we going to have to wait until a child is killed to have some action?"

Northeast Council OKs McMillan Bill on Pools

The Northeast Washington Council of Citizens Association last night endorsed the pending McMillan bill to give the District Commissioners control of all public swimming pools and playgrounds in the District.

Meeting at the Twelfth Precinct Station, the group also voted to ask Traffic Director George E. Keneipp to determine the need for traffic signals at Bunker Hill rd. and Eastern ave., at the District line.

Mother Reclaims Children Given To Welfare Board

Edith Christine Hernandez, 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Geraldine Little, who was turned over to the District Welfare Department with a 4-year-old half brother, David Gregory Hudson by Mrs. Little, was reclaimed by the mother on Tuesday.

Welfare Department officials said the girl had been cared for at the Industrial Home School Annex since last October as an "emergency case," but they had no reason to hold her.

Mrs. Little deposited the two youngsters with the Welfare Division because she contended that if the court held her not "fit person" to care for another child, she was not a "fit" mother for the others.

Man's Death in Cell Laid to Heart Failure

A 62-year-old man who was found unconscious and later pronounced dead in a cell at the 1st Precinct station early Wednesday died of congestive heart failure, an autopsy showed at the District Morgue.

He was identified as Robert L. Mann, of 810 5th st. nw.

Rapist Held Guilty, to Die in 'Chair'

Report of Jury Dooms Man, 27, In Attack on Girl, 9; Takes Verdict Calmly

A District Court jury yesterday found Ernest Tatum, 27-year-old laborer, guilty of raping a 9-year-old girl and recommended the death penalty.

The jury's recommendation makes it mandatory on Judge Alexander Holtzoff, the trial judge, to sentence Tatum to die in the electric chair.

Tatum, who is rangy and over six feet in height, took the conviction without visible emotion. The 60-pound girl he attacked, who was given two blood transfusions and 21 stitches by physicians who treated her after the rape, was not in court.

Tatum contended that he could remember nothing of the evening last July 29 when the little girl was ravished on a railroad embankment near the Union Terminal Market. Tatum said he had been drinking that day and felt that he had been drugged.

Attorney George E. C. Hayes, appointed by the court to defend, did not directly contest the Government charge that Tatum was the rapist. Hayes pleaded with the jury, however, to decline to recommend death, in view of Tatum's statement that he was not cognizant of the rape.

Assistant United States Attorney Cecil Heflin told the jury that the prosecution felt the jury should consider the death penalty under the facts.

The jury deliberated less than two hours before reporting.

Tatum, family sources said, attended only four years of elementary school in South Carolina. He had been previously arrested for drunkenness.

Youth Quizzed In Clay Murder To No Avail

Prince Georges detectives yesterday quizzed 18-year-old George B. Phelps, auto theft and holdup suspect, in an effort to link him with the slaying of a Berwyn gas station attendant last December and, they said, "got absolutely nowhere."

The detectives said that Phelps, now under $3000 bond on charges of unauthorized use of an auto, told them only to "see my lawyer, Chuck Wood."

The detectives, Richard Pearson and Earl Huber, said Wood was unknown to them. The Washington telephone directory lists no attorney by that name.

Police quoted him as saying he'd been "hiding out" in 9th st. nw. for the last several weeks since he learned he was sought in connection with auto thefts.

The detectives said he boasted of his prowess with pistol and rifle.

Pearson and Huber indicated they may interview the youth again next week although they admitted they had no clews to link him with the slaying of the filling station attendant, Winston Clark Clay, jr.

Phelps was arrested in a Washington movie house Tuesday night. Police said he admitted pulling two holdups and said he told them of tossing his pistol into woods near Anacostia rd. and Minnesota ave. ne.

A search of that area for the weapon yesterday proved futile, police reported.

Named Innocent, But Found Guilty, Man Gets 10 Days

The speeder's name was Calvin P. Innocent, but the judge found him guilty.

Innocent, 27, a Howard University residing at 1817 8th st. nw., was charged by police with driving at 70 miles per hour on Benning rd. ne., zig-zag fashion and without lights.

Judge George D. Neilson asked Innocent where he was going so fast.

"Just home," said Innocent.

"More likely to a hospital," replied the judge.

Innocent collected a 10-day jail term and $65 in fines.

Will Be 'Contact'

Maher Made Crime Probe Liaison Man

Daniel B. Maher, Special Assistant Corporation Counsel since last November, has been named liaison man between the District Commissioners and the House District Committee investigating Washington crime and law enforcement.

Maher

Committee Chairman James C Davis (D., Ga.) explained the committee counsel, Hyman I. Fischbach, wanted a "contact" with the District government and that Maher was designated for the role by the Commissioners.

Davis said that Maher in no sense is a member of the committee's staff, but instead is a "liaison man" between the committee and the Commissioners.

"Trouble Shooter"

Maher since 1947 has filled the role of "trouble shooter" for the District Commissioners on a number of important assignments.

1. Previously he had served as assistant U. S. Attorney on the staff of George Morris Fay, head of the Federal prosecutor's office here.

Among Maher's assignments in handling "hot potatoes" for the District Commissioners have been:

Preparation of a special report for Metropolitan Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett last spring on the work of his department in combatting gambling. It was worked up after District Attorney Fay's office cracked down on gambling. It was published after Barrett told reporters he would seek to show the police did as much in a month as Fay's office did in 10.

2. Presentation of charges against former Fire Chief Clement Murphy. Murphy was cleared, retired some time later.

3. An assignment to prepare an overall system of checking District employes' loyalty, a program later abandoned as one involving overly-complicated machinery to discover disloyalty.

Davis said there is no special significance about Maher's "liaison" assignment. He said he did not personally talk with Maher, and to his knowledge has not met him at any time. He said he was not informed about what information or service Maher furnished the committee.

Maher's role of assisting the committee was disclosed by a letter made public by the Commissioner. It was dated Nov. 8, 1949, to Committee Counsel Fischback from Commissioner John Russell Young. It said Maher had notified the Commissioners of a request from Fischback to furnish "certain factual data and other information" to the committee.

The letter said the Commissioners had authorized Maher to assist the Davis committee "in every way possible" and to be available for such assistance "at any and all times."

"The Board of Commissioners desires to inform you," the letter added "that the entire facilities of the District government are available to your committee to perform any services or furnish any information you may feel might be helpful to you in fulfilling the functions of your committee."

Maryland Set To Try Lewis Before Retrial

Judge Alexander Holtzoff of District Court yesterday postponed until March 8 the retrial of William (Snags) Lewis and 13 codefendants charged with conspiracy to violate the anti-gaming laws here.

The jurist suggested the United States Attorney's office procede with extradition of the men to Prince Georges County, Md., before the retrial.

The Maryland court has indicted the men on gaming charges.

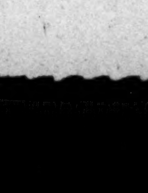
Last November Lewis and his alleged co-conspiritors were tried here but a hung jury resulted.

The extradition hearing is set for February 27. Maryland authorities said they have forwarded all necessary papers to have the men transported to that State.

Lewis is accused by the United States Attorney's office with heading a $14,000,000 betting syndicate.

Man Wanted on Narcotics Charge Found—in D. C. Jail

The Police Department became the slightly red-faced department yesterday. Members found that a man they have sought since last November on a narcotics charge was in the District Jail since January 9 on a drunk charge.



Davis at Milan, Mich., serving a 15-year

The defendant is Herman Covington Davis, 48, no fixed address. He was paroled last summer from a Federal prison at Milan, Mich., where he was serving a 15-year term for housebreaking imposed here in 1942, according to police.

Last November 27, they said, he went to a drug store at 14th and Girard sts. nw., where he attempted to negotiate a forged prescription for a substantial amount of cocaine. When the druggist became suspicious, police said, Davis left.

The defandant was given a 30-day sentence on a drunk charge on January 9 under the name of Davies, instead of Davis.

He was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner C. S. Lawrence on the forged narcotic prescription charge. Lawrence set bond at $1000 and held him for action of the grand jury.

Judge Jails 2 on Minor Charges and Denies Bail

Kronheim Later Relents; Both Had Offered to Pay $50 Maximum Fine

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Judge Milton J. Kronheim, jr., yesterday committed to jail two men without bail pending sentence but then relented and released them.

The unlucky defendants in Municipal Court were Harry L. Burka, convicted of permitting unsanitary conditions at his laundry plant at 530 7th st. se., and James A. Quick, 28, of 5317 Nash st. ne., found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Both men were willing to pay the maximum penalty, a $50 fine. However, the judge said that the circumstances in each case necessitated jailing.

He freed Burka in less than an hour and bond of $2000 was set for Quick later in the day.

Locked Courtroom

So irate was Judge Kronheim during the Burka case that he excluded spectators, locked the courtroom doors and then delivered a lecture to Burka's attorney, Milton M. Burke.

Burka was accused of keeping "unclean toilet bowls and seats, walls and floors in first floor toilets, unclean drinking fountains, floors, walls and stairways throughout. Ironing room in rear of first floor in need of dusting. Also did fail to provide adequate ventilation in both toilets and first floor."

Attorney Burke, however, contended this was merely "occupational" dirt, and that his client was doing the best he could with an old building.

Judge Kronheim then ordered Burka sent to the cell-block and continued sentencing for two weeks. After the judge relented. Burka said, according to his lawsay."

"I've been behind bars. That's something my grandfather can't say.

Fears for Public Health

The judge told a reporter that conditions were so bad at Burka's laundry that the public health might be affected. The judge said that Burka testified that he had been in business for 28 years and that conditions at his plant could not be improved to any great extent.

Sentencing was set February 16.

In Quick's case, his wife was in the courtroom ready to pay the fine, but Kronheim refused it. He said that he wanted Quick fully investigated to see whether he had done anything else wrong.

According to Kronheim, Quick cursed a policeman and threatened to take his life. Quick's attorney, William Bryant, denied the offense was serious.

Kronheim set bond at $2000, with sentencing scheduled for today.

When reporters pressed Kronheim for comment on the cases he said it was in his discreption to deny or grant bond. He said he did the former because a legal theory held that jailing a man pending sentence was punishment, despite the fact that a higher court ordered the defendants freed.

Dip in Chicken Prices Expected To End Shortly

Chicken prices continued to dip this weekend, making the bird one of the better current food buys.

One store, offering chicken as low as 29 cents a pound, noted the same freshly killed birds of two to three pounds sold for 43 cents a year ago. Chicken prices differ greatly, depending on the method of cleaning.

But higher wholesale prices are expected to raise retail price tags shortly. The New York poultry market was up three cents yesterday.

Increased egg output, reported by the Agriculture Department, is responsible for current lower egg prices. Meat prices are about the same as last week.

D. C. Has $3 Million Fund for Parkway

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District Engineer Commissioner, yesterday told the House Public Works Committee the District is ready to spend about three million dollars to tie the Washington-Baltimore Parkway into this city's street system.

But hs urged a bref delay on a pending bill for completing the parkway until the Commissioners can send an amendment that will make clear the Federal Government is to pay for carrying the parkway through Anacostia Park and across the Anacostia River.

Committee Chairman William M. Whittington (D., Miss.) said the delay will be granted, and indicated more hearings might be held when the amendment is received.

Harry Thompson, assistant superintendent of National Capital Parks, said the Commissioners' amendment would not be necessary. He agreed connections on park land within the District should be built at Federal expense, but that authority for this is provided in existing law.

The bill authorizes extension of the parkway from the District line to Fort Meade, Md., to connect with the Fort Meade-Baltimore stretch being built by Maryland.

Of three possible points for tieing the parkway into the District streets, General Young said the Commissioners favor two—New York ave. extended and Constitution ave. extended—and oppose one—Maryland ave.

He said the Commissioners are ready to find $2,250,000 to extend New York ave. ne. nearly a mile, and carry it on an overpass from the south to the north side of the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, and there connect with the Federally-built roadway. He said that would leave about half a mile of parkway within the District for the Federal Government to build—through a corner of the grounds of the National Training School for Boys, then through Anacostia Park, bridging the Anacostia River—to the parkway's intersection with the District line.

He outlined plans for a second extension of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway—down the east side of the Anacostia to a point near M st. ne., and there bridging to the west side and continuing south. (He also forecast a time when the parkway would be part of a through route by-passing Washington, and crossing the Potomac at Alexandria.)

He said the Commissioners are ready to spend an estimated $600,000 for widening of B st. to carry parkway traffic in a straight line into Constitution ave.

General Young said the District government will oppose channeling traffic from the proposed parkway via Maryland ave. ne. into the intersection of Florida ave., Benning rd. and 15th and H sts. ne. He said this is one of the worst intersections in the city.

Others who testified for the parkway program included D. S. Brinkley, planning engineer of the District Highway Department; Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District branch of the American Automobile Association, and Fred W. Tuemmler, director of planning of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

On Cadet Program

Dr. Corning Replies to Critic Lee

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning yesterday replied to criticism of the high school cadet program by declaring the corps will never grow as long as its shortcomings are "over emphasized."

He said school officers are "strongly of the opinion" that to grow the corp "must have the sympathetic understanding and support of teachers, officers, and members of the Board of Education."

Dr. Corning gave his views in a letter to board members. It was in answer to criticisms leveled at school officers by Board Member Adelbert W. Lee.

He said that while shortcomings should not be overemphasized "there is no reason that any facts should be withheld."

Dr. Corning said new military instructors have been provided for five schools but that he has been unable to find a qualified person for the job of military property custodian.

Close cooperation exists among the board of high school principals, the director of the cadet program and physical educations instructors, Dr. Corning reported. Lee had said he was informed of lack of cooperation among the various departments in promoting the cadet program.

The school board head said new arrangements are being made for uniforms and that the cadet year book will be improved.

THE REAL THING—A pair of European storks, a gift from the zoo at Rotterdam, Holland, arrived yesterday at the Washington Zoo, ready for early spring deliveries. The birds are of different genus from storks in this country. The latter are not true storks, but are related to the ibises, according to Dr. William Mann, Zoo director. The former are prone to standing on one leg when on chimneys and are partial to posing in profile when it comes to having their picture made

Mrs. Popp, District Resident 55 Years, Dies

Mrs. Katherine T. Popp, 73, a resident of Washington for the past 55 years, died Wednesday night after a long illness. Her husband, an electrical engineer, died here in 1930.

Born in Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. Popp came here at the age of 18. Surviving are two brothers, Samuel G. and Vincent Wilkinson, both of Jacksonville; four children, Richard J. Popp, 49 Michigan ave. ne., Mrs. Theresa Elam, 1526 Good Hope rd. se., and Mrs. James A. Kelly, 1329 Spring rd. nw; nine grandchildren and a great-grandchlid.

Requiem mass will be held Monday at 9 a. m. at the Holy Comforter Church, 1357 East Capitol st. and burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Ida Comras

Mrs. Ida Comras, 78, of 108 Battery Park la., Bethesda, died yesterday at Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, after a long illness.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Asher Achinstein, with whom she resided; a son, Manuel Comras, Miami Beach, Fla., and four grandchildren. Her husband died in Syracuse, N. Y., several years ago.

Mary Haworth's Mail

To Escape the Spell of a Man With Whom She Was Having an Affair, Girl Started Anew in Another Town, But Gossip Overtakes Her There

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A year ago I had an affair with a man who affected me so strongly that I forgot decency, reputation and self respect. I might have stayed with him indefinitely except that gradually I began to subject myself to close self-analysis and came to a realization that his powerful personality was such that it could overwhelm me just so long as I stayed close to him.

Accordingly I broke with him and left my home city to seek wholesome happiness elsewhere. I pondered long before I reached my decisions about the future, then eventually I decided that where my life was to begin anew I would forget the past.

I rapidly gained new friendships in the town where I settled and among these friends was Jim. He is a kindly and considerate man and over a period of time I have come to love him. I have been dating him steadily for nearly a year and only a short time ago he asked me to marry him. Now for the problem——.

Has She Forfeited Right to Be Loved?

HOW OR WHEN I do not know, but Jim has learned of my affair with the other man. He accuses me of being unfair in not speaking of it to him at the beginning of our friendship; and he says that inasmuch as I kept this from him, I would conceal more also. Immediately and pointedly he started to avoid me, and now I am miserably undecided about what to do next.

I have sincerely tried to conduct myself in a respectable, honorable way in this community. I have lived quietly and chosen my friends carefully. Is Jim right in thinking I am a cheat and a fraud in wanting to separate a distasteful segment of my life from the part that is honest and clean? Or am I right in supposing that a mistake, when recognized and rectified, is something that should be forgotten?

Is the woman who does wrong once, forever barred from the secure and happy life that every woman wants? Am I at fault for not entrusting Jim with the information that he is now so bitter about? Or is he wrong in not understanding a woman's reluctance to divulge anything not complimentary to herself? Please advise.

D. P.

Jesus Has Given Answer to This

DEAR D. P.: Surely the eloquent unassailable Christian answer to this kind of soul-searching is given in the Gospel according to John—see Chapter 8, verses 1 to 11, which preface Jesus' powerful statement, "I am the light of the world and he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Verses 1 to 11 tell the story of the woman taken in adultery, who was brought to Jesus by crafty men who sought to trap Him with a catch question. They said, "Master, this woman was taken in adultery and Moses in the law commanded us that such should be stoned; but what sayest thou?"

Then, according to John's gospel, "Jesus stooped down and with His finger wrote on the ground, as though He heard them not. So when they continued asking He lifted up Himself and said unto them, 'He that is without sin among you, let him cast a first stone at her.' And again He stooped down and wrote on the ground. And they which heard Him, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest even unto the last. And Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.

"When Jesus lifted Himself and saw none but the woman He said unto her, 'Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee?' She said, 'No man, Lord.' And Jesus said unto her, 'Neither do I condemn thee; go, and sin no more'."

Her Chief Critic Is Blindly Anxious

THE BIBLE refers to John as the Disciple whom Jesus loved, and he is known as "the apostle of love"—and toward the end of his very long life John writes (see 1 Epistle 1:8) "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us." And this I tuck in for the benefit of those who (presuming upon their abstinence from sins of the flesh, so-called) tend to put the heat on their brethren's blunders in this category, while overlooking subtle sins of malevolence in their own hearts.

Jim's sharply rejecting behavior and suspicious "reasoning" since hearing of your repented affair suggests to me that he is an utterly confused and anxious man, whose craving for all types of security is so acute (and unsatisfied) that he isn't able to love magnanimously, with insight, acceptance and creative compassion—which is the only love that ever enables the self and the partner to grow. So, for advice, gently let him go out of your life; and stay on the beam of your morally sound resolve to forget the past and "grow into the light."

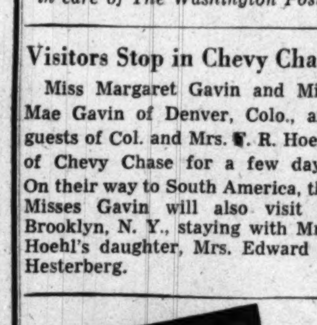
Visitors Stop in Chevy Chase

Miss Margaret Gavin and Miss Mae Gavin of Denver, Colo., are guests of Col. and Mrs. F. R. Hoehl of Chevy Chase for a few days. On their way to South America, the Misses Gavin will also visit in Brooklyn, N. Y., staying with Mrs. Hoehl's daughter, Mrs. Edward J. Hesterberg.



IN A HURRY? TRY A 1-HOUR COAST-TO-COAST FLIGHT

Ever thought of moving 10,000 miles an hour? You may be doing it soon. Scientists say that the day is not too far distant when passenger-bearing rockets will be streaking from Los Angeles to New York on regular one-hour flight schedules. For a word and picture description of rocket travel read "Coast to Coast — at 10,000 Miles an Hour" this Sunday in Parade.

When Waist Must Be Let Out, It's Time to Cut the Calories

By Ida Jean Kain

A CROWDED waistband can be evidence of flabby muscles slumping on the job. But when the waistband has to be let out, it's high time to check weight on the scales. Just two added pounds can cause the waist to spread a half inch!

The "full" measure test is—how does the waistband feel and fit 15 minutes after dinner? When it's a mite tight, that's the sign its owner has eaten beyond the satiety signal.

I still think it would be expedient if a bell would ring out as we went to take the very bite that would go to waist. We would blush and ask to be excused. But since we have a will of our own, the answer is to use it.

Essential Nutrients

THE safe way to stay within food requirements is to go by the excellent rule "eat what you should first." That is the only way to insure adequate nutrition. At dinner, eat the main course, the meat, fish or fowl, vegetables, a potato and a salad. . . . no warning bell would ring. With normal weight and normal activity, you would be entitled to bread and butter with the potato. But with that well-rounded meal, the only dessert within calorie limits is fruit. A piece of devil's food cake at 350 calories would sound the alarm.

Extra Calories

THE TRUTH is, most people who do sedentary work cannot eat all the fat trimmings and rich desserts every day and have sufficient calorie allowance to include an abundance of the protective materials needed to keep the body hitting on all 16 cylinders. If they eat all the foods, that puts the calories over the top of their needs. Extra calories promptly go to waist.

But back to the tests. When the waist widens, check weight on scales, cut down a bit at dinner, omit between-meal snacks . . . and add a stretching exercise to tone the middle muscles.

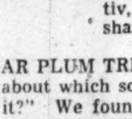
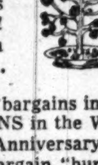
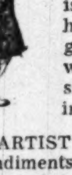
PLENTY OF PARKING IN VIRGINIA



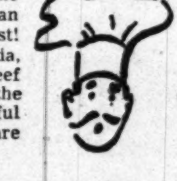
BRADSHAW'S FOR OVER A CENTURY! . . . We're happy this week to recommend a Shoe Store that has been serving N. Virginia for over a century with a continuous atmosphere of friendliness and personal interest! Bradshaw's, 508 King, Alex., has gained the confidence and loyalty of many with such appreciative service! Among the famous names in shoes at Bradshaw's you'll find Florsheim, Red Cross, Paradise, Penaljo, Simplex, Flexies, Pro-tec-tiv, Kali-sten-Iks, Orthopedic Footwear. Visit Bradshaw's for your Spring footwear! 508 King St., Alex.



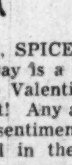
SUGAR PLUM TREE! . . . This is the lovely plastic tree about which so many have asked, "where can I find it?" We found it at MAYER'S in Clarendon! The Sugar Plum Tree is perfect for a Valentine's center piece, later as an unique way to serve hors d'oeuvres! When not in use, fold it flat for storage! 13" Suger Plum Tree with bag of heart-shaped gum drops, $2.50. Mayer's, 3169 Wilson Blvd. OX. 1171.



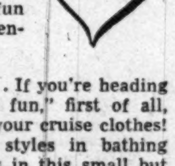
IT'S A GREAT DAY . . . for finding bargains in Children's wear at JUVENILE FASHIONS in the Wash.-Lee Shopping Center! Their 3rd Anniversary Sale is still in progress and altho the bargain "hunters" have made inroads in Sale items, there are still some good "buys" left! We noted infants' snowsuits as well as ones for older boys and girls, slacks, polo shirts, coat and leggin sets, hats, etc. Not everything in every size, however!



A FINE ARTIST . . . in the arts of food has to so blend condiments, etc., as to subtly bring forth the best in whatever dish is being prepared The Italian chef at the CASA MIA is in this respect a true artist! Gastronomically speaking, we feel the Casa Mia, specialties are praiseworthy! The Stuffed Beef Roll, Baked Stuffed Lasagna, Ravioli, Pizza, the many sauces all make the Casa Mia a delightful place! Italian imported or domestic wines are served. 3217 Columbia Pike, Arl.



LOOK TO WYNN'S . . . yes, keep your eyes on Wynn's for almost every day brings new and outstanding fashions in dresses, suits, coats, blouses, lingerie! This week we saw so many new things arriving including "names" like Jonathan Logan, Henry Rosenfeld, Ken Whitmore, Dawnelle and others as familiar as your own name! Wynn's feature "name" labels in both shops. The two locations in Arlington, 3134 Wilson Blvd., and 2215 N. Glebe Rd. Wynn's invite charge accounts.

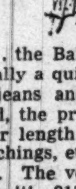


SUGAR, SPICE, EVERYTHING NICE! . . . Valentine's Day is a day to sweetly express "sentiment" and the Valentine cards we saw at TAYLOR'S do just that! Any and every type card from the slightly on the sentimental side to the cleverly comical are included in the assortment and range up to $1. Make-them-yourself sets with all materials are fun for the children. Boxes with the makings of 8 Valentines, 25c. 3155 Wilson Blvd., Clarendon.

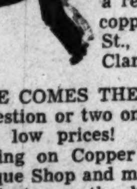
A NEW SUN IN A NEW SKY! . . . If you're heading South for a few weeks' "sun 'n fun," first of all, stop by MERIDIAN MODES for your cruise clothes! We've seen some truly teriffic styles in bathing suits, slacks, skirts, sports outfits in this small but definitely unusual shop! Really, if you're looking for the unusual, smartly styled casual clothes, Meridian Modes is definitely the shop! Here is where you'll find the outstanding Rebajas Copper. 3020 Wilson Blvd. OX. 1204, CH. 4337.

KITCHEN SWEET KITCHEN! . . . Homemakers probably spend more hours in the kitchen than anywhere else! The Va. Floor Covering shop has ways and means of making those hours more pleasant and more charming with formica top. Formica top will add brightness and cheer as well as life to your kitchen. Whether you're building or remodeling, the use of formica top is perfectly suited to your tastes, needs and budget! The VA. FLOOR COVERING, 5723 Lee Hgy., Arl.

YOU'LL BE SO SORRY! . . . yes, you'll be sorry indeed if you miss seeing the nice and pretty prints at RAYE'S. We're usually quite excited over the things we find in this thrift-minded specialty shop and these prints, believe us, are as exciting as anything we've seen! In all the lush Spring color combinations and materials including silks! Raye's thrift-minded prints are bright and cheery just what you want for now, and later without coats! 5867 N. Wash. Blvd. Near Falls Church.

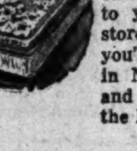


CLOSING-OUT OF HALF SIZES! . . . Bonner's in the Powhatan Shopping Center is "closing-out" all Fall and Winter half-sizes at almost give away prices! There're some tremendous bargains for sizes 16½ to 24½ in slim youthful lines. If you're looking for an outstanding tho inexpensive Spring hat by all means see those at BONNER'S! It's new, the Hat Bar, and the price range is $2.95-$4.95. Felt Berets, $1.95. 1334 Powhatan St., Alex.



CLIPPITY-CLOPPING ALONG! . . . the Baby Fair Shops have "clipped" rather drastically a quite nice Western chap set including blue jeans and vest! Formerly priced $3.98, as we've said, the price has been "clipped" to $1.98! The boxer length denim blue jeans come with reinforced stitchings, etc., and a red stripe down the side for trim. The vest has copper riveting, Jr. or Sis will love it! 815 King St., 3901 Mt. Vernon Ave., Alex., 3165 Wilson Blvd., Clarendon.

HERE COMES THE BRIDE . . . and here comes a suggestion or two on fine wedding gifts at astonishingly low prices! We've seen and admired the Sterling on Copper gift pieces at the CARLYLE Antique Shop and marveled at so much for so little! For instance, the beautifully done S. O. C. Ice Bucket, $12.50! To accompany it, a Sterling Bottle Opener, $7.50. Also saw a Sleepy Hollow chair. 133 N. Fairfax, Alex.



THERE'S A DREAM HOME IN YOUR FUTURE . . . with furnishing by P. J. Nee, 215 King St., Alex.! Every day wondrous new furnishings are appearing on the floors of P. J. NEE to give charm and cheer to your home! During Feb., this nice furniture store is featuring bedding of all description! Here you'll find one of the largest selections of bedding in N. Va. including Serta, Simmons Beauty Rest and Chinese Classic mattresses. We suggest visiting the P. J. Nee furniture store for good buys always!

D. C. Catches Breath for the Big Go-round

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

WASHINGTON'S party round is a racetrack today. There'll be dinners and dances and countless cocktail parties. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz are giving a dinner and dance for the Vice President and Mrs. Alben Barkley, the Waltz Group is dancing at the Sulgrave Club, and Mrs. Clark McIlwaine is giving a small dance at the 1925 F Street Club for her daughter, Mrs. Pierce Simpson, and the Marquess of Milford Haven, who will be married Saturday.

In preparation for today's events, Washington partygoers had a tranquil time yesterday. It was a quiet day in a busy week, a catching up time in preparation for the big blow. There were small luncheons and dinners and a party or two "from 6 to 8."

Myrna Loy Will Return for Benefit

MYRNA LOY, screen star, came to town yesterday, lunched with Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador, and promised to return for the Cavalcade of Fashion which will be held at the Mayflower on April 13. The Greek fashion show is sponsored by Queen Frederica of Greece and Mrs. Henry F. Grady, wife of the United States Ambassador to Greece.

Also at the luncheon yesterday were Mrs. Charles Brannan, Mrs. George McGhee, whose husband is Assistant Secretary of State; Miss Alice Curran, assistant to the Secretary of State and an old friend of Miss Loy; Mme. Warsamy, wife of the first secretary of the Greek Embassy; Miss Hazel Edgar and Miss Lena Valsami, sister of the hostess.

General and Mrs. Chapman Busy Saying Farewell

MAJ. GEN. AND MRS. JOHN AUSTIN CHAPMAN have the heaviest social schedule of almost any couple in town. With their popular daughter, Miss Betty Chapman, they are leaving Washington on the fifteenth, and meanwhile they are very busy saying farewell to their many friends.

A party for them was given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Parry, jr., of Cricket Hill in McLean, Va. Among the guests were Maj. Gen. Stephen Shoosmith, new head of British Army Staff, and Mrs. Shoosmith, who have rented Downscrest, former residence of Donald Downs near Chain Bridge, Va.

Other guests included the Military Attache of the British Embsasy and Mrs. Windsor Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Carl McCardle, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ayres, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Graves and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Prichett. Besides numerous other parties, a dinner honoring the Chapmans will be given by the Australian Ambassador and Mrs. Makin on Thursday, February 9.

Bride-Elect Entertains Bridesmaids at Luncheon

MISS VIRGINIA LARKIN entertained yesterday for her bridesmaids. Her luncheon was given at the quarters of her parents, Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas B. Larkin, at Fort Myer, Va. Miss Larkin's marriage to Hugh McCann, Charge d'Affaires of the Irish Legation, will take place tomorrow at Fort Myer Chapel.

Three lawyers were decorated yesterday by the Ambassador of Finland, Dr. K. T. Jutila. John Laylin of Washington and Frank Foley of New York were presented with the Order of Commander of the Finnish Lion, and Edward Howard of Washington was decorated with the Order of the Knight, first class, of the Finnish Lion. The ceremony took place at 5 o'clock at the legation residence, 3001 Woodland dr.

Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock gave a dinner last evening for former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Davies who are departing soon on a cruise around South America on board the Nieuw Amsterdam.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodlief Thomas of Chevy Chase are having friends in for cocktails Sunday afternoon.

Pierre Siraud, Counselor of the French Embassy, who has just returned from a month's holiday in Central and South America, entertained at luncheon yesterday at La Salle du Bois.

Senator Castillo de Ledon, new chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Robertson Marshall entertained last evening at dinner at the Shoreham. The Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de la Colina were ranking guests.

DATEBOOK DATA:

Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould will entertain at dinner on Thursday, February 9, for the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne. This is the first in a series of dinners to be given by Mrs. Gould.

All Souls' Church Suppers Build Fellowship and Funds

By Lucia Brown

SERVING dinner for 50—or 500—doesn't phase the ladies of many a Washington church. Though some large churches here employ a full-time hostess and kitchen help, parishioners do all the work at others when the dinner bell's about to ring.

At All Souls Memorial Episcopal, the job of turning out large scale meals on a volunteer basis has been reduced to a science. Monthly dinners for the men's club, luncheons for the women, parish dinners, bazaar suppers and other special meals are served with a minimum of fuss and fuming in the church building at Cathedral ave. and Woodley pl. nw.

Of course, this keeps the newly equipped kitchen a busy place and the women of All Souls busy, too. But they do the work with enthusiasm because they have a dual aim—building up church fellowship and raising $5400 for kitchen improvements. Kitchen and dining room are located in the basement of the church, a pretty gray stone structure. The Rev. Frank Blackwelder is rector.

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

MRS. M. P. FARNSWORTH (left) and Miss Grace Sothoron, a cochairman for the All Souls' Church dinner, put turkey dressing on the plates as the first step

Chairmen Reveal Trade Secrets

CHAIRMEN for meals served at the church are Mrs. George Riley and Miss Grace Sothoron. Here's the way their plans went for a recent parish turkey dinner, which was attended by 400 persons at $1.50 a plate, and netted $408 by virtue of thrifty management and some contributed food.

Twelve big turkeys and other supplies were purchased with the expert aid of Miss Annah B. Sheldon. Then 12 volunteers were asked to be responsible for stuffing and baking a turkey apiece. Some cooked their allotment at home, others in the church kitchen.

Some 50 members in all helped get the meal. They were organized in shifts for the day of the dinner. One crew came in the morning and set the tables, another in the afternoon to cook vegetables, prepare cups of cranberry jelly, plates of butter and pans of rolls.

A small but talented crew of four masculine church members came in at 4 p. m. to carve the turkeys. The sliced meat was then tucked away in steam tables to be kept hot. Another shift came later to work in the kitchen while the meal was being served, and still another to wait on tables.

Coleslaw and Turkey Applauded

EVERYBODY commented particularly on the coleslaw and the stuffing in the turkey, so we begged the large scale recipes for these from Miss Sothoron:

COLESLAW FOR 400

75 pounds cabbage
1½ gallons any good commercial salad dressing
1 quart vinegar
1 quart milk
2 pounds sugar
2 boxes (4 tablespoons) celery seed
1 quart prepared mustard
1 cup salt (or salt to taste)
2 tablespoons pepper

The cabbage is washed and put in the refrigerator for crisping the night before. Next day it's cut up with a large hand chopper. The dressing, vinegar, milk, sugar, and seasonings are mixed together. Shortly before serving, the dressing and chopped cabbage are mixed together in small batches. This method is much easier and better, they say, than trying to mix it all together at once. The slaw is returned to the refrigerator to await serving.

TURKEY DRESSING
(for a 20-pound bird)

1 cup chopped onion
2 cups chopped celery
2½ pounds finely cubed day-old bread
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon celery seed
Salt and pepper to taste

Melt ¼ pound (1 stick) butter in a frying pan and saute the onions and celery in this fat. Mix well with the bread and seasoning, then pour over this the other ½ pound of butter, melted. Stuff into bird immediately.

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

SERVING is simple with the steam table arrangement in the remodeled kitchen of all Souls' Memorial Episcopal Church. This scene at the recent turkey dinner shows how plates are passed along the steam tables and filled as they go, to be handed to the line of guests passing the window outside. In the foreground are (left to right): Mrs. William H. Waters and Mrs. Harry V. Hayden, jr.

President Truman still has the Congress with him. In spite of rain and competition at Constitution Hall where a benefit for the Heart Association was going on, there was a big crowd at the Congressional Club. It was the club's annual reception for the Chief Executive and First Lady.

The President, in white tie and tails, Mrs. Truman wearing a gray lace gown with cerise velvet sash and a white orchid on her shoulder, arrived at 9 p. m. They were met by Mrs. Ralph Church, president of the club, in a gown of black and silver brocade, and Representative Church of Illinois.

On his way upstairs the President spied peppery May Craig, correspondent for a string of Maine papers. He flashed a smile.

"Did you get rid of those surplus Maine potatoes?" he asked, referring to controversy at his press conference earlier in the day.

Guests Assemble Early

Guests had been asked to assemble a half hour before the fete actually got under way. Chief Justice Fred Vinson, Justice Tom Clark, Justice Sherman Minton wore a black tie. Others in the group in the first floor drawing room awaiting the arrival of the honor guests were Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Mrs. Stanley Reed, without the Justice; Mrs. Sherman Minton, Justice and Mrs. Harold Burton, and Presidential Assistant John Steelman and Mrs. Steelman.

First "down the line," first to leave were Senator Kenneth Wherry, Republican whip, and Mrs. Wherry, presumably going on to Constitution Hall to watch the Senator's colleagues in the original amateur hour. Dixiecrat Senator Olin Johnston and Mrs. Johnston were there and Massachusetts' Republican Senator Leverett Saltonstall and Mrs. Saltonstall. Others were Senator and Mrs. Clinton Anderson, former Philippine Ambassador and Mrs. Emmet O'Neal, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, and Representative John Davis Lodge, looking like a movie star, with dramatic Mrs. Lodge in ruby red velvet, who were in the receiving line.

Officers of Club

Welcoming guests with Representative and Mrs. Church and President and Mrs. Truman were officers of the club and their husbands. These included Senator and Mrs. Sheridan Downey, Representative and Mrs. Hal Holmes, Representative and Mrs. Lawrence B. Hays, Representative and Mrs. Carl T. Curtis, Representative and Mrs. Paul Kilday and Representative and Mrs. Lawrence Smith.

The red tunics of the Marine Band made a splash of color in a corner of the oval ballroom and a buffet table was set up in the dining room.

Club members acted as hostesses, under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. Sterling Cole. Wives of Cabinet members and the Justices of the Supreme Court served coffee, assisted by the members of the 74th Congressional Club, to which Mrs. Truman belonged when the President was a member of the Senate. Mrs. William C. Whittington was in charge of arrangements downstairs where the President and Mrs. Truman were received.

Fashion Is Up Your Sleeve This Spring

It's an inexplicable paradox that big sleeves should come in at the same time as completely sleeveless dresses and blouses!

Big sleeves are an important part of the new "Top Look" as they create the breadth and bulk that is the chief characteristic of this fashion.

There are full loose sleeves shirred into a drop shoulder; also similar sleeves caught into a tight cuff, either just below the elbow or at the wrist. There are wide mandarin sleeves jutting from big square armholes. And of course the popular dolman sleeve is still with us in everything — coats, suits, dresses, blouses and sweaters.

Take It Easy When Feeding Infant His First Thick Food

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

IT IS DIFFICULT, at first, for a baby to swallow a thick food. He has been used to managing only drops of fluid for so long that this thick food on a strange utensil causes him to choke in an effort to get it down.

Cereal is usually the first food given the baby and a prepared baby cereal the first choice. This is easy enough to dilute to soupy proportions so that it may be sucked off the tip of the spoon and swallowed without difficulty. See that it is as warm as the baby's breast milk or formula and use a narrow spoon. Let the baby take just a portion of a spoonful so that he is flushed with success instead of frightened by choking.

If he pushes the spoon out of his mouth with his tongue, as he has been wont to treat the bottle nipple, then laugh and wipe off his chin and try another spoonful. This is habit, rather than a symptom of dislike for this new food.

And a pleasant face, a laugh when things go wrong, will keep the baby in a mood to make renewed efforts. This is strange food, unlike any he has ever known. It is a strange utensil and if, in addition, he finds his mother annoyed at his behavior, he'll cry instead of wanting to attack the spoonful she presents to him.

It demands calmness and a sense of humor to persuade the baby that his efforts are all for his own good and that soon he is going to enjoy this new food.

The Village Smithy Wears Cap and Gown

By Ellen Buell Parry

THE village smithy, we are well aware is a thing of the past and, to be sure, the horse gets home service nowadays. What we didn't know, heretofore, was that the horseshoer now is a college graduate.

In the Providence Journal, published at McLean, Va., appeared this ad recently: "Horseshoes made to order at your stable, by Graduate, University of Horseshoeing, Lexington, Ky."

If the horse can demand a college education of the fellow who shoes him, why can't we require a degree of the man who attends to the human hoof? Come to think of it, our new shoes have started pinching—maybe that's because our shoe salesman ain't had a fittin' college education.

HEREAFTER, the J. Lacey Reynolds will warn their cook when they've invited someone to the house. Recently the Reynolds drove in from their home near Burke, Va., to have dinner with Senator and Mrs. Estes Kefauver. Shortly thereafter, the Reynolds' cook and the two Reynolds children responded to a knock at the door. There stood two men, each with a shiny object in his hand. The cook screamed and, with the children following, ran through the house, out the back door, across a briar field to a neighbor's home. The neighbor called the Fairfax County police who, thanks to two-way radio, were at the scene a few moments later. They caught the men red-handed, sitting in their car, and hauled them off to headquarters.

Meanwhile, by coincidence, Lacey telephoned to his home from the Kefauvers, and got no answer. Surprised and worried, he called the Fairfax police, only to learn that a squad car had just been dispatched to his house in response to a call for help.

Terrified, the Reynolds jumped into their auto, drove home at breakneck speed. There the cook and children disconnectedly told about the men with the guns and about the police taking them to Fairfax. Lacey hurried on to police headquarters.

The two men under detention almost embraced him as he entered. They turned out to be weatherstripping salesmen previously invited by Lacey to drop by some evening and estimate the cost of some stormproofing at his place.

What the cook and children described as guns turned out to be some L-shaped pieces of weatherstripping, brought along as samples.

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD TOMMY KNOOP of Woodacres, was being taken by his father to visit his aunt in Virginia. Father noticed Tommy was chewing gum.

"You know how your Aunt Boo Boo feels about chewing gum, son!" he admonished.

"Yes, dad," he responded. "I remember; —I won't give her any."

MRS. CHARLES HOWZE, wife of the urological surgeon but better known now as Cary Grant's Aunt Hannah, arrived from New York via Union Station the other day and took a taxi to her home. There's no fixed taxi fare from Washington to McLean, so she got to worrying about what the tariff would be.

En route, the taxi driver delivered a dissertation on the high cost of living, adding: "The only people that have any money these days are the doctors." Mrs. Howze started squirming.

The cabbie continued: "If you're a surgeon, you're really rich . . . why I know a urological surgeon who lives in Silver Spring—and you know that if anyone can live in Silver Spring and work in Washington, he's bound to be rich."

This story has a happy ending. When the taxi drew up, Dr. Howze came to greet Aunt Hannah in his dungarees and an old work shirt, looking far more like a day laborer than a surgeon. The fare was very reasonable.

New Sewing Club For Mothers With Small Children

By Jean Belaire

Sewing club groups have been planned to fill the needs of young mothers with small children of school or pre-school age and a minimum amount of free time in which to plan and make wardrobes for themselves and the children. These mothers are taught how to make clothing out of anything from father's out-worn tuxedo to flour sacks. Big sister's last year's dress becomes baby's first play suit. This class meets the need for every conceivable type of sewing for the home, from draperies to dungarees. The members of this group who wish to bring along children of pre-school age are extended the privilege of using one of the classrooms as a nursery during this morning period, with the provision that each group will independently arrange to employ one supervisor for every ten children. The school is equipped with a complete electric kitchen and is air-conditioned. Children can be taken to a park within a block of the school in fair weather. If this is your idea of heaven, you'll find it at The Belaire School of Practical Dress Design, at 821 19th St. N.W. STerling 9040.

Holiday Pancakes Will Cook Early

By Nicha Soure

GOLDEN pancakes symbolizing the sunshine of life, served with lemon for the bitterness of sin and sugar for the sweetness of forgiveness comprise a typical Shrove Tuesday fare in English countries.

The Daughters of the British Empire will celebrate this holiday—the day before Ash Wednesday—a bit early this year. Although Shrove Tuesday falls on February 21, the Daughters will hold their benefit pancake tea on February 11 from 3 to 6 p. m. at the home of Mrs. William Hugh Dunn, 3216 Cleveland ave. Proceeds from the affair will be used for the Victoria Home for the Aged at Ossining, N. Y., and other welfare projects of the organization.

Mrs. James W. Boyer, who has made Shrove Tuesday pancakes in Washington for over a decade, will make the pancakes for this year's celebration. Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, and Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Canadian Minister, will attend the pancake tea.

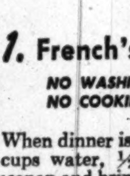
7 QUICK, EASY WAYS TO VARY YOUR MENUS

by Carol French

CAROL FRENCH
Home Service Department

HERE ARE 7 QUICK, EASY DISHES to vary your menus—all made with the wonderful new food product, French's Instant Potato! It can be turned into creamy, mashed potato in just 1 minute. It combines easily with other foods to make delicious soups, meat and fish dishes, rolls and pastries. You'll be delighted with the many exciting ways to use French's Instant Potato. We know that once you've tried it you will never want to be without it!

Clip these recipes for your file or cook book!



1. French's Mashed Potato

NO WASHING! NO PEELING!
NO COOKING! NO MASHING!

When dinner is ready to serve, put 1½ cups water, ½ tsp. salt in medium-sized saucepan and bring to a boil. Remove pan from heat and add ½ cup cold milk. Commence stirring with wire whip or fork, then add ½ cup French's Instant Potato. Beat until light and fluffy. Add butter and pepper to taste. Makes 2 cups mashed potato.

2. Potato Soup

To 3 cups very hot (but not boiling) milk, stir in gradually ¼ cup French's Instant Potato. Stir over low heat until mixture thickens to desired consistency. Season to taste with onion salt, pepper and butter. If preferred thinner, add milk. Sprinkle with paprika. Serves 3. (For each additional serving use 1 cup milk and 1 heaping tablespoon French's Instant Potato.)

3. Party Potatoes

To two cups mashed potato, beat in 1 to 2 tbs. minced chives, or 1 tbs. chopped watercress and 1 tsp. finely cut mint leaves.

4. Codfish Cakes

2 cups mashed potato made with French's Instant Potato
2 tbs. butter or margarine
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ tsp. French's White Pepper
Dash French's Nutmeg
2 cups salt cod fish, freshened

Add butter, pepper, nutmeg and egg to mashed potato. Beat until light and fluffy. Freshen fish according to directions on fish package. Add fish to potato mixture and mix well. Chill. Shape into balls or patties. Roll in French's Instant Potato powder. Fry in deep fat heated to 390°F. or brown in a little fat in a frying pan. Drain on absorbent paper.

5. Cocoanut Kisses

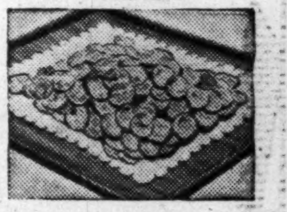
1 teaspoon butter or margarine
1 lb. confectioner sugar
½ teaspoon French's Almond Extract
1 4-oz. can moist cocoanut

Measure mashed potato made with French's Instant Potato into a medium-sized bowl. Add butter. Beat in gradually the sifted confectioner sugar. Add French's Almond Extract and cocoanut. Mix thoroughly. Drop by spoonfuls on wax paper to harden.

6. French's Fried Potatoes

Bring 2 cups water to brisk boil in medium-sized saucepan; while still boiling, quickly stir in 1 cup French's Instant Potato. When slightly cooled, turn out on lightly floured board. Roll ¼ inch thick. Cut into strips ¼ inch wide and 2 inches long. Fry in small batches in shallow fat (2 inches deep) heated to 390°F. until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Salt. Serves 6-8.

7. Cocktail Puffs



Prepare potato "dough" as for French's Fried Potatoes. Roll out as thin as possible. Cut with cookie cutter 1 inch in diameter. Fry in shallow fat. Salt. Delicious hot or cold.

17 OTHER WAYS to make cooking quicker—easier—better!

Our new recipe book, "DINING DELIGHTS" tells you how to make these delicious dishes with French's Instant Potato:

- Roast Chicken with French's Instant Potato Dressing
- Chocolate Cake
- Stuffed Frankfurters
- French's Pancakes
- Meat Loaf
- Baltimore Crabmeat Cakes
- Baked Fish Fillets Atlantis
- French's Doughnuts
- Refrigerator Rolls
- French's Scones
- Steamed Pudding

French's Instant Potato is a wonderful help to:

- Quickly top a meat or chicken pie
- Coat fish, croquettes, cutlets before cooking
- Coat French-fried onions before cooking
- Make white sauce (recipe on package)
- Thicken gravy or stews
- Make meat go farther—hamburgers, hash

Doctors recommend for Infants—

French's Instant Potato is made from top-quality potatoes precooked by a special process that preserves nutritional values and flavor. Doctors say it is excellent for infants and young children.

About Cleaning Cigarette Lighter

By accident, I started to fill a table model cigarette lighter with oil instead of lighter fluid. I apparently didn't get all of the oil-soaked cotton out, because some of the oil keeps rising. It gums up the wheel so that the flint doesn't catch.

I emptied the lighter of cotton and sawdust, soaked it in hot water and repacked it with new cotton but oil continues to seep out. What do you suggest? J. L. P.

Why not soak and rinse the lighter thoroughly in a good dry cleaning fluid to cut the oil? For safety, use a noninflammable preparation such as carbon tetrachloride. Let lighter dry thoroughly, then repack with fresh cotton.

About a year ago, I attended a wedding reception that was catered. One of the delicacies was a delicious small cheese cup cake, baked in little individual containers. It was made of cottage cheese and there was no crust or cake foundation, yet it could be eaten with the fingers without being messy.

I've tried many cheese cake and cheese pie recipes and baked them as individual cup cakes, but they had to be eaten with a fork. Can anyone give me a recipe for one that can be eaten by holding in the fingers? H. W.

Has anyone a recipe of this type to share with H. W.?

A few days ago, there was a question in your column as to where a reader might find instructions in the public schools for slipcover and drapery making. I should like to add to your answer the following:

There will also be an adult class in this subject at McKinley Technical High School, meeting every Monday night, starting January 30. Registration may be made that night from 6:30 to 9:30 in Room 328.

The class will slip-cover an entire chair as a group and each member will make sample draperies.

MRS. J. WILLIAM THOMAS,
6809 Rhode Island ave.,
College Park, Md.

I am leaving shortly for England to remain for one or two years. Will you tell me what are the minimum clothes required for each season in the London climate? Can you give me a list also of any articles of food, cosmetics, etc., that should be taken since they are unobtainable there? Should sheets and towels be taken? Any other suggestions? L. H. W.

Maybe some reader who has lived in London recently will be kind enough to give some suggestions for you. I'm sure she would be better able to advise you than those of us who never venture across the boundaries of this continent.

I have been offered a beautiful Persian kitten which I would love to have. However, we live in an apartment and my mother says she simply won't tolerate a cat box in the kitchen; that the cat will have to stay out at night. This seems cruel to the cat, which is pedigreed and easily frightened, and my friends won't let me have the kitten under these conditions. Can you advise me? R. K. L.

There is a new preparation on the market which should help solve the problem if you can persuade your mother to let you try it out. It is a sanitary cat box filler that is both deodorant and absorbent. It is safe, clean and trackless and, I have been told by cat owners, extremely satisfactory all the way around. For more information about it, telephone RAndolph 0433.

Can I use color remover on a white rayon crepe blouse that has yellowed around the neck and under the arms and generally grayed? M. G.

Yes, just be sure and check the label on the color remover first and buy a brand recommended for use on rayon.

While visiting friends in New York State this past fall, I was shown a roll of old banknotes of all denominations—some over 100 years old. I was asked to see if I could find out the value of them. (You know how it is—anyone living in Washington should be able to find out anything!) Now I don't know where to go for the information. Can you advise me? E. P. P.

Philatelist William Stewart, who conducts the stamp column for The Washington Post, is well-informed about old currency, too, and says that he will be glad to give you advice. You can telephone him through The Post. He would have to examine the money or have a very accurate description of it to advise you.

One on the Aisle—

This Puzzler Has TWO Psychiatrists

By Richard L. Coe

AH, MES AMIS, these mind medicos!

They've been neglected by the movies for the past few days, but, my, oh my, they're back on the Capitol screen in "Whirlpool" and, no matter how vivid your imagination, you never conceived such doings.

Here we have a girl married to one psychoanalyst who gets under the hypnotic spell of another. This dastardly type frames a murder, gets her into a trance so it looks as though she did it, and you can figure the poor girl's confusion.

The evil doctor has an airtight alibi for his whereabouts at the time of the murder. He'd just been operated on for gallstones and is supposedly resting in his hospital bed.

But you and I know that he first hypnotized HIMSELF (in a mirror) so that shortly after the operation (when his night nurse was presumably attending to an interne) he slipped out of his hospital bed, killed his old girl friend (with whom he had stolen her daughter's inheritance) and got back to his gallstones recuperating without being missed.

Aiding his wily frame-up is a marital misunderstanding between the girl and her poor but honest psychoanalyst-husband. The little woman has something on her mind. Her husband is afraid it may be the fact that the murdered woman had once been a patient of the hypnotic gent, but has switched her patronage to him. Could wifie be jealous?

Added to this is the fact that wifie has evidently decided that her husband is not good enough a psychoanalyst for her, so she's gone over, or whatever it is, to the sleazy type. In some movies wives and husbands switch mates, but this is the first in which I've seen them trade psychiatric counselors.

No student of mind movies need be told that the reason wifie is behaving in this unreasonable way is because she has something in her PAST. Ever since childhood she's been a kleptomaniac.

Therefore, she's been able to steal records from her husband's locked files (we won't go into THAT), all of which she remembers when she realizes her husband loves her even if she IS a klepto. And while he's been a bit slow to cotton onto all this (as who wouldn't?), he's astute enough to know that even under hypnosis no one will ever do anything alien to his nature. Q.E.D.: Wifie couldn't have done in his late patient.

While I've little doubt the P PSTREET Psychiatric Pcyrcle may find some logic in all this, I'm afraid it all seems absurd while Gene Tierney, Jose Ferrer and Richard Conte stalk through their stark, elegant paces.

Ben Hecht and Andrew Solt conceived this woolly piece for some hidden, ghastly motive of their own, which I don't think you'll want to investigate unless you do it only for the kicks.

David Haskin's background "music," by the way, is the loudest and quite the worst ever.

JOHNNY WOODS, top man of the Capitol stage bill, is an impressionist whose style, after one has watched scores of these, has a sense of rhythm that sets him apart from others. . . . His sounds for such artists as Gracie Fields, Vaughn Monroe and the Ink Spots are not impressive, but his mimicry of their vocal rhythm is the keenest. . . . The Kanazawa Trio, those Oriental tumblers, do unbelievable things, and Grace Drysdale's skilled hands do wonders for two dolls. . . . Yvonne, Clavel and Farrar are the week's ballroom dancers.

"TOBACCO ROAD," as performed by an all-Negro cast, did so well in its recent two-week stand at the Howard that it's returning there a week from tonight . . . Since appearing here, Powell Lindsay, Evelyn Ellis, Jimmy Wright and their fellows have been playing at New York's Apollo . . . Three years ago whoever would have thought that a return run of "Tobacco Road" would be the year's legitimate theater sensation for the National Capital?

BOB PORTERFIELD, the Barter Theater panjandrum, has his own switch on the Christmas card surge . . . Yesterday's mail brings a card: "I'm thinking of you on Ground Hog Day, Too!" . . . If he's as successful with this notion as the unlikely Barter of 1933, we'll all be doing it in 17 years.

TODAY the Dupont begins what could be the most popular bill of the year, two Maurice Chevalier-Jeanette MacDonald musicals from the past, "Love Me Tonight," directed by Rouben Mamoulian, and "One Hour With You," directed by Ernst Lubitsch. . . . This afternoon brings that Prince Georges County school talent show to Sidney Lust's Hyattsville Theater at 2:30. . . . First in the Cinema 16 series gets under way tonight at the Institute of Contemporary Arts, to be repeated tomorrow night, both at 8:40, 1322 New York ave. . . . Catholic University presents "The Would-Be Gentleman" tonight in its campus theater.

'This I Remember'

Death of the President—'I Knew in My Heart . . .'

This is another installment of the serialization of "This I Remember," the nonfiction best seller in which Eleanor Roosevelt tells the story of Franklin D. Roosevelt's career, from 1924 to his death in 1945. Succeeding installments will be printed in The Washington Post through February 4.

By Eleanor Roosevelt

THOUGH Franklin had felt confident of being able to work with Stalin when he left for Yalta, not long after he got home he began to feel that the Marshal was not keeping his promises. This was something Franklin could not overlook, and he wrote the Marshal a number of extremely stern letters. I think he still believed, however, that in the end he could make Stalin live up to his word and that he and Stalin and Churchill, having fought the war together, had gained enough understanding and respect for one another to be able to work things out.

In telling of his experiences Franklin always said emphatically that one of the most interesting and colorful experiences was his meeting with King ibn-Saud. The king arrived on a destroyer, sitting with all his entourage under a canopy on deck, the sheep which he had brought for food herded at the other end of the ship. Franklin said it was the strangest looking destroyer he had ever seen. Beautiful rugs had been spread and everything possible done to make the king comfortable in fairly familiar surroundings. On their arrival Franklin suggested having coffee, and the king asked permission to have his own coffeemaker prepare the ceremonial brew which Franklin drank with him.

The purpose of this visit, of course, was to reach some kind of agreement regarding Palestine. Also Franklin wanted to air his ideas on the development of the Arab countries. He had always felt very strongly that the Arabs should not turn over all their oil resources to the great nations of the world but should retain sufficient oil to pump water to the surface and irrigate the desert for better agricultural development. He was convinced that much of the desert land had underground rivers which would make it possible to pump water for irrigation. He also thought that reforestation could be vastly improved in these countries. He had mentioned this to the Sultan of Morocco when he and Mr. Churchill dined with the potentate during the Casablanca conference. He told me that Mr. Churchill had not looked too happy over the idea but the sultan had seemed enthusiastic.

Franklin attempted to discuss these subjects with King Ibn-Saud, only to be rebuffed. The king, Franklin was told, was a warrior and would continue so as long as he lived. One of his sons—and he had a great many sons—was interested in conservation, but he himself had no interest at all in anything except being a warrior and the king of his nomad people.

Feared European Contact

FRANKLIN liked ibn-Saud and thought he was a fine specimen of the warrior king, but he was discouraged about the chances of doing anything to improve conditions for the people themselves. The king did not want his people changed and felt that contact with Europeans would be bad for them.

On the Palestine problem Franklin was similarly frustrated. Later he frankly admitted his one real failure had been in his talks with this Arabian king. The two men liked each other, however. Ibn-Saud sent Franklin a beautiful gold sword with many precious jewels in the handle, and he kept and used the wheelchair which Franklin sent him. (He had rheumatism and found it painful to walk.) Unfortunately the sword arrived after my husband's death. It is now in the library at Hyde Park, the property of our Government.

My husband loved to tell about a formal dinner at Yalta at which Admiral Leahy felt Anna was drinking too many toasts. She was having her glass filled with cider instead of vodka but enjoyed the admiral's concern and did not tell him of her trick till afterward.

Franklin went through the difficult ordeal of seeing Mrs. Edwin Watson and attended the funeral of the general in Arlington Cemetery. Mixed with my personal sense of loss in General Watson's death was grave anxiety about the effect it would have on Franklin.

On the first of March Franklin addressed the Congress, and then I knew, when he agreed to make his speech sitting down, that he had at last accepted a certain degree of invalidism. I found that more and more he was willing to see people for only a very short time, wanting and needing a rest in the middle of the day. He was anxious to get away, and I was pleased when he decided to go to Warm Springs, where, as I have said, he always gained in health and strength. He invited his cousins, Miss Laura Delano and Miss Margaret Suckley, to go with him. They would not be guilty, as would I, of discussing questions of state. He would be allowed to get real rest and yet have companionship, and that was what I felt he most needed.

No Longer Calm

FOR THE first time I began to realize that Franklin no longer could bear to have a real discussion such as we had always had. This was impressed upon me one night when we were discussing with Harry Hooker the question of compulsory military service for all young men as a peacetime measure. Harry Hooker had long believed in this and worked for it. I disliked the idea thoroughly and argued against it heatedly, probably because I felt Harry was so much in favor of it that Franklin was getting only one side of the picture. In the end I evidently made Franklin feel I was really arguing against him, and I suddenly realized he was upset. I stopped at once, but afterward Harry Hooker took me to task and said that I must not do that to Franklin again. I knew only too well that in discussing the issue I had forgotten that Franklin was no longer the calm and imperturbable person who in the past had always goaded me on to vehement arguments when questions of policy came up. It was just another indication of a change we were all unwilling to acknowledge.

Anna had returned to find her little boy seriously ill with a gland infection for which he had to take penicillin. For a time we kept him in the White House, but later he was moved to the Naval Hospital. We were really anxious about him. Anna had planned to take him to Warm Springs when her father went but had to give up that idea. I remember clearly that we were far more worried about little Johnny than we were about Franklin, who, we felt, would find new strength in Warm Springs.

On April 1, Easter Sunday, Tommy and I attended, as usual, the Sunrise Service, and throughout the following days I carried on my duties, hearing by telephone daily from Warm Springs. All the news was good until the afternoon of April 12, when Laura Delano called me to say that Franklin had fainted while sitting for his portrait and had been carried to bed. I talked to Dr. McIntire, who was not alarmed, but we planned to go to Warm Springs that evening. He told me, however, he thought I had better see my afternoon engagements through, since it would cause great comment if I canceled them at the last moment to go to Warm Springs.

I was at a benefit for the Thrift Shop at the Sulgrave Club in Washington when I was called to the telephone. Steve Early, very much upset, asked me to come home at once. I did not even ask why. I knew down in my heart that something dreadful had happened. Nevertheless the amenities had to be observed, so I went back to the party and said goodby, expressing my regrets that I could not stay longer because something had come up at home which called me away.

Terrible Thoughts

IN the car I sat with clenched hands all the way to the White House. I think I knew in my heart what had happened, but one does not actually formulate these terrible thoughts until they are spoken. I went to my sitting room, and Steve Early and Dr. McIntire came to tell me the news. Word had come to them from Dr. Bruen in Warm Springs, who had told them first of the hemorrhage and later of Franklin's death.

I sent at once for the Vice President and made arrangements for Dr. McIntire and Steve to accompany me to Warm Springs by plane that evening. Somehow in emergencies one moves automatically. I have always been that way. When anything happens I freeze. Johnny was still in the hospital, and Anna fortunately was in the White House, so she, Tommy and Edith Helm were left to arrange all the details for the funeral service in the White House.

When Mr. Truman came I could think of nothing to say except how sorry I was for him, how much we would all want to help him in any way we could and how sorry I was for the people of the country to have lost their leader and friend before the war was really won.

Then I cabled my sons:

Father slept away. He would expect you to carry on and finish your jobs.

Almost before we knew it we were on the plane. The next day in Warm Springs was a long and heartbreaking one. Laura Delano and Margaret Suckley, Lizzie McDuffie, our White House maid, Daisy Bonner, the cook Franklin always had in Warm Springs, Prettyman, the valet, were all stunned and sad, but everyone was self-controlled and as calm as possible. Though this was a terrible blow, somehow you had no chance to think of it as a personal sorrow. It was the sorrow of all those for whom this man who now lay dead and who happened to be my husband had been a symbol of strength and fortitude.

Their Last Tribute

FINALLY the slow procession moved to the railroad station, and we boarded the train and started for Washington. A military guard surrounded the coffin in the back of the car where Franklin had sat so often. I lay in my berth all night with the windowshade up, looking out at the countryside he had loved and watching the faces of the people at stations and even at the crossroads who came to pay their last tribute all through the night.

All the plans for the funeral were as Franklin would have wanted them. We had talked often, when there had been a funeral at the Capitol where a man had lain in state and the crowds went by the open coffin, of how much we disliked the idea; and we had made up our minds that we would never allow it. I asked that the coffin be opened after it was placed in the White House so that I could go in alone to put a few flowers in it before it was closed finally. Franklin wanted to be remembered as he was when alive and to have his friends at services in the East Room.

It seemed to me that everyone in the world was in the East Room for the funeral services except three of my own sons. Elliott was the only one who, by luck, could get back: he was invited to fly home in the plane which brought Mr. Baruch and several others back from London. Jimmy was able to come East, but he did not reach New York City until after the funeral at Hyde Park, so he joined us on the train on our way back to Washington.

Franklin wanted to be buried in the rose garden at Hyde Park and left exact directions in writing, but he had neglected to make the arrangements necessary for using private property, so we had to make those at the last minute.

After the funeral in Washington we traveled to Hyde Park. Again no one could sleep, so we watched out of the windows of the train the crowds of people who stood in respect and sorrow all along the way. I was deeply touched by the number of our friends who had left their homes very early to drive to Hyde Park for the funeral and, especially, by the kind thoughtfulness of Prime Minister Mackenzie King. My niece was living in Ottawa at the time, and he invited her to go to Hyde Park on his special train. I stayed in the house long enough to greet old personal friends and officials who had come up from Washington. Then my son Elliott and my own daughters-in-law, Tommy, Harry Hooker and I went back to Washington on the same train as President and Mrs. Truman.

Boy Scout Donnie

Our Donnie is a Boy Scout now . . . And that is what he likes . . . Especially the camping trips . . . And when he goes on hikes . . . And we are truly happy and . . . We think that it is fine . . . But now and then we sort of wish . . . That we could draw the line . . . For when those expeditions start . . . He gives us quite a fit . . . With all the stuff he has to get . . . To fill his Boy Scout kit . . . The beans, spaghetti and eggs . . . The bacon and the bread . . . The tent and all the blankets for . . . His pioneering bed . . . Well, by the time we satisfy . . . His every want and need . . . We feel that we have really done . . . Our daily Boy Scout deed.

STREET (CAR) SCENE

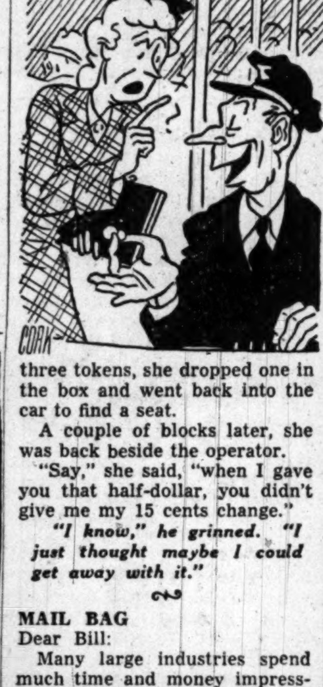
Our reporter for this one is R. L. Newton:

She boarded the trolley on 14th st., and handed the operator a transfer.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but you can't use this transfer. It expired a couple of hours ago."

"I know," she said pleasantly. "I just thought I'd try, and maybe get away with it."

Thereupon she handed him a half-dollar and asked for tokens. The operator gave her three tokens, she dropped one in the box and went back into the car to find a seat.



A couple of blocks later, she was back beside the operator.

"Say," she said, "when I gave you that half-dollar, you didn't give me my 15 cents change."

"I know," he grinned. "I just thought maybe I could get away with it."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Many large industries spend much time and money impressing their employes with the necessity of being courteous to telephone callers.

The District Government could profit from their example.

There's a new order which says that District employers must report the income of District residents on their payrolls. I called up today, to try to get information on the subject, but before I got past the operator I was seeing several shades of red.

And if the operator was rude, the person I finally talked to in one of the tax offices was even worse.

I wonder if the Commissioners realize what a poor impression such public servants make.

Elizabeth Williams.

Dear Miss Williams:

As an experiment, I called for the same information without identifying myself. The operator listened to my bumbling question patiently, and replied: "One moment, please."

The next voice said: "District information." Again I fumbled through my question, and this time the voice said: "I'll connect you with extension 431."

A man answered. I stated the question again, and he said: "The forms for this purpose are available in Room 9 of the District Building and they're supposed to be turned in by February 15."

Everybody was on the ball, and courteous, and it wasn't to make a good impression on a reporter, because they didn't know who was calling.

What's the explanation? As far as I can see, it's not a contrast between Government rudeness and private courtesy, but rather a contrast in individuals. You'll find civility and incivility in all walks of life.

But I'll agree with you on one point. It certainly is more annoying to find rudeness in public servants. If you find it in a store, you can take your trade to the store across the street. But when you find it in your Government you're up against a stone wall. Bill.

THANK GOODNESS!

The Edward J. Michelsons of 1602 Fort Hunt rd., Tauxemont, Va., are regaling neighbors with a story about their son, Paul.

When the lad came home recently from a hard day of schoolwork (first grade, Hollin Hall), his mother asked what her little man had learned that day.

"Oh," said Paul, "we learned about Eskimos and how they take their old people who can't work any more and put them out in a big snow drift to die."

"Gracious," exclaimed Mrs. Michelson. "You won't do that to me when I get too old to work, will you Paul?"

It was a brand new idea, and Paul had to think about it for a moment. Then he said:

"It never snows that hard around here."

Tom Clark Big Surprise To Justices

By Drew Pearson

A friendly Texan who speaks in a soft drawl and wears neat bow ties is the big surprise of the Supreme Court.

Clark.

Six months ago when Attorney General Tom Clark's name was sent to the Senate, his critics looked down their noses and sneered, "A politician! A bureaucrat!" In the gleaming white marble building across the park from the Capitol, there was apprehension.

But today, fellow justices ungrudgingly describe Clark as "conscientious . . . A great worker . . . A pacifying influence." Chief Justice Fred Vinson beams fondly when the freshman is mentioned.

Usually a neophyte on the high court is considered a go-getter if he writes two majority opinions his first year. Tom Clark has written five in less than six months—two on taxes, corporate responsibility, railway safety, and a cost equation for property requisitioned by the Government.

Lincoln "Fair Dealer?"

When GOP Leader Joe Martin moved that the House of Representatives dispense with legislative business on February 13 so Republicans could attend various Lincoln Day dinners, Democrat Walter Huber of Ohio, rose as if to object. Instead, Huber said:

"Inasmuch as if Abraham Lincoln were alive today he would be a Fair Dealer, I shall offer no objection to the request the gentleman intends to make."

"Thank you," replied Martin, "but I have some doubts about the gentleman's assumption with regard to Abraham Lincoln."

Russia Fears Atom

The atom bomb has forced a radical and secret shift in Russian military tactics, according to latest intelligence reports.

In World War II, Societ tactics were based on huge masses of men supported by tanks and artillery, but given only meager air support. Today, however, Russia has built a powerful air force of heavy, long-range bombers for offense, plus swift jet fighters for defense. This is to ward off an atomic attack from the air.

More than half the Soviet military budget goes into the air force. The goal is 20,000 fighting planes, half of them swift jets, 40 percent bombers, and the remainder conventional fighters and fighter-bombers.

Taking a leaf from another successful maneuver used by Americans, British and Germans, Russia is now reported to have an airborne army of 150,000 men.

Another eye-opening set of figures is the Soviet-controlled airplane production last year. This is 3000 heavy bombers, 5000 light bombers, 5000 jet fighters and 2500 conventional fighters. Total—15,500 new planes.

In comparison, the United States Air Force totals 17,800 planes, many of them in mothballs.

Johnson Names 7 Atlantic Pact Defense Advisers

Secretary of Defense Johnson yesterday named seven United States officers to head military assistance advisory groups in Europe under the Atlantic Pact.

They will be attached to American Embassies under terms of arms aid agreements signed last week by the treaty nations.

The officers and their posts are: Brig. Gen. Charles T. Lanham, Belgium-Luxembourg; Brig Gen. Ralph A. Snavely, Air Force, Denmark; Maj. Gen. George J. Richards, Army, France.

Brig Gen. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, Army, Italy; Rear Admiral Emmet P. Forrestel, Navy, The Netherlands; Rear Admiral Ralph E. Jennings, Navy, Norway; and Maj. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, Air Force, the United Kingdom.

The treaties provide a minimum number of United States military personnel to assist the aided countries with problems relating to the United States arms they will receive.
